EXHIBIT A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Plaintiff, v. CROWN LABORATORIES, INC., a corporation and JEFFERY BEDARD, an individual, Defendants.	Civil Action No.: _____ COMPLAINT FOR PERMANENT INJUNCTION

Plaintiff, the United States of America, by its undersigned attorneys, respectfully represents to this Court as follows:

1. This statutory injunction proceeding is brought under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the "Act"), 21 U.S.C. § 332(a), to permanently enjoin and restrain Crown Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, and Jeffery Bedard, an individual (collectively, "Defendants") from:

A. violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(d) by introducing or delivering, or causing to be introduced or delivered, into interstate commerce new drugs that are neither approved pursuant to 21 U.S.C. § 355(b) or (j), nor exempt from approval pursuant to 21 U.S.C. § 355(i);

B. violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(a) by introducing or delivering, or causing to be introduced or delivered, into interstate commerce drugs that are misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1); and

C. violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(k) by causing drugs that Defendants hold for sale after shipment of one or more of their components in interstate commerce to become misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1).

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

2. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter and all parties to this action pursuant to 21 U.S.C. § 332(a) and 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1345.

3. Venue in this District is proper under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b) and (c).

DEFENDANTS

4. Defendant Crown Laboratories, Inc. ("Crown" or "the firm") is a corporation incorporated and registered to do business in Tennessee. Crown operates at its principal place of business and drug manufacturing facility, which is located at 349 Lafe Cox Drive, Johnson City, Tennessee (the "Facility"), within the jurisdiction of this Court.

5. Crown manufactures, processes, packs, labels, holds, and distributes a variety of prescription and over-the-counter ("OTC") drugs including, but not limited to, prescription urea cream and lotion, and prescription Sodium Sulfacetamide 10% & Sulfur 5% (hereafter, "Sodium Sulfacetamide"), which are the subject of this action. Specifically, Crown manufactures, processes, packs, labels, holds, and distributes in interstate commerce Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, and Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer) under its own labels. Crown also manufactures, processes, packs, labels, holds, and distributes in interstate commerce Sodium Sulfacetamide as a contract manufacturer for another pharmaceutical firm.

6. Defendant Jeffery Bedard is Crown's Chief Executive Officer. He is responsible for, and has authority over, all operations at the firm. He has the authority and duty to prevent, detect, and correct objectionable conditions. He performs his duties at the Facility, within the jurisdiction of this Court.

DEFENDANTS' VIOLATIONS OF THE ACT

Unapproved New Drugs

7. A product is a drug within the meaning of the Act, inter alia, if it is "intended for use in the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease in man," 21 U.S.C. § 321(g)(1)(B), or if it is "intended to affect the structure or any function of the body of man," 21 U.S.C. § 321(g)(1)(C).

8. The intended use of a product may be determined from any relevant source, including the product's labeling. See 21 C.F.R. § 201.128. The Act defines labeling as "all labels and other written, printed, or graphic matter (1) upon any article or any of its containers or wrappers, or (2) accompanying such article." 21 U.S.C. § 321(m).

9. The products Defendants introduce or deliver for introduction into interstate commerce are drugs within the meaning of the Act because they are intended for use in the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease in man and/or intended to affect the structure or any function of the body of man. Specifically, according to the products' labels, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, and Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer) are intended to treat hyperkeratotic conditions such as dry, rough skin, xerosis, ichthyosis, skin cracks and fissures, dermatitis, eczema, psoriasis, keratosis, and calluses, and Sodium Sulfacetamide is intended to treat acne vulgaris, acne rosacea, and seborrheic dermatitis.

10. A "new drug" is defined as any drug "the composition of which is such that such drug is not generally recognized, among experts qualified by scientific training and experience to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of drugs, as safe and effective for use under the conditions prescribed, recommended, or suggested in the labeling thereof . . . ; or any drug . . . the composition of which is such that such drug, as a result of investigations to determine its safety and effectiveness for use under such conditions, has become so recognized, but which has not, otherwise than in such investigations, been used to a material extent or for a material time under such conditions." 21 U.S.C. § 321(p).

11. A "new drug" may not be introduced or delivered for introduction into interstate commerce unless FDA has approved a new drug application ("NDA") or an abbreviated new drug application ("ANDA") with respect to such drug, or such drug is exempt from approval under an investigational new drug application ("IND"). 21 U.S.C. §§ 331(d) and 355(a), (b), (i), and (j). It is a violation of the Act to introduce or deliver, or cause to be introduced or delivered, into interstate commerce a new drug that is neither approved nor exempt from approval. 21 U.S.C. § 331(d).

12. Defendants' Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), and Sodium Sulfacetamide are "new drugs" within the meaning of the Act, inter alia, because they are not generally recognized among experts qualified by scientific training and experience to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of drugs, as safe and effective for use under the conditions prescribed, recommended, or suggested in their labeling. 21 U.S.C. § 321(p)(1).

13. There is no application under 21 U.S.C. § 355 on file with FDA for Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), or Sodium Sulfacetamide that would allow Crown to introduce or deliver these products, or cause them to be introduced or delivered, into interstate commerce to the public.

14. Defendants' introduction or delivery for introduction of these drug products into interstate commerce therefore violates 21 U.S.C. § 331(d).

Misbranded Drugs

15. The introduction or delivery for introduction into interstate commerce of any drug that is misbranded violates the Act. 21 U.S.C. § 331(a).

16. A drug is misbranded if its labeling fails to bear "adequate directions for use," and does not fall within a regulatory exemption from this requirement. 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1); 21 C.F.R. Part 201, Subpart D.

17. Defendants' Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), and Sodium Sulfacetamide are prescription drugs within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 353(b)(1)(B). The labeling of these products state that they are intended for "Rx Only" use.

18. Defendants' Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), and Sodium Sulfacetamide are misbranded because they do not bear adequate directions for use as required by 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1), and they are not exempt from this requirement pursuant to 21 C.F.R. §§ 201.100 or 201.115. A new drug is exempt from the adequate directions for use requirement only if it bears the precise labeling approved in its approved application. See 21 C.F.R. § 201.115. Moreover, a prescription drug that is a new drug can qualify for the exemption from the adequate directions for use requirement if its labeling bears the information authorized by an approved new drug application. See 21 C.F.R. § 201.100(c)(2). New drugs that lack an approved NDA, such as Defendants' prescription drugs, cannot qualify for either of these exemptions and therefore are misbranded as a matter of law.

19. Defendants violate the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 331(a), by introducing or delivering for introduction into interstate commerce articles of drug, as defined by 21 U.S.C. § 321(g)(1), that are misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1), as set forth above.

20. Defendants violate the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 331(k), by causing articles of drug, as defined by 21 U.S.C. § 321(g)(1), to become misbranded, within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1), while such drugs are held for sale after shipment of one or more of their components in interstate commerce.

Interstate Commerce

21. During the most recent inspection of the Facility between February 22 and 25, 2016, FDA documented Defendants' shipment of Rea Lo (40% Urea) Cream and Rea Lo (40% Urea) Lotion to Georgia and Utah, and of Dermasorb XM Trade Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer) to California. FDA also documented Defendants' shipment of Sodium Sulfacetamide to Ohio. These shipments constitute the introduction or delivery for introduction of unapproved new drugs and misbranded drugs into interstate commerce under 21 U.S.C. §§ 331(a) and (d).

22. Defendants receive raw materials from outside of Tennessee, which they use to manufacture their drug products. For example, Defendants receive the active pharmaceutical ingredients Urea USP from Ohio and Sodium Sulfacetamide Monohydrate from Mississippi. Therefore, the interstate commerce element under 21 U.S.C. § 331(k) is met.

HISTORY

23. Defendants are well aware that their conduct violates the law and that continued violations could lead to regulatory action.

24. During a meeting with Defendants on December 2, 2015, FDA notified

Defendants that unapproved, marketed drugs are not listed in the FDA Orange Book, Approved Drug Products with Therapeutic Equivalence Evaluations, (35th ed. 2015), which is a compilation of drugs approved by FDA on the basis of safety and effectiveness whose applications have not been withdrawn or suspended for safety or effectiveness reasons and FDA's evaluations on the therapeutic equivalence of drugs, and that the marketing of these products absent an approved application may violate the Act and subject them compliance action.

25. During an inspection of the Facility between March 2 and 3, 2015, FDA documented Defendants' distribution in interstate commerce of Rea Lo (40% Urea) Cream and Rea Lo (40% Urea) Lotion. By letter dated May 13, 2015, FDA explained to then counsel for Defendant Crown that 40% Urea Cream, 40% Urea Lotion, 39% Urea Lotion, and Sodium Sulfacetamide are new drugs that are subject to the Act's premarket approval requirement.

26. During an inspection of the Facility between February 10 and 14, 2014, FDA documented, among other things, Defendants' manufacturing and distribution in interstate commerce of prescription urea drugs privately labeled for Ascend Laboratories, LLC (hereafter, "Ascend"), specifically products labeled as Ascend Urea Cream 40% and Ascend Urea 40% Lotion. FDA also documented Defendants' manufacturing and distribution in interstate commerce of Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer) and Sodium Sulfacetamide during the inspection. The FDA investigator discussed the potential unapproved status of these drugs with firm management, including Defendant Bedard, and made them aware of FDA's Compliance Policy Guide Section 440.100, Marketed New Drugs Without Approved NDAs or ANDAs, amended September 19, 2011 ("CPG Section 440.100"); see also 76 Fed. Reg. 58398-01 (Sept. 21, 2011). In CPG Section 440.100, FDA notified manufacturers and distributors that any product that is being illegally marketed is subject to enforcement at any time and that all unapproved drugs introduced onto the market after September 19, 2011, are subject to immediate enforcement action without prior notice and without respect to the enforcement priorities listed therein. See also 76 Fed. Reg. at 58399.

27. In May 2014, the United States conducted a seizure of certain unapproved and misbranded drugs that were being distributed by Ascend, including but not limited to the urea drug products that Defendants had manufactured for Ascend (Ascend Cream Urea 40% Cream, Ascend Urea Lotion 40%, and Ascend Urea Cream 39%). The United States notified Defendants of the seizure by letter dated May 15, 2014.

28. Defendant Bedard stated, by letter dated March 5, 2014 to FDA, that Crown "does not currently plan to file an NDA for any of these products . . . ." During FDA's February 2016 inspection, the firm's Vice President of Quality Assurance and Quality Control, stated that he believes that the products at issue are legal drug products and that they will continue to be manufactured and shipped in the future.

29. Accordingly, unless restrained by this Court, Defendants will continue to violate the Act, 21 U.S.C. §§ 331(a), (d), and (k).

WHEREFORE, the United States respectfully requests that the Court:

I. Permanently restrain and enjoin, under 21 U.S.C. § 332(a), Defendants, and each and all of their directors, officers, agents, representatives, employees, attorneys, successors, and assigns, and any and all persons in active concert or participation with any of them, from doing or causing to be done any of the following acts:

A. violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(d) by introducing or delivering, or causing to be introduced or delivered, into interstate commerce unapproved new drugs;

B. violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(a) by introducing or delivering, or causing to be introduced or delivered, into interstate commerce drugs that are misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1); and

C. violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(k) by causing drugs that Defendants hold for sale after shipment of one or more of their components in interstate commerce to become misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1).

II. Permanently restrain and enjoin, under 21 U.S.C. § 332(a), Defendants, and each and all of their directors, officers, agents, representatives, employees, attorneys, successors, and assigns, and any and all persons in active concert or participation with any of them, from directly or indirectly introducing or delivering for introduction, or causing to be introduced or delivered for introduction, into interstate commerce any drug, including but not limited to Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), and Sodium Sulfacetamide, and any product labeled similarly to such products and containing the same active ingredients, unless and until an approved new drug application, an abbreviated new drug application, or an investigational new drug application filed pursuant to 21 U.S.C. § 355(b), (j), or (i) is in effect for such drugs.

III. Order that Defendants destroy, under FDA's supervision and at Defendants' expense, all Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), and Sodium Sulfacetamide, and any product labeled similarly to such products and containing the same active ingredient(s) in their custody, control, or possession, and that the costs of FDA's supervision be borne by Defendants at the rates prevailing at the time the destruction is accomplished.

IV. Order that FDA be authorized to inspect Defendants' place(s) of business and all records relating to the receipt, manufacture, processing, packing, labeling, holding, and distribution of any of Defendants' products to ensure continuing compliance with the terms of the injunction, the costs of such inspections to be borne by Defendants at the rates prevailing at the time the inspections are accomplished.

FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Plaintiff, v. CROWN LABORATORIES, INC., a corporation and JEFFERY BEDARD, an individual, Defendants.	Civil Action No.: 2:17-cv-36 CONSENT DECREE OF PERMANENT INJUNCTION

Plaintiff, the United States of America, by and through its undersigned attorneys, having filed a Complaint for Permanent Injunction ("Complaint") against Crown Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, and Jeffery Bedard, an individual (hereinafter, collectively, "Defendants"), and Defendants having appeared and consented to entry of this Decree without admitting or denying the allegations in the Complaint, and before any testimony has been taken, and the United States of America, having consented to this Decree;

IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED as follows:

1. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter and all parties to this action.

2. The Complaint states a cause of action against Defendants under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. §§ 301 et seq. (the "Act").

3. The Complaint alleges that Defendants violate 21 U.S.C. § 331(d) by introducing or delivering for introduction, or causing to be introduced or delivered for introduction, into interstate commerce new drugs within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 321(p) that are neither approved under 21 U.S.C. §§ 355(b) or (j), nor exempt from approval under 21 U.S.C. § 355(i).

4. The Complaint alleges that Defendants violate 21 U.S.C. § 331(a) by introducing or delivering for introduction, or causing to be introduced or delivered for introduction, into interstate commerce articles of drug that are misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1).

5. The Complaint alleges that Defendants violate 21 U.S.C. § 331(k) by causing articles of drug that they hold for sale after shipment in interstate commerce to become misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1).

6. Upon entry of this Decree, Defendants and each and all of their directors, officers, agents, representatives, employees, attorneys, successors, and assigns, and any and all persons or entities in active concert or participation with any of them, who have received actual notice of this Decree by personal service or otherwise, are permanently restrained and enjoined under 21 U.S.C. § 332(a) from:

A. Introducing or delivering for introduction, or directly or indirectly causing to be introduced or delivered for introduction, into interstate commerce, manufacturing, processing, packaging, labeling, holding, or selling any Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), Sodium Sulfacetamide 10% & Sulfur 5% (hereafter, "Sodium Sulfacetamide"), or any drug labeled similarly to such drugs and containing the same active ingredient(s), unless and until an approved new drug application or an abbreviated new drug application or an investigational new drug application filed pursuant to 21 U.S.C. § 355(b), (j), or (i) is in effect for such drugs;

B. Violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(d) by introducing or delivering for introduction, or directly or indirectly causing to be introduced or delivered for introduction, into interstate commerce any drug that is a new drug within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 321(p) and that is neither approved under 21 U.S.C. § 355(b) or (j), nor exempt from approval under to 21 U.S.C. § 355(i);

C. Violating 21 U.S.C. § 331(a) by introducing or delivering for introduction, or directly or indirectly causing to be introduced or delivered for introduction, into interstate commerce any drug that is misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1);

D. Violating of 21 U.S.C. § 331(k) by, directly or indirectly, causing any drug that Defendants hold for sale after shipment of one or more of its components in interstate commerce to become misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. § 352(f)(1); and

E. Directly or indirectly causing to be done any act that results in the failure to implement and continuously maintain the requirements of this Decree.

Nothing in this paragraph or paragraph 7 or paragraph 9 shall preclude Defendants from marketing a drug subject to an ongoing Drug Efficacy Study Implementation (DESI) proceeding during the pendency of that proceeding. The preceding sentence does not apply when a DESI proceeding closes. No provision of this Decree shall affect the authority of the United States to bring an action against Defendants for a violation of the Act and/or its implementing regulations.

7. A. Within twenty (20) business days after entry of this Decree, Defendants shall give written notice to FDA that, at their own expense and under FDA's supervision, they are prepared to destroy all Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Cream, Rea Lo (Urea 40%) Lotion, Rea Lo 39 (Urea 39%) Cream, Dermasorb XM Complete Kit (Urea 39% Cream and Moisturizer), Sodium Sulfacetamide, any unapproved drug labeled similarly to such drugs and containing the same active ingredient(s), and any unapproved new drugs not expressly listed herein, in Defendants' custody, control, or possession (hereinafter, "Violative Drugs"). Defendants' notice shall specify the proposed time, place, and method of destruction ("Destruction Plan"). Defendants shall not commence or permit any other person to commence destruction until they have received written authorization from FDA to commence the destruction.

B. Defendants shall at all times, until all of the Violative Drugs have been destroyed in accordance with this Decree, retain the Violative Drugs intact for examination or inspection by FDA at their facility at 349 Lafe Cox Drive, Johnson City, Tennessee ("the Facility"), and shall maintain all records or other proof necessary to establish the identity of the Violative Drugs to FDA's satisfaction. Defendants shall not cause the Violative Drugs to be disposed of in a manner contrary to the Act, or other laws of the United States, or of any State or Territory (as defined in the Act) in which they are disposed.

C. Within fifteen (15) business days after receiving authorization from FDA to commence destroying the Violative Drugs, Defendants shall, under FDA supervision, complete the destruction in compliance with this Decree. Defendants shall reimburse FDA, at the rates set forth in Paragraph 13, for the supervision of the destruction within ten (10) business days after receiving notice of such costs from FDA.

8. FDA shall be permitted, without prior notice and as FDA deems necessary, to make inspections of Defendants' place(s) of business (including, but not limited to, the Facility) and, without prior notice, take any other measures necessary to monitor and ensure continuing compliance with the terms of this Decree, the Act, and FDA regulations. During inspections, FDA shall be permitted to have immediate access to buildings, equipment, raw ingredients, in-process materials, finished products, containers, packaging material, labeling, and other materials therein; to take photographs and make video recordings; to take samples of Defendants' raw ingredients, in-process materials, finished products, containers, packaging material, labeling, and other materials; and to examine and copy all records relating to the manufacture, processing, packing, labeling, holding, and distribution of any and all drugs and their respective components. The inspection authority granted by this Decree is separate from, and in addition to, the authority to make inspections under the Act, 21 U.S.C. § 374.

9. Upon entry of this Decree, if at any time FDA determines, based on the results of an inspection, the analysis of a sample, a report, or any other information, that Defendants have failed to comply with any provision of this Decree, have violated the Act or its implementing regulations, and/or that additional corrective actions are necessary to achieve compliance with this Decree, the Act, or its implementing regulations, FDA may, as and when it deems necessary, notify Defendants in writing of the noncompliance and order Defendants to take appropriate corrective action, including, but not limited to, ordering Defendants to immediately take one or more of the following actions:

A. Cease manufacturing, processing, preparing, packing, labeling, holding, selling, and/or distributing any or all unapproved or misbranded drugs;

B. Recall, at Defendants' expense, any drugs that are unapproved, misbranded, or otherwise in violation of this Decree, the Act, or its implementing regulations;

C. Revise, modify, expand, or continue to submit any reports or plans prepared pursuant to this Decree;

D. Submit additional reports or information to FDA as requested;

E. Issue a safety alert; or

F. Take any other corrective actions with respect to unapproved or misbranded drugs as FDA, in its discretion, deems necessary to bring Defendants into compliance with this Decree, the Act, and its implementing regulations.

The provisions of this paragraph shall be apart from, and in addition to, all other remedies available to FDA.

10. Any order issued by FDA pursuant to Paragraph 9 shall be issued by the appropriate FDA District Director, and shall specify the deficiencies or violations giving rise to the order. Unless a different time frame is specified by FDA in its order, within five (5) business days after receiving an order pursuant to Paragraph 9, Defendants shall notify FDA in writing either that: (1) Defendants are undertaking, or have undertaken, the specified corrective action, in which event Defendants shall describe the specific action taken or proposed to be taken and a proposed schedule for completing the action; or (2) Defendants do not agree with FDA's order. If Defendants notify FDA that they do not agree with FDA's order, Defendants shall explain in writing the basis for their disagreement; in so doing, Defendants may propose specific alternative actions and specific time frames for achieving FDA's objectives.

A. If Defendants notify FDA that they do not agree with FDA's order, FDA will review Defendants' notification and thereafter, in writing, affirm, modify, or withdraw its order, as FDA deems appropriate. If FDA affirms or modifies its order, it shall explain the basis for its decision in writing. The written notice of affirmation or modification shall constitute final agency action.

B. If FDA affirms or modifies its order, Defendants shall, upon receipt of FDA's order, immediately implement the order (as modified, if applicable) and, if they so choose, bring the matter before this Court on an expedited basis. While seeking Court review, Defendants shall continue to diligently implement FDA's order unless the Court stays, reverses, vacates, or modifies FDA's order. Any review of FDA's decision under this subparagraph shall be made in accordance with the terms set forth in Paragraph 19.

C. The process and procedures set forth in Paragraph 10.A-B shall not apply to any order issued under Paragraph 9 if such order states that, in FDA's judgment, the matter raises significant public health concerns. In such case, Defendants shall immediately and fully comply with the terms of that order. Should Defendants seek to challenge any such order, they may petition this Court for relief while implementing the order.

11. Any action ordered pursuant to Paragraph 9 shall continue until Defendants receive written notification from FDA that Defendants appear to be in compliance with this Decree, the Act, and its implementing regulations. The cost of FDA's inspections, sampling, testing, travel time, and subsistence expenses to implement the remedies set forth in Paragraph 9 shall be borne by Defendants at the rates specified in Paragraph 13.

12. The prohibitions set forth in Paragraphs 6 and 7 or in any order issued under Paragraph 9 shall not apply to any drug manufactured solely for export and/or exported from the United States, provided that all applicable requirements of the Act, including 21 U.S.C. §§ 381(e) and 382, and its implementing regulations have been satisfied with respect to such drug.

13. Defendants shall reimburse FDA for the costs of all FDA inspections, investigations, supervision, analyses, examinations, and reviews that FDA deems necessary to evaluate Defendants' compliance with any part of this Decree at the standard rates prevailing at the time the costs are incurred. As of the date of entry of this Decree, these rates are: $90.65 per hour or fraction thereof per representative for inspection and investigative work; $108.63 per hour or fraction thereof per representative for analytical or review work; $0.54 per mile for travel expenses by automobile; government rate or the equivalent for travel by air or other means; and the published government per diem rate for subsistence expenses where necessary. In the event that the standard rates applicable to FDA supervision of court-ordered compliance are modified, these rates shall be increased or decreased without further order of the Court.

14. Within ten (10) business days after entry of this Decree, Defendants shall post a copy of this Decree in a common area at the Facility, at any other location at which Defendants conduct business, and on Crown Laboratories, Inc.'s website, and shall ensure that the Decree remains posted for as long as the Decree remains in effect.

15. Within ten (10) business days after entry of this Decree, Defendants shall provide a copy of the Decree by personal service or certified mail (return receipt requested) to each and all of their directors, officers, agents, employees, representatives, successors, assigns, attorneys, and any and all persons in active concert or participation with any of them (hereafter collectively referred to as "Associated Persons"). Within twenty (20) business days after entry of this Decree, Defendants shall provide to FDA an affidavit stating the fact and manner of their compliance with this paragraph, identifying the names, addresses, and positions of all persons who have received a copy of this Decree.

16. In the event that any of the Defendants becomes associated with any additional Associated Person(s) at any time after entry of this Decree, Defendants immediately shall provide a copy of this Decree, by personal service or certified mail (restricted delivery, return receipt requested), to such Associated Person(s). Each time any Defendant becomes associated with an additional Associated Person(s), it shall, within ten (10) business days, provide to FDA an affidavit stating the fact and manner of its compliance with this paragraph, identifying the names, addresses, and positions of all Associated Person(s) who received a copy of this Decree pursuant to this paragraph. Within ten (10) business days of receiving a request from FDA for any information or documentation that FDA deems necessary to evaluate compliance with this paragraph, Defendants shall provide such information or documentation to FDA.

17. Defendants shall notify FDA in writing at least ten (10) business days before any change in ownership, name, or character of their business that occurs after entry of this Decree, including an incorporation, reorganization, creation of a subsidiary, relocation, dissolution, bankruptcy, assignment, sale, or any other change in the structure or identity of Crown Laboratories, Inc., or the sale or assignment of any business assets, such as buildings, equipment, or inventory, that may affect obligations arising out of this Decree. Defendants shall provide a copy of this Decree to any prospective successor or assign at least twenty (20) business days prior to any sale or assignment. Defendants shall furnish FDA with an affidavit of compliance with this paragraph no later than ten (10) business days prior to such assignment or change in ownership.

18. Defendants may at any time petition FDA in writing to extend any deadline provided for herein, and FDA may grant such extension without seeking leave of Court. However, any such petitions shall not become effective or stay the imposition of any payments under this Decree unless granted by FDA in writing.

19. All decisions specified in this Decree shall be vested in FDA's discretion and shall be final. If contested by Defendants, FDA's decisions under this Decree shall be reviewed by this Court pursuant to the arbitrary and capricious standard as set forth in 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). Review by the Court of any FDA decision rendered pursuant to this Decree shall be based exclusively on the written record before FDA at the time of the decision. No discovery shall be taken by either party.

20. All notifications, correspondence, and communications to FDA required by the terms of this Decree shall reference the case name and civil action number, be prominently marked "Decree Correspondence" and "Crown Laboratories, Inc." and be addressed to:

District Director
New Orleans District Office
U.S. Food and Drug Administration
404 BNA Drive, Building 200, Suite 500
Nashville, TN 37217-2565

21. Should Defendants fail to comply with any provision of this Decree, then they shall pay to the United States of America the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) in liquidated damages for each day such violation continues, an additional sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) in liquidated damages for each violation of this Decree, and an additional sum equal to three (3) times the retail value of each shipment of an unapproved new drug and/or a misbranded drug in liquidated damages for each such unlawful shipment. Defendants understand and agree that the liquidated damages specified in this paragraph are not punitive in nature and their imposition does not in any way limit the ability of the United States to seek, and the Court to impose, additional criminal or civil penalties based on conduct that may also be the basis for payment of the liquidated damages.

22. Should the United States bring and prevail in a contempt action to enforce the terms of this Decree, Defendants shall, in addition to other remedies, reimburse the United States for its attorneys' fees and overhead, investigational and analytical expenses, expert witness fees, travel expenses incurred by attorneys and witnesses, and court costs or any other fees relating to such contempt proceedings.

23. This Court retains jurisdiction over this action and the parties thereto for the purpose of enforcing and modifying this Decree and for the purpose of granting such additional relief as may be necessary or appropriate.

24. If Defendants have continuously complied with the terms of this Decree, the Act, and all applicable laws and regulations for a period of five years after entry of this Decree, Defendants may petition this Court for relief from this Decree. If, at the time of the petition, in FDA's judgment Defendants have met the foregoing criteria, Plaintiff will not oppose such petition.

SO ORDERED.

Hello Maria,

I spoke with a representative from the Texas Secretary of State and they confirmed that they no longer use Certificates of Account Status. This document has been replaced with the Taxable Entity Search. I attached an additional document showing the results of this public Taxable Entity Search that shows that we are current with all state franchise taxes. Please let me know if there's anything else I can get for you.

IN THE MATTER OF THE COMPLAINT AGAINST:	)
Empower Pharmacy (99-7594)	)	Case No. 1510
5980 W. Sam Houston Pkwy, Ste 300	)
Houston, TX 77041	)

AGREED FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS OF LAW AND FINAL ORDER

This matter came for hearing on June 13, 2018, before the Oklahoma State Board of Pharmacy ("Board"). Board members St. Cyr, Dudley, Spoon, Wilson, Adams, and Whitehead were present. President Whitehead presided. John M. Settle, Assistant Attorney General, served as prosecutor for the Board. Respondent appeared and was represented by legal counsel, Doug Rice of Derryberry & Naifeh, LLP.

The Complaint in this matter is incorporated by reference into this Order.

The Board and Respondent hereby agree to the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Final Order. Respondent has been advised of the right to contest the allegations of the Complaint herein, to cross-examine witnesses, and to present witnesses and evidence in defense of the allegations of the Complaint. Respondent hereby knowingly and voluntarily waives these rights. In addition, Respondent understands and acknowledges that this document is a public record that must be provided to anyone requesting it.

Should this Order not be accepted by the Board, Respondent agrees that neither the presentation of the Order to the Board nor the Board's consideration of the Order will be deemed to have unfairly or illegally prejudiced the Board or its individual members and, therefore, will not be grounds for precluding the Board or any individual member of the Board from further participating in proceedings related to the matters set forth in the Order.

AGREED FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent is licensed as a non-resident pharmacy in the State of Oklahoma and is located at 5980 W. Sam Houston Pkwy, Ste 300, Houston, TX 77041. Souchinda Nanthavongdouangsy, D.Ph. #15854, is Respondent's pharmacist-in-charge.

2. Respondent compounded the following products that the Board alleges are commercially available or essentially copies of commercially available FDA-approved drug products under Oklahoma law:

HCG 11,000 units/vial & units/vial kits	#287 prescriptions
HCG 5,000 units/vial & units/vial kits	#85 prescriptions

HCG injection in 5,000 units per vial is commercially available. HCG injection in 11,000 units per vial is essentially a copy of the HCG 10,000 units/vial.

AGREED CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Board has jurisdiction over this matter and over the Respondent pursuant to 59 O.S. §§ 353.7 and 353.26.

2. Any Finding of Fact which is properly a Conclusion of Law is hereby incorporated by reference and vice versa.

3. Respondent has neither admitted nor denied violating OAC 535:15-10-53(a) by compounding a drug preparation that is commercially available in the marketplace or that is essentially a copy of an available FDA-approved drug product, as set forth in Counts 1 through 372 of the First Amended Complaint.

4. Pursuant to 59 O.S. §353.7(12), for any registrant who violates any provision of the Oklahoma Pharmacy Act including the Board's rules, the Board has authority to levy fines not to exceed Three Thousand Dollars ($3000.00) for each violation; to reprimand, place on probation or suspend or revoke the license of a licensee; to require extra hours of continuing education and to require participation in a rehabilitation program for the impaired. The Board may also impose as part of any disciplinary action the payment of costs expended by the Board for any legal fees and costs, including, but not limited to, staff time, salary and travel expense, witness fees and attorney fees.

AGREED ORDER

1. Respondent, Empower Pharmacy, a non-resident pharmacy in the State of Oklahoma and holder of non-resident pharmacy license number 99-7594, neither admits nor denies guilt on all Three Hundred Seventy-two (372) Counts. In order to resolve this dispute outside of a hearing on the merits, however, Respondent agrees as follows:

2. Respondent is hereby fined One Hundred and no/100 Dollars ($100.00) for each Count 1 through 372 of the Complaint for a total fine on said Counts 1 through 372 of Thirty-seven Thousand Two Hundred and no/1 00 Dollars ($37,200.00).

3. The total amount of fines due from Respondent is Thirty-seven Thousand Two Hundred and no/1 00 Dollars ($37,200.00). This fine is due on June 13, 2018.

4. This Agreed Order is not considered "discipline" by the Board, but instead is a deferral of the same pending a probationary period of two years. After a period of two years, any discipline by the Board shall be suspended unless Respondent has violated this Agreed Order, or any Oklahoma Board of Pharmacy rule. This deferred penalty is intended to ensure continued compliance with the Oklahoma Board of Pharmacy rules.

5. Failure of Respondent to abide by any of the terms of this Agreed Order could result in disciplinary action as allowed by the Oklahoma Pharmacy Act or the Board's rules.

6. The Board retains jurisdiction over the instant case until all matters are finally resolved as set forth in this Order.

All participating members vote "Aye".

Notification of Stipulation and Consent Order for Informal Disposition

Empower Pharmacy entered into a Stipulation and Consent Order for Informal Disposition with the Idaho State Board of Pharmacy regarding allegations involving Empower Pharmacy's filling of prescriptions for three patients from an out-of-state prescriber that allegedly did not attain appropriate licensure from the Idaho Medical Board as defined in the Idaho Telehealth Access Act, and allegedly did not have the requisite prescriber-patient relationship prior to issuing a prescription.

In the attached Stipulation and Consent Order for Informal Disposition with Idaho, Empower did not admit or deny violating any law or the Board's rules. The Informal Disposition also does not constitute a restriction on Empower's pharmacy license, and, most importantly, the Informal Disposition is not considered discipline in Idaho. The Idaho State Board of Pharmacy also refrained from taking administrative or other action against Empower for the alleged conduct. Although the disposition with the Idaho State Board of Pharmacy is not considered discipline or a restriction on Empower's license we hereby inform you, out of an abundance of caution given diverse reporting requirements of state boards, of the attached Informal Disposition.

Please note, this Stipulation and Consent Order for Informal Disposition was included and communicated to The Nevada State Board of Pharmacy on 10/25/2019 regarding a new Out-of-State Pharmacy License application. The Board questioned Empower regarding this Stipulation and Consent Order for Informal Disposition during the Board's scheduled license approval meeting and had no concerns once explained, and our new Out-of-State Pharmacy License (PH04169) was approved on 12/16/2019.

BEFORE THE BOARD OF PHARMACY

STATE OF IDAHO

In the Matter of the License of: EMPOWER PHARMACY, Mail Service Pharmacy License No. 36411MS, Respondent.	)	Case No. BOP 18-053 STIPULATION AND CONSENT ORDER FOR INFORMAL DISPOSITION: I.C. § 67-5241(1) ("Stipulation")

WHEREAS, information has been received by the Idaho Board of Pharmacy ("Board") that could constitute grounds for the initiation of an administrative case against Empower Pharmacy ("Respondent"); and,

WHEREAS, the Parties wish to expeditiously settle this matter of possible administrative violations relating to non-resident pharmacies dispensing controlled substances to Idaho residents, by Informal Disposition pursuant to Idaho Code § 67-5241(1);

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED between the undersigned Parties that this matter shall be settled and resolved upon the following terms:

A. JURISDICTION OF THE BOARD

1. The Board may regulate the practice of pharmacy in the state of Idaho in accordance with title 54, chapter 17, Idaho Code. The Board is further empowered by title 37, chapter 27, Idaho Code, to administer the regulating provisions of the Uniform Controlled Substances Act in the state of Idaho.

2. Respondent is a licensee of the Board and holds Mail Service Pharmacy License No. 36411MS. Respondent's license is subject to the provisions of title 54, chapter 17, Idaho

Code, title 37, chapter 27, Idaho Code, and the Board's rules promulgated at IDAPA 27.01.01, et seq.

B. STIPULATED FACTS

1. Board staff's review of the PMP reports and records provided by Respondent revealed the following:

A. Idaho resident D.B. received from Respondent delivery of four (4) prescriptions fills for testosterone, a Schedule III controlled substance, which were issued in December 2016 through October 2017, by prescriber, J.S., located in Tampa, Florida.

B. Idaho resident J.S. received delivery of four (4) prescription fills for testosterone from Respondent, which were issued in October 2016 through September 2017 by prescriber, J.S., located in Tampa, Florida.

C. Idaho resident J.H. received delivery of six (6) prescription fills for testosterone from Respondent, which were issued in December 2016 through February 2018 by prescriber, J.S., located in Tampa, Florida.

2. Allegations arose from concerns of the Board that Respondent issued prescription drugs, including Schedule III controlled substances, to the above three (3) patients, based upon prescriptions which may have been invalid, the patients not having been seen in a face-to-face encounter by prescriber, J.S., in accordance with 21 U.S.C. § 829(e) prior to prescribing, and the prescriber not having been in compliance with the Idaho Telehealth Access Act, Title 54, Chapter 56, Idaho Code. Specifically, Idaho Code § 54-5703(4) requires telehealth providers to be licensed in the state of Idaho; Idaho Code § 54-5707(1) requires telehealth providers to have an established provider-patient relationship in order to issue prescription drug orders; and Idaho Code § 54-5705 requires two-way audio and visual interaction between the provider and patient.

In addition, 21 U.S.C. § 802(54) states that if telemedicine is being practiced, the patient must be in the presence of an onsite practitioner who possesses a valid DEA controlled substance registration and state license, and Idaho Code § 37-2716(a) requires the distant provider to hold a state controlled substance registration in the state where the patient is located.

3. Respondent asserts that the prescriber, J.S., advised Respondent that he had seen these three (3) patients in Florida, prior to prescribing for them, in accordance with 21 U.S.C. § 829(e).

4. Respondent admits that its business practices are subject to the following statutes and rules: Idaho Code §§ 54-1726(1)(f) and (2), 54-1728(1)(f) and (2), 37-2718(a)(4), 37-2719(c), 37-2722(c), 37-2723, 37-2730A(2), 37-2733(a)(1); and IDAPA 27.01.01.110 and 27.01.01.501.

5. Without Respondent admitting or denying that facts support a basis for discipline, and in lieu thereof, the Parties agree to an Informal Disposition pursuant to Idaho Code § 67-5241(1), as settlement and compromise, which shall not be deemed admitting to any acts or omissions which may be alleged, and Respondent agrees, the Board may enter its final Order as set forth in Section C below.

C. STIPULATED, AGREED SETTLEMENT

1. Respondent shall pay a monetary sum of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000).

2. This monetary sum shall become payable after the Board approves and executes its Order approving this Settlement, to be paid to the Board within 180 days of the date the Order is executed.

3. Commencing the date the Stipulation is executed by the Board, Respondent shall verify that all prescribers issuing prescriptions to Idaho residents to be filled by Respondent shall have the required prescriber licenses and controlled substance registrations which allow the prescribers to issue prescriptions to Idaho residents. Documentation of such verifications shall be retained by Respondent for two years from the date they are obtained and shall be provided to the Board upon its written request.

4. Further, Respondent shall designate a representative of its management to whom the Board may direct its communications and inquiries and who shall be responsible for responding to such inquiries. This representative shall be designated in writing within thirty (30) days of the date the Order incorporating this Stipulation is executed.

5. Failure to comply with any of the terms of this Stipulation may result in administrative action being taken against Respondent's mail service pharmacy license.

6. All costs associated with Respondent's compliance with the terms of this Stipulation shall be borne solely by Respondent. Nothing relating to this Stipulation shall be considered a restriction of Respondent's licensure.

D. COMPLIANCE WITH STIPULATION

1. The Board has authority to enforce compliance with the terms and conditions of this Stipulation. By signing this Stipulation, Respondent waives its ability to challenge the Board's lack of authority of its Order upon appeal to a district court. Thereafter, if there shall be reason to believe Respondent may have violated any terms or conditions of this Stipulation, the Executive Director of the Board may file an administrative complaint, setting forth the allegations of non-compliance and notifying Respondent that Respondent may request a hearing regarding the allegations of non-compliance. If Respondent does not request a hearing on such administrative complaint, any allegations of non-compliance may be deemed admitted.

2. If Respondent fails to comply with this Stipulation, Respondent's license may then be subject to discipline, up to and including suspension or revocation. Accordingly, the Board retains jurisdiction over this proceeding, until all matters are finally resolved, as set forth in this Stipulation.

3. Any additional costs and/or attorney fees incurred by the Board in any future enforcement action based upon any allegation of this Stipulation shall be borne solely by Respondent.

E. ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND WAIVER OF RIGHTS

Respondent, by signature of its authorized representative hereto, hereby acknowledges the following:

1. The Board has jurisdiction to proceed in this matter.

2. Respondent has read the above Stipulation fully and has had the opportunity to review it with legal counsel. Respondent understands and acknowledges that, by its terms, it is waiving certain rights provided under Idaho law.

3. Respondent acknowledges that, should the Board have brought a formal complaint in this matter, Respondent would have had certain rights, including but not limited to: the right to a full and complete hearing, pursuant to the Idaho Administrative Procedure Act; the right to confront and to cross examine witnesses; the right to present evidence, to call witnesses and to testify on its own behalf; the right to administrative reconsideration; the right to appeal any findings to the district court; and, any and other rights provided pursuant to the Idaho Administrative Procedure Act, statutes and rules governing the practice of pharmacy in Idaho, and otherwise as may be applicable pursuant to law. By entering into this Stipulation, Respondent agrees to forgo such rights and process and to waive same as part of the resolution of any allegations which may obtain.

4. Respondent understands that in signing this Stipulation, it agrees to the above terms without further process.

5. Respondent understands that, if approved as proposed, the Board shall execute and issue this Stipulation and Consent Order for Informal Disposition: I.C. § 67-5241(1) ("Stipulation"), according to the aforementioned terms, and Respondent agrees to the above Stipulation for settlement of all allegations, which allegations are contested and which Respondent denies. If the Board approves this Stipulation subject to changes, and those changes are acceptable to Respondent, Respondent acknowledges the Stipulation shall take effect, and an order modifying the terms of the Stipulation shall be issued. If the changes are unacceptable, or the Board rejects this Stipulation, this Stipulation shall be of no force or effect. Admissions in this Stipulation and negotiations preceding the signing of this Stipulation shall not be admissible at any subsequent administrative hearing.

6. In the event this Stipulation is rejected by the Board, or any changes proposed by the Board are not accepted, Respondent waives any right it may have to challenge the Board's impartiality to hear the allegations in any subsequent administrative proceedings, based on that the Board had considered and rejected this Stipulation.

7. Respondent understands the Board shall have the right to make full disclosure of this Stipulation to any state, agency or individual requesting information subject to any applicable provisions of the Idaho Public Records Act, title 9, chapter 3, Idaho Code.

8. Respondent understands this Stipulation and Consent Order is the resolution of a contested case and is a public record.

9. This Stipulation contains the entire agreement between the Parties, and Respondent is not relying on any other agreement or representation of any kind, verbal or otherwise.

10. This Stipulation shall be presented by the Executive Director of the Board and the Deputy Attorney General responsible for this matter to the Board with a recommendation for approval at the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board.

11. Except for Paragraph E.6., which becomes effective when Respondent signs this Stipulation, this Stipulation shall not become effective, until it has been approved by a majority of the Board, and a Board member signs the attached Order.

12. Each Party shall bear its own costs and fees associated with this matter.

Re: Phamacy licenses IB03806 and IB03728

Good evening,

We are writing in regards to NRS 639.220 3. (a) which states that a person may not act as managing pharmacist for more than one licensed pharmacy. A waiver may be granted by the Board to the mananging pharmacist of a pharmacy located in a hospital with fewer than 100 beds.

We are requesting a waiver to allow Kodilichi Izuora (license #18081) the ability to manage 2 hospitals – Dignity – St. Rose Dominican North Las Vegas Campus (license # IB03806) and Dignity – St. Rose Domincian Flamingo Campus (license # IB03728). Change in managing pharmacist forms were submitted to the Board on 03/24/21. Previously, a waiver was granted allowing our former managing pharmacist, Emmanuel Ebo (license #07325), the ability to manage our 4 hospistals. Each hospital has 8 licensed inpatient beds, meeting the fewer than 100 bed requirement for the waiver.

Thank you very much for your assistance and please let us know if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Tamarah S. Walker, PharmD (license #19318)

Dear Nevada State Board of Pharmacy Members,

I am submitting this letter of request to provide medication consultation services to patients suffering from nausea and vomiting in pregnancy, ranging from Morning Sickness to Hyperemesis Gravidarum (HG).

As a pharmacist educated in safe use of medications during pregnancy, certified in interpreting pharmacogenetic test results, and a board member of the HER Foundation thoroughly trained in our clinical resources (www.hyperemesis.org), I would like to offer education, personalized medication recommendations and patient advocacy to the pregnant women reaching out to me for help.

Without any FDA approved medications for HG and symptoms often dismissed by providers, patients are left to suffer on their own, relying on repeated visits to emergency rooms for rehydration at a cost of over $2.5 billion annually. HG is a leading cause of hospital admissions due to pregnancy, and consequences from untreated HG are vast including preeclampsia, preterm labor and premature birth. There are also profound mental health implications from isolation and months of malnutrition. Many women lose their jobs and then terminate out of desperation. Tragically, some lose their lives and that of their baby(ies) when left untreated, contributing to the increasing rate of maternal mortality in the United States. Much of these complications are preventable with proper support, nutrition and medication.

Following are the details required per NAC 639.403 sections (a) through (k) to request permission to offer medication consultations outside of a traditional pharmacy:

a. Name of pharmacist: Danielle Plummer, PharmD

b. Description of the services pharmacist intends to provide at the site:
   i. Patient education on disease state and treatment options
   ii. Practitioner education on disease state and treatment options
   iii. Pharmacogenetic Consultations
   iv. Personalized medication and nutrition recommendations
   v. Patient advocacy to enhance communication between patients, providers and family members

   Services will be provided to women suffering from Morning Sickness and Hyperemesis Gravidarum. Initial patient assessments include a full health history (allergies, medications, vaccines and pertinent lab results), details on current and past pregnancies, a HELP (HyperEmesis Level Prediction) score assessment to determine severity of disease, discussion on patient's pregnancy desires and goals to reach the desired state. A plan of care will then be created based on the HER Foundation Treatment Algorithm, pharmacogenetic test results (if completed) and availability of medications available on the patient's insurance formulary along with financial considerations. Private consultations are completed one to two times weekly based on need, and group support is available daily. Education will be provided as to when to go to the emergency room for IV therapy and how to advocate for necessary therapy. Educational materials, printed or electronic, for patients as well as practitioners will be distributed as needed.

   Two options for services are available:

   1. A six-week education and support program
   2. Medication education and recommendations as needs change throughout the pregnancy

   Goals include: decreasing the persistent feeling of being helpless, increasing nutrition to prevent complications, understanding steps to be be taken seriously by medical providers, eliminating fear of medications causing birth defects, having support of your loved ones, returning to work

c. The location at which the pharmacist will provide the services:

   All telehealth visits will happen at my office: 9064 Dove River Rd. Las Vegas, NV 89134

(d) An identification of the types of patients or other persons to whom the pharmacist intends to provide the services:
Pregnant women with severe nausea and vomiting.

(e) An identification of the types of pharmacies or other entities to whom the pharmacist intends to provide the services:
HG Clinical Solutions partners with the HER Foundation to provide medication education.

(f) A description of all resources, both paper and electronic, that will be available to the pharmacist in the course of providing the services;
All patient records are kept in a HIPAA compliant EHR called DocStation. Resources available to the pharmacist include Medscape, Epocrates, GlobalRPh, Pharmacist's Letter, Her Foundation Clinical Tools (www.hyperemesis.org/tools) and other evidence-based sources.

(g) The days and hours during which the pharmacist intends to provide the services;
Consultations are by appointment only. Live group support sessions will be provided online twice per week. Day and time of sessions are to-be-determined. Patient advocacy will be offered remotely based on the patient's needs.

(h) An explanation of the policy of the pharmacist for users of the services when the pharmacist is unavailable;
Private consultations are by appointment only. Patients can have questions answered daily through a private online support group. Patients are instructed to call their primary care doctor or use emergency services when necessary.

(i) An explanation of the policy of the pharmacist regarding the confidentiality and security of the patient data that will be gathered, made and maintained as part of the services which are provided, including, without limitation, paper and electronic records;
All patient records are kept in a HIPAA compliant EHR called DocStation.

(j) Whether the services provided will be affiliated with, an adjunct of or otherwise related to a licensed pharmacy; and Services provided will not be affiliated with a licensed pharmacy.

(k) A description of the business plan for the services provided:

HG is "a potentially life-threatening pregnancy disease that may cause weight loss, malnutrition, dehydration, and debility due to severe nausea and/or vomiting, and may cause long-term health issues for mother and baby(ies)." Complications from the chronic dehydration and malnutrition caused by HG are vast and when not treated properly can be fatal for mom and/or baby. Hundreds of thousands of women who are suffering from this debilitating disease often have their symptoms dismissed by the medical community. While women wait to see their obstetrician or midwife, medical help is sought at emergency rooms whose practitioners are not trained in treating HG. There is a great need to educate providers on the seriousness of the disease state and what treatment options are available. Women from all around the world are desperate for treatment options and to be taken seriously by the medical community.

Respondent.	/

I, ADAM P. KATSCHKE, R.Ph., acting by and through my counsel, Daniel Albregts, Esq., wish to voluntarily surrender my Nevada Pharmacist License, Certificate of Registration No. 15601, in lieu of other possible administrative discipline. To that end, I voluntarily and knowingly admit as follows:

1. I am registered as a pharmacist in the State of Nevada, and I was so registered at the time of the conduct described in the Notice of Intended Action and Accusation ("Accusation") on file in the above captioned matter, and as summarized herein, and I am, therefore, subject to the jurisdiction of the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy ("Board").

2. That on or about September 9, 2016, the Board filed the Accusation, pursuant to NRS 639.233B.127(3) and NRS 639.241, alleging six causes of action against me, each relating to the unlawful possession, diversion, or dispensing of controlled substances and/or dangerous drugs, or to fraudulent acts relating to controlled substances and/or dangerous drugs.

3. I admit that if this matter had proceeded to a hearing, Board Staff, through its counsel, may have presented evidence, through the testimony of witnesses and through the admission of documentary evidence, sufficient to prove the allegations in the Accusation.

4. Rather than spend the time and incur the potential costs associated with such a hearing, and in lieu of other possible disciplinary action by the Board, I choose to voluntarily surrender my Nevada pharmacist license.

5. I admit the factual allegations in the Accusation, if proven at a hearing, would constitute grounds for discipline as alleged in the First Cause of Action. The alleged conduct constitutes a violation NRS 454.311 ("[a] person who knowingly . . . [f]ills a prescription which is not genuine . . . is guilty of a category E felony . . . .") and NRS 454.221(1) (it is unlawful to "furnish[sic] any dangerous drug [to another person] . . . unless the dangerous drug was obtained originally by a legal prescription.") Those violations are grounds for discipline, including suspension or revocation of a pharmacist license, per NRS 639.210(7).

6. I admit the factual allegations in the Accusation, if proven at a hearing, would constitute grounds for discipline as alleged in the Second Cause of Action. That conduct constitutes a violation of NRS 453.331(1)(b) ("[i]t is unlawful for a person knowingly or intentionally to . . . . [u]se in the course of the manufacture or distribution of a controlled substance a registration number which is . . . issued to another person") and NRS 453.331(1)(f) (it is "unlawful for a person to knowingly or intentionally . . . [s]ign the name of . . . another person on any prescription for a controlled substance or falsely make, alter, forge, utter, publish or pass, as genuine, any prescription for a controlled substance.") Those violations constitute felonies (NRS 453.331(2)), and are thus grounds on which the Board may revoke or suspend any license or registration it issued.

7. I admit the factual allegations in the Accusation, if proven at a hearing, would constitute grounds for discipline as alleged in the Third Cause of Action. That conduct constitutes violations of NRS 639.210(1), (4) and (12), and is therefore grounds on which the Board may revoke or suspend any license or registration it issued.

8. I admit the factual allegations in the Accusation, if proven at a hearing, would constitute grounds for discipline as alleged in the Fourth Cause of Action. I pleaded guilty to Insurance Fraud, a category D felony in violation of NRS 686A.2815, and to Submitting False Claims: Medicaid Fraud, a category D felony in violation of NRS 422.540, in a criminal action (Case No. CR071016). That plea constitutes the conviction of a felony relating to a license issued pursuant to NRS Chapter 639, or other crime involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption. (See NRS 639.006.) That conviction is grounds on which the Board may revoke or suspend any license or registration it issued. See NRS 639.210(7).

9. I admit the factual allegations in the Accusation, if proven at a hearing, would constitute grounds for discipline as alleged in the Fifth Cause of Action. I pleaded guilty to Submitting False Claims: Medicaid Fraud, a category D felony in violation of NRS 422.540, in a criminal action (Case No. CR071016). That conduct—submitting charges and claims that are false to the State and its political subdivisions, namely Medicaid—constitutes the violation of NRS 639.2815 as well. That conduct is therefore grounds for discipline against my pharmacist license pursuant NRS 639.210, up to, and including, suspension or revocation of that license.

10. I admit the factual allegations in the Accusation, if proven at a hearing, would constitute grounds for discipline as alleged in the Sixth Cause of Action. As the owner and managing pharmacist of Meadow Valley Pharmacy, I knowingly allowed violations of Nevada State Law as alleged in the Accusation. Those violations are grounds for discipline against my pharmacist license pursuant to NRS 639.210(15), up to, and including, suspension or revocation of that license.

11. As a result of the forgoing, I agree to sell my entire interest in Meadow Valley Pharmacy and its associated remote pharmacy, Pahrangat Valley Pharmacy, according to the requirements set forth in paragraphs 17 through 20 of the Voluntary Surrender of Registration/Certificate in Lieu of other Disciplinary Action I entered into with the Board simultaneously with the instant agreement.

12. I agree to pay an administrative fee of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) to partially offset the Board's investigative and administrative costs associated with investigating and prosecuting this action. I agree to pay that administrative fee by cashier's check or certified check or money order made payable to "Nevada State Board of Pharmacy," to be received by the Board's Reno office located at 431 W. Plumb Lane, Reno, Nevada 89509, within thirty (30) days of the Board's acceptance of this agreement, as indicated by the Board President's signature on the attached Order.

13. I am aware of, understand, and have been advised by my counsel of the effect of this Voluntary Surrender.

14. I have read this Voluntary Surrender and I fully understand and acknowledge its facts and terms.

15. I am aware that I have certain constitutional rights, including:

a. I have the right to hire an attorney to represent me in this proceeding;

b. I have the right to demand a hearing on the charges against me, and I can require the Board Staff to prove the allegations;

c. I have the right to cross-examine the witnesses against me;

d. I have the right to call witnesses to provide evidence in my own behalf; and

e. I have other rights accorded to me under Nevada Revised Statutes Chapters 233B, and 6329. Also, I have rights accorded to me under Nevada Administrative Code Chapter 639.

v.
ADAM KATSCHKE, RPH	NOTICE OF INTENDED ACTION
Certificate of Registration No. 15601,	AND ACCUSATION
ANGELA WALKER, PT
Certificate of Registration No. PT06113, and MEADOW VALLEY PHARMACY
Certificate of Registration No. PHN01728, Respondents.

Larry L. Pinson, in his official capacity as Executive Secretary of the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy, makes the following that will serve as both a notice of intended action under Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 233B.127(3), and as an accusation under NRS 639.241.

I.

The Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over this matter and these respondents because at all times relevant to the allegations and events alleged herein, Respondent ADAM PAUL KATSCHKE, R.Ph. (Mr. Katschke), Certificate of Registration No. 15601, was a pharmacist registered with the Board; Respondent ANGELA WALKER, PT (Ms. Walker), Certificate of Registration No. PT06113, was a registered pharmaceutical technician with the Board; and Respondent MEADOW VALLEY PHARMACY (Meadow Valley Pharmacy), Certificate of Registration No. PHN01728, held a pharmacy license issued by the Board.

II.

In March 2015, Board Staff received a complaint that Mr. Katschke, Angela Walker and Meadow Valley Pharmacy (collectively referred to herein as the "Pharmacy") were unlawfully dispensing cream based pain medications to patients in Caliente, Nevada, and the surrounding areas, and fraudulently billing those patients' insurers.

III.

The products at issue here are compounded creams containing Ketamine, a Schedule III controlled substance used at times to treat pain, and/or Ketoprofen, a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory dangerous drug. The products are referred to collectively herein as "Pain Cream".

IV.

During the course of a joint investigation involving investigators from the Board and from the Nevada State Board of Medical Examiners (BME), Angela Walker admitted verbally and in writing to various activities that violate Nevada statutes and/or regulations.

V.

Ms. Walker is a pharmaceutical technician. She is not a licensed pharmacist, although she has claimed to be the pharmacy manager.

VI.

Ms. Walker marketed Pain Cream to residents of Caliente, Nevada, and the surrounding areas, by offering those patients samples of the Pain Cream and soliciting orders for tubes of the medication.

VII.

When a patient showed interest in obtaining additional Pain Cream, Ms. Walker's practice was to represent to them that their insurance would pay for the medication and that the Pharmacy would waive the patient's co-pay.

VIII.

Ms. Walker would then contact, or claim to contact, one of four prescribers—Dr. Katschke (Mr. Katschke's brother), Dr. Luedeman, Dr. Rogers or Mr. Anderson, PA—to request approval to process a "prescription" and provide the patient with additional Pain Cream.

IX.

It eventually became the Pharmacy's practice to attribute prescriptions for Pain Cream to one of those four prescribers without the prescriber's knowledge or consent, thereby falsely representing that a prescriber had issued a valid prescription.

X.

The Pharmacy used those prescriber's DEA numbers without their knowledge or consent.

XI.

The Pharmacy initially used Ketamine powder to compound the Pain Cream. Once a provider(s) ceased to pay for Ketamine powder, the Pharmacy switched to billing the insurance companies for Ketamine tablets, but continued to compound using the powder.

XII.

The tablet form of Ketamine is more expensive, and thus merits a higher reimbursement, than Ketamine powder.

XIII.

According to Ms. Walker, most patients liked and wanted the Pain Cream until they saw the amount the Pharmacy billed their insurers for the compounded medication.

XIV.

Many times the Pharmacy billed multiple patients' insurers for Pain Cream, but did not make or dispense Pain Cream to the patients.

XV.

The Pharmacy often billed patients' insurers for the Pain Cream without the patients' knowledge.

XVI.

At times, the Pharmacy billed insurers for Pain Cream prescriptions for each member of entire families, including children, and including Ms. Walker's family, for Pain Cream without the patients' knowledge, without a prescription and at times without dispensing any medication.

XVII.

Most of the employees for the Pharmacy allowed the Pharmacy to bill their insurance carriers for Pain Cream that the Pharmacy did not dispense.

XVIII.

The Pharmacy's practice was to refill patients' Pain Cream "prescriptions" until the patient asked the Pharmacy to stop.

XIX.

Per Ms. Walker's verbal and written statements, Mr. Katschke knew and consented to the Pharmacy's activities. He knew that the Pharmacy billed insurers for products the Pharmacy never compounded or dispensed.

XX.

According to Ms. Walker, the Pharmacy paid her commissions of approximately $100,000 in 2014, resulting from her Pain Cream sales.

XXI.

Ms. Walker maintains that the Pharmacy did not compensate any of the above named prescribers for the prescriptions the Pharmacy attributed to them.

XXII.

During the Board and the BME's joint investigation, Ms. Katschke corroborated many of Ms. Walker's statements and likewise admitted to activities that violate Nevada statutes and/or regulations.

XXIII.

Mr. Katschke is a licensed pharmacist, the sole owner of the Pharmacy and the pharmacy manager of Meadow Valley Pharmacy.

XXIV.

After obtaining training from Professional Compounding Centers of America (PCCA) in non-sterile compounding, Mr. Katschke, through the Pharmacy, began marketing Pain Cream to patients by contacting them, providing a "sample" and offering to obtain a prescription for more Pain Cream.

XXV.

Mr. Katschke knew that the Pharmacy was attributing prescriptions for Pain Cream to Dr. Katschke, Dr. Luedeman, Dr. Rogers and/or Mr. Anderson without their knowledge.

XXVI.

Mr. Katschke maintains that the prescribers were not aware of the prescriptions the Pharmacy processed using their names and DEA numbers.

XXVII.

The Pharmacy often did not verify that a doctor/patient relationship existed between the patient and the prescriber to whom the Pharmacy attributed many Pain Cream prescriptions.

XXVIII.

Mr. Katschke was aware that the Pharmacy was billing many prescriptions for Pain Cream without valid prescriptions.

XXIX.

Mr. Katschke was aware that the Pharmacy was not compounding many of the Pain Cream prescriptions that it billed to insurers.

XXX.

Mr. Katschke knew that the Pharmacy was billing insurers for products that the Pharmacy did not dispense.

XXXI.

The Pharmacy paid Ms. Walker a commission of three percent (3%) of the money paid by insurers for the compounded Medication.

XXXII.

Mr. Katschke stated that in 2014, the Pharmacy paid Ms. Walker a salary of approximately sixty thousand dollars ($60,000), resulting in payments to her in excess of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) in combined salary and commissions.

XXXIII.

Each prescriber, through his counsel, provided statements affirming that the majority of the Pain Cream prescriptions the Pharmacy filled using their names and DEA numbers were not authorized by the prescriber and fraudulent.

XXXIV.

In July 2016, Nevada Attorney General Adam Laxalt charged Mr. Katschke with one count of Insurance Fraud in violation of NRS 686A.2815(2), and one count of Submitting False Claim: Medicaid Fraud, in violation of NRS 422.540(1) and 422.540(2)(a). In August 2016, Mr. Katschke signed a Memorandum of Plea Negotiations (Memorandum) pleading guilty to those criminal charges.

XXXV.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(All Respondents – Felony: Dangerous Drugs)

"A person who knowingly . . . [f]ills a prescription which is not genuine . . . is guilty of a category E felony . . . ." See NRS 454.311. Similarly, it is a category D felony in Nevada for a person to "furnish[sic] any dangerous drug [to another person] . . . unless the dangerous drug was obtained originally by a legal prescription." NRS 454.221(1). If a person is guilty of a felony relating to a license or registration he or she holds pursuant to NRS Chapter 639, or other crime involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption, that is grounds on which the Board may revoke or suspend any license or registration it issued. See NRS 639.210(7). By admitting to dispensing Pain Cream containing Ketoprofen, a dangerous drug, without the knowledge or consent of either the indicated prescriber or the indicated patient, and thus without a prescription, Respondents Mr. Katschke, Ms. Walker and Meadow Valley Pharmacy, and each of them, is guilty of violating NRS 454.311 and NRS 454.221(1). Those violations are grounds for discipline, including suspension or revocation, of each Respondent's license or registration. (See NRS 639.210(7) and NRS 639.255.

XXXVI.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(All Respondents – Felony: Controlled Substances)

"It is unlawful for a person knowingly or intentionally to . . . . [u]se in the course of the manufacture or distribution of a controlled substance a registration number which is . . . issued to another person." NRS 453.331(1)(b). It is also "unlawful for a person to knowingly or intentionally . . . [s]ign the name of . . . another person on any prescription for a controlled substance or falsely make, alter, forge, utter, publish or pass, as genuine, any prescription for a controlled substance." NRS 453.331(1)(f).

"A person who violates [NRS 453.331] is guilty of a category C felony . . . ." NRS 453.331(2). If a person is guilty of a felony relating to a license or registration he or she holds pursuant to NRS Chapter 639, or other crime involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption. that is grounds on which the Board may revoke or suspend any license or registration it issued. See NRS 639.210(7).

By admitting to dispensing medicated Pain Cream containing Ketamine, a Schedule III controlled substance, using the names and DEA numbers of the prescribers identified above, without the knowledge, consent or a genuine prescription from the prescriber. Respondents Mr. Katschke, Ms. Walker and Meadow Valley Pharmacy, and each of them, is guilty of violating NRS 453.331(1)(b) and (f). Per NRS 453.331(2), those violations constitute a category C felony, and are grounds for discipline against each respondent's license or registration pursuant to NRS 639.210(7) and or NRS 639.255.

XXXVII.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
(All Respondents – Felony: Controlled Substances)

> The Board may suspend or revoke any certificate, license, registration or permit issued pursuant to this chapter . . . if the holder . . . :
> 1. Is not of good moral character;
> . . . .
> 4. Is guilty of unprofessional conduct or conduct contrary to the public interest;
> 12. Has violated, attempted to violate, assisted or abetted in the violation of or conspired to violate any of the provisions of this chapter or any law or regulation relating to drugs, the manufacture or distribution of drugs or the practice of pharmacy, or has knowingly permitted, allowed, condoned or failed to report a violation of any of the provisions of this chapter or any law or regulation relating to drugs, the manufacture or distribution of drugs or the practice of pharmacy committed by the holder of a certificate, license, registration or permit;

NRS 639.210. Black's Law Dictionary defines the phrase "good moral character", in part, as:

> [a] pattern of behavior that is consistent with the community's current ethical standards and that shows an absence of deceit or morally reprehensible conduct .... A pattern of behavior conforming to a profession's ethical standards and showing an absence of moral turpitude. Good moral character is usu[ally] a requirement of persons applying to practice a profession such as law or medicine.

BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 714 (8th ed. 2000). Unprofessional conduct includes:

> Supplying or diverting drugs, biologicals, medicines, substances or devices which are legally sold in pharmacies or by wholesalers, so that unqualified persons can circumvent any law pertaining to the legal sale of such articles (NAC 639.945(g)), and "[p]erforming or in any way being a party to any fraudulent or deceitful practice or transaction" (NAC 639.945(h)).

By admitting to dispensing medicated Pain Cream containing a dangerous drug and/or a controlled substance, namely Ketamine and/or Ketoprofen, without a prescription, and fraudulently billing insurers for those "prescriptions" without actually dispensing any product to the patient named on the "prescription" and bill, Mr. Katschke, Ms. Walker and Meadow Valley Pharmacy, and each of them, have demonstrated grounds pursuant to NRS 639.210(1), (4) and (12) to discipline, including revoking or suspending, their respective licenses or registrations.

XXXVIII.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

(Adam Katschke – Felony: Insurance Fraud and Medicaid Fraud)

If a person is convicted of a felony relating to a license he holds pursuant to NRS Chapter 639, or other crime involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption, that conviction is grounds on which the Board may revoke or suspend any license or registration it issued. See NRS 639.210(7). By pleading guilty to Insurance Fraud, a category D felony in violation of NRS 686A.2815, and to Submitting False Claims: Medicaid Fraud, a category D felony in violation of NRS 422.540, Respondent Adam Katschke has been convicted of a felony relating to his pharmacist license, as well as crimes involving moral turpitude, dishonesty and corruption. See NRS 639.006. Mr. Katschke's convictions are therefore grounds for discipline against his pharmacist license pursuant to NRS 639.210 and/or NRS 639.255, up to, and including, suspension or revocation.

XXXIX.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

(Adam Katschke – False Claims: NRS 639.2815)

> A pharmacist or practitioner who knowingly submits to the State or any of its political subdivisions or any agent thereof, a charge or claim for drugs or medical supplies furnished to or for a person receiving medical care under any program of public assistance, which is false or which is in excess of any amount established by law or regulations adopted by the Department of Health and > Human Services or by the governing body of any political subdivision, as the price or fee for the furnishing of those drugs or medical supplies, is guilty of a category D felony . . . .

NRS 639.2815.

Respondent Mr. Katschke pleaded guilty to Submitting False Claims: Medicaid Fraud, a category D felony in violation of NRS 422.540, in the Criminal Action. (Case No. CR071016.) In doing so, Mr. Katschke admitted to knowingly submitting charges and claims that are false to the State and its political subdivisions, namely Medicaid, which actions violate NRS 639.2815. Those actions are grounds for discipline against Mr. Katschke's pharmacist license, up to, and including, suspension or revocation, pursuant to NRS 639.210(7) and/or NRS 255.

XL.

SIXTH CAUSE OF ACTION

(Adam Katschke – Managing Pharmacist Responsibilities)

"The Board may suspend or revoke any . . . license. . . issued pursuant to this chapter . . . if the holder . . . [h]as, as a managing pharmacist . . . has knowingly allowed a violation of any provision of this chapter or other state or federal laws or regulations relating to the practice of pharmacy by personnel of the pharmacy under his or her supervision." NRS 639.210(15). Mr. Katschke, as the owner and managing pharmacist of the Pharmacy, knowingly allowed the violations of Nevada State Law as alleged in the foregoing paragraphs. Mr. Katschke's pharmacist license is therefore subject to discipline, including suspension or revocation, pursuant to NRS 639.210 and/or NRS 639.255.

WHEREFORE, it is requested that the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy take appropriate disciplinary action with respect to the certificate of registration of this respondent.

Signed this 9th day of September, 2016.

4. Discipline

A.	Adam Katschke, R.Ph	(15-017-RPH-S)
B.	Angela Walker, PT	(15-017-PT-S)
C.	Meadow Valley Pharmacy	(15-017-PH-S

Dan Albregts was present as counsel representing Adam Katschke and Meadow Valley Pharmacy.

Mr. Edwards stated that Angela Walker was not present. He explained that the set of facts is common for all three cases.

Mr. Edwards explained that Board Staff received a complaint in March 2015, that Mr. Katschke, Ms. Walker and Meadow Valley Pharmacy were illegally dispensing ketamine and ketoprofen cream to patients in Caliente, NV. Mr. Edwards stated that Ms. Walker, pharmacy technician, claimed to be the pharmacy manager and marketed the pain cream to patients by offering samples and soliciting prescriptions for tubes of medication. If a patient showed interest in buying more pain cream Ms. Walker would tell them that their insurance would cover the medication and the pharmacy would waive any copays. Initially Ms. Walker would contact physicians to solicit prescriptions on behalf of the patients, but eventually the pharmacy began to falsify prescriptions and attribute the fake prescriptions to prescribers without the prescriber's knowledge. The pharmacy initially used ketamine powder to compound the pain cream. Once the insurance companies started to reject payments for the ketamine powder the pharmacy billed insurance for ketamine tablets, but continued to use ketamine powder for compounding.

Mr. Edwards explained that during this time, Mr. Katschke was the sole owner of Meadow Valley Pharmacy and a registered pharmacist. He is also the owner of Pahranagat Pharmacy. Mr. Katschke was aware of the actions Ms. Walker was doing, and Meadow Valley Pharmacy paid Ms. Walker a commission of 3% of the money paid by insurance. Ms. Walker made somewhere between $100,000 and $200,000 during 2015. In July 2016, the Nevada Attorney General's Office charged Mr. Katschke with one count of insurance fraud, submitting false claims and Medicaid fraud. Mr. Katschke pleaded guilty to those criminal charges.

Mr. Edwards stated that Causes of Action 1 through 3 applied to all Respondents, and the Causes of Action 4 through 6 apply to Mr. Katschke.

Mr. Albregts agreed with Mr. Edwards description of the case.

Mr. Edwards presented a Stipulation and Order regarding the Mr. Katschke and Meadow Valley Pharmacy. Those Respondents admit that evidence exists to establish a basis for the violations alleged in the Accusation.

Mr. Katschke shall surrender his Nevada Pharmacist License, pay an administrative fee of $10,000 and sell both Meadow Valley Pharmacy and Pahranagat pharmacy.

Meadow Valley Pharmacy shall surrender its Nevada Pharmacy License, Trent Decker shall be the new managing pharmacist, and Pahranagat Pharmacy will surrender its Pharmacy License within 90 days or at point-of-sale. Adam Katschke is not allowed access to the pharmacy and any proposed new owners will appear at the December or January Board meeting.

Mr. Albregts added that additional fees and restitutions are being paid to the Nevada Attorney General's Office to cover their investigation costs. He anticipated the pharmacy sale to be complete prior to January.

Mr. Edwards stated that there are restrictions on the pharmacy sale and explained that the pharmacy could not be owned by Mr. Katschke's immediate family.

Mr. Albregts urged the Board to accept the Stipulation and Order.

Board Action:

Motion: Jason Penrod moved to accept the Stipulation and Order regarding Adam Katschke as presented.

Second: Cheryl Blomstrom

Action: Passed unanimously

Tallie Pederson recused due to her employment with Walgreens.

Darla Zarley disclosed that Stephan Cho was a former student, but stated that she would be able to participate in this matter fairly and without bias.

Michael Lesser, Stephan Cho and Jaclyn Latteri, Walgreens District Manager, appeared and were sworn by President Basch prior to answering questions or offering testimony.

Bill Stilling was present as counsel representing the Respondents.

Mr. Stilling stated that Nicole Cramer, pharmaceutical technician, was present in the audience. Ms. Cramer was subpoenaed for her involvement in this case.

Mr. Edwards explained this case involves two errors on the same patient with the same medication. He stated that in July 2015, the patient's pediatrician prescribed a quantity of thirty (30) montelukast 4 mg. chewable tablets with 6 refills. In February 2016, Walgreens processed an automatic refill for this prescription. The patient's mother picked up the prescription. Upon opening the bottle, she realized the tablets were square rather than the rectangular tablets she was accustomed to for her son's montelukast 4 mg. chewable tablets. She discovered that the prescription was filled for montelukast 5 mg. chewable tablets instead of montelukast 4 mg. tablets a prescribed. Her son and his twin brother each ingested two tablets of the erred medication with no reported adverse effects. Mr. Lesser filled the prescription and performed final product verification of the product. He failed to detect that the bottle contained the incorrect medication.

Mr. Edwards stated that on March 15, 2016, the pediatrician wrote a new prescription for the same patient for 30 montelukast 4 mg. chewable tablets with 6 refills. The patient's mother picked up the medication and again discovered that the tablets were square rather than rectangular. Walgreens again dispensed montelukast 5 mg. chewable tablets rather than the montelukast 4 mg. chewable tablets as prescribed. Pharmacy records show Ms. Cramer correctly performed data entry which was verified remotely at a Walgreens' Central Facility in Florida, but pharmacy security video shows Ms. Cramer filled the prescription with the incorrect 5 mg. dosage and manually entering in the NDC when the stock bottle failed to scan. Mr. Cho performed final product verification and counseling. Mr. Cho did not detect the error.

Mr. Edwards presented a Stipulation and Order regarding the Respondents. The Respondents admit that evidence exists to establish a basis for the violations alleged in the Accusation.

Hello Mark,
Thank you for the phone call the other day and for the Board's attention to my matter. I have attached several documents for the review of the Board in my case. The first form is a copy of my original sentence; pages 2-4 are what I received from the parole board while incarcerated; and the last page is what I received from Parole and Probation when my sentence had expired. Pages 2-4 are dark because they were given to me on yellow carbon copy paper.

If I may, I would like to give a brief synopsis of the documents. I entered into a plea deal and was sentenced in January of 2017. The first page shows what my crimes were and what sentence was expected. I plead to one count of insurance fraud and one count of Medicaid fraud. The judge sentenced me to two counts of 12-48 months to be served concurrently. My earliest parole date was June of 2017. The next three pages show the decision of the parole board - I was to receive parole but not until January of 2018. The final page shows the end of my parole in November 2018.

I spent approximately one year in custody of NDOC and ten months on parole. The first two months of my sentence were spent in High Desert State Prison in Indian Springs, NV, and the rest of my sentence was spent in Ely Conservation Camp. In Ely, it is a work camp and there is a full-time teacher. I was eventually assigned to be his Education Clerk, where I was able to assist inmates in working towards their GED and High School Diploma. There were many who were able to receive those certificates while I was there. I do not want to talk a lot about my time in prison but am willing to answer any questions that the board may have.

I did take a plea for my case. I would like to clarify some of the situations in regards to my plea. At the time of the fraud occurring in Meadow Valley Pharmacy, I had hired a pharmacy manager and two full-time pharmacists to run the business. I was a county commissioner and had several other small businesses that my wife and I ran. Of the two pharmacists, I should have chosen one to be the Managing Pharmacist. Unfortunately, with their bickering and hurt feelings over who should be in that position, I left myself as the managing pharmacist. I also had several family members in leadership positions in our community. As I still claim that I did not participate in fraudulent activities or ask that anyone else commit fraud, I felt responsible as the owner of the pharmacy. I hired legal counsel with the idea of making things right. As the judge and AG's office saw it, I was the "mastermind". I was way too busy in my life and was extremely neglectful of my duties and obligations in the pharmacy. I rarely came to work due to my schedule. Although I felt that I was wrongfully sentenced and convicted, I served the time and took my lumps. I have learned a lot about trust and responsibility as a result of my time away from pharmacy.
I am respectfully requesting to be allowed to obtain my license once again, but the Board should know that even if I receive my Pharmacy License, it will be an uphill battle for me. As I accepted a Medicaid Fraud Plea (although total Medicaid sales were only $30,000 over 3 years), I have now added myself to the OIG watchlist. This means that nobody can hire me if they process Medicare or Medicaid prescriptions. It will be nearly impossible to gain employment. I also have an Insurance Fraud conviction, which means that until the year 2023, any employer would have to acknowledge that fact and would not receive certain insurance contracts because of me. I am primarily applying for licensure to be able to stay prepared for the future, if an when these items go away. I would like to be able to do CE and keep more up-to-date with clinical and pharmacy issues. Eventually, I would like to work again in my area of expertise and education.
Thank you for the opportunity to come before the Board. Please direct any questions to me that you would like answered. There is obviously a lot of details and other items left out in order to keep this as brief as possible. Thank you. ADAM

The undersigned, ADAM PAUL LAXALT, Attorney General of the State of Nevada, by and through his Deputies, RONDA CLIFTON and ANDREW SCHULKE, in the name and by the authority of the State of Nevada, informs the above-entitled court that ADAM PAUL KATSCHKE, the defendant above named, has committed the offenses of:

COUNT I

INSURANCE FRAUD

(Category D Felony - NRS 686A.2815(2))

DEFENDANT ADAM PAUL KATSCHKE, on or about November 14, 2013, to on or about April 9, 2015, within the County of Lincoln, State of Nevada, did knowingly, willfully and unlawfully present or cause to be presented statements as part of, or in support of, claims for payment or other benefits under policies of insurance licensed by this state, known by him to conceal or omit facts, or contain false or misleading information concerning any fact material to those claims, to wit: DEFENDANT, a pharmacist, and owner of Meadow Valley Pharmacy, submitted claims or caused claims to be filed with numerous insurance companies of recipients for compound medication. DEFENDANT knowingly, willfully and unlawfully provided false information in support of claims resulting in voluminous amounts of compounds being billed to insurance companies that were not prescribed by a physician and/or were not requested by the recipients, and in many instances, the compounds were never received by the recipients.

COUNT II

SUBMITTING FALSE CLAIMS: MEDICAID FRAUD

(Category D Felony - NRS 422.540(1) and 422.540(2)(a))

DEFENDANT ADAM PAUL KATSCHKE, through a scheme or continuous course of conduct, intentionally caused claims to be made for payment from Medicaid that DEFENDANT knew were false, to wit:

From on or about April 2013 to April 2015, DEFENDANT, a pharmacist and owner of Meadow Valley Pharmacy, did knowingly maintain fictitious documentation, including prescriptions, for products allegedly provided to Medicaid recipients. The documentation was used to generate false bills/claims submitted for reimbursement from Medicaid. The documentation maintained by DEFENDANT to substantiate the Medicaid claims was false as many of DEFENDANT'S records did not note the actual quantity or products allegedly provided to the Medicaid recipients. Also, the Medicaid recipients denied that they had received the amount of products allegedly provided by DEFENDANT.

All of which was committed in the County of Lincoln, aggregating an amount in excess of $650.00, and constitutes a category D felony in violation of NRS 422.540.

Hello, everyone. Kris had asked me to put in writing some of the details of my parole and sentencing.

As you may know, the investigation into the practices at my pharmacy started in March or April of 2015. I was a County Commissioner and also ran several small businesses with my wife. I spent very little time at the pharmacy, except for the bills and bookkeeping. I made the mistake of leaving myself as the managing pharmacist, although I had hired two pharmacists to work at Meadow Valley Pharmacy. As there was a lot of discontent among those two pharmacists as to who should be the managing pharmacist, I decided to keep myself as the PIC.

The fraud that took place was done by my store manager at the time. She was called my co-defendant, but it is not a term that I agree with. The pharmacists that I had in place never talked to me about things that may seem amiss and I trusted wholly that my store manager was doing things correctly. When I would conduct small internal audits, she and the pharmacists would always produce the required documentation (valid prescriptions, patient signatures, etc). I did not look further into the things going on until the investigation started. It was then that I realized what had been going on. As the owner, I felt that the correct action would be to take a plea and try to make everything right. My attorney was not good at telling me what some of the consequences would be in the long term. The investigation went on for almost two years, and I was sentenced in January of 2017.

Although there was an offer on the table, the judge and deputy attorney general decided that they should be able to argue for prison time. I was sentenced to two prison terms of 12-48months to run concurrently. I was ordered to pay $1.6 million in fees and restitution. The attorney general knew that I did not have that money, as they investigated all of my bank accounts. There was never $5million in fraud as they suggested The $5million was total sales over three years.

When I was released from prison in 2018, I spent 10 months on parole. My parole officer said that I needed to pay some restitution and fees. He also stated that the attorney general's office did not want it paid to them (it is normally paid to them to be given back to the companies that were wronged). Instead, I paid $500-$1000/month to Parole and Probation. It was a situation that my parole office had never heard of and they did not know what to do with the money paid to them. As I ended my parole, the parole office said that I was done paying and knew that it could not be paid in full. They said that the AG still did not want to have anything to do with the restitution and that their jurisdiction was done. I received a Dishonorable Discharge from parole for not being able to pay all of the fees. The Dishonorable Discharge will follow me forever. If I ever am arrested, it will be automatic jail or prison time, no probation.

I also took a plea for Medicaid Fraud and Medicaid billing was only about $30,000 over three years. I am now on the OIG watch list for 18 years because of that deal that my lawyer orchestrated. I cannot work for anyone that bills Medicare or Medicaid until I am off of that list.

The deputy AG that tried my case was also a federal prosecutor and I was threatened with federal court if I did not take a plea (due to Medicaid fraud). My attorney was also a federal defense attorney and, shortly after my release, he was appointed as a federal magistrate. His office never returned my case documents, and said that they did not think that it would matter. The majority of my paperwork was with him and is most likely destroyed. I have given the copies of what I have to you all.

I still stand by the fact that I did not commit fraud; I did not ask anyone to commit fraud; and I did not tell anyone to commit fraud. I did serve the prison time for the fraud that took place. I was denied parole after five months and ended up serving a total of 12 months in prison. I do stand by the fact that I was wrong in keeping myself as the PIC and not overseeing the day-to-day operations of my pharmacy. It has changed my life and my family's life. My family was on Medicaid for a year and is now on 90% subsidy with the Affordable Healthcare Act. If there was money anywhere, the AG would have recouped that for restitution. I took a plea because of the wrongs that happened. I take full responsibility for my actions. I made many mistakes in the two years leading up to the investigation. My lapse in judgement had cost me my career and lifetime consequences. I am applying for my license in order to continue the process of rebuilding my life and family. I do not have job prospects and will likely just do my CE to keep my license up-to-date until I am ready to continue with the pharmacy profession. I most likely will not be offered any jobs due to my OIG status, but I will work to rectify that part next.

Please do not hesitate to contact me with any other questions. ADAM

Mr. Katschke,

I left you a voicemail regarding this matter as well. We are looking for proof of payment for your fines and fees. You recently sent Mark Sedar Criminal Information regarding case CR0717016. There was no Judgement and Sentence attached to that. Also, did you have any other hearings in other jurisdictions. If so we will need all documentation of those as well along with proof of payment/completion of any Orders.

KD 7. The parties hereto fully and completely understand and agree that by entering into a plea agreement, the defendant consents to judicial fact finding by preponderance of the evidence as to any aspect or enhancement of sentence and that any sentence either stipulated to or recommended herein in paragraph two is not binding on the court. In making the sentencing determination, the court is not bound by the rules of evidence. The State's participation in this plea agreement is conditional upon the Court's acceptance its terms conditions or provisions. If after accepting this plea the court concludes that any of the plea agreement's terms conditions or provisions regarding the sentence or any other aspect of this plea agreement are inappropriate, it can reject the plea. If the court decides to reject any of the plea agreement's terms conditions or provisions, it must give both the state and the Defendant an opportunity to withdraw from the plea agreement. State of Arizona v. Kamo Danielian, CR2014-158850-001-DT

Superior Court Criminal Division RCCT3

Sentencing Date: February 25, 2015

Sentencing Judge:	James Rummage	Prosecutor:	Benjamin Tate, DCA
PSI Officer:	Karen Vaniman	Defense Counsel:	Kristi Setzer, LA

Present Offense:

The following information is summarized from the Form IV Release Questionnaire Probable Cause Statement related to Phoenix Police Departmental Report #201402176128:

On December 13, 2014, Kamo Danielian utilized a social networking website to offer marijuana for sale. Mr. Danielian agreed to sell twenty-two grams of marijuana to an undercover officer for $200.00. The details of the transaction and a meeting place were negotiated via cellular telephone. Officers contacted Mr. Danielian when he arrived at the meeting place, and there was a strong odor of marijuana detected. Mr. Danielian admitted he was in possession of marijuana. The marijuana was located on the floorboard of Mr. Danielian's vehicle, along with an electronic scale. Another scale was located near the front passenger seat, and Mr. Danielian was in possession of the cellular phone used to negotiate the transaction.

Sentencing Considerations:

Number of Prior Felony Convictions:	0
Prior Drug/Alcohol Treatment:	No
Drug Court/DUI Court Eligible:	No Sales offenses are not eligible for Drug Court.
Identification Status:	ICE has been notified of the defendant's presence in Arizona. A request for legal status was sent on February 4, 2015. ICE records indicate the defendant is a United States Citizen. The defendant has provided documentation verifying his identity in the form of an Arizona Driver License.
Mandatory Financial Assessment:	• Technical Registration Fund in the total amount of $15.00. • Probation Assessment in the total amount of $20.00. • Penalty Assessment A.R.S. 12-116.04 (Investigating Agency: Phoenix PD) in the total amount of $13.00.

The Superior Court of Arizona in Maricopa County – Adult Probation Department
Chief Probation Officer Barbara A. Broderick

State of Arizona v. Kamo Danielian, CR2014-158850-001-DT

Probation Available:	Yes
Assessed Risk Level per Offender Screening Tool (OST):	Medium-Low Risk

Additional Considerations:

- The defendant was interviewed by a presentence screener. He stated he got involved with the wrong people. He was working with a friend who had this "app" where he was texting people. His friend told him to download the "app" so they could both use it at the same time. His friend told him there was a guy who wanted something and offered him money for helping him out. The defendant thought it could not hurt, so he went ahead and did it. The guy turned out to be a cop. He does not know if his friend set him up. Regarding sentencing, the defendant will accept whatever the Judge thinks is fair. He does not think the maximum probation is fair due to this being his first offense. He has to take time off of school until probation is done because they do background checks, and if he has a felony, he cannot go to school.
- The defendant is currently employed part-time as a telemarketer with Krasiva. He also works as a caregiver for his grandparents. He reported a monthly income of $800.00 and monthly expenses totaling $1,483.00. He believes he will be able to pay up to $65.00 a month toward Court-ordered fees.
- The defendant reported he drinks alcohol occasionally, but not to the point of intoxication. He denied ever using any illegal drugs.
- The defendant has no prior convictions. Considering the nature of the present offense, a term of supervised probation appears appropriate.

Plea Agreement Considerations:

- None.

Recommendation:

It is respectfully recommended that the offense remain undesignated and that the defendant be granted two year(s) supervised probation to begin on February 25, 2015. Abide by the following additional conditions:

Condition #15 I will be financially responsible by paying all restitution, fines, and fees in my case as imposed by the Court. I understand, if I do not pay restitution in full, the Court may extend my probation.

15b. Probation Service Fee of $65.00 per month.
15d. Drug Fine of $750.00
Plus a surcharge of 83 percent, in the total amount of $1,372.50 in payments of $10.00 per month.
15r. Probation Assessment in the total amount of $20.00.

PLEA AGREEMENT

7. The parties hereto fully and completely understand and agree that by entering into a plea agreement, the defendant consents to judicial fact finding by preponderance of the evidence as to any aspect or enhancement of sentence and that any sentence either stipulated to or recommended herein in paragraph two is not binding on the court. In making the sentencing determination, the court is not bound by the rules of evidence. The State's participation in this plea agreement is conditional upon the Court's acceptance its terms conditions or provisions. If after accepting this plea the court concludes that any of the plee agreement's terms conditions or provisions regarding the sentence or any other aspect of this plea agreement are inappropriate, it can reject the plea. If the court decides to reject any of the plea agreement's terms conditions or provisions, it must give both the state and the Defendant an opportunity to withdraw from the plea agreement. Should the Court reject this plea agreement, or the State withdraws from the agreement, the Defendant hereby waives all claims of double jeopardy and all original charges will automatically be reinstated. The Defendant in such case waives and gives up his right to a probable cause determination on the original charges.

8. If the court decides to reject the plea agreement provisions regarding sentencing and neither the State nor the Defendant elects to withdraw the plea agreement, then any sentence either stipulated to or recommended herein in paragraph 2 is not binding upon the court, and the court is bound only by the sentencing limits set forth in paragraph 1 and the applicable statutes.

9. This plea agreement in no way affects any forfeiture proceedings pursuant to A.R.S. §13-4301 et seq., §13-2314, or §32-1993, if applicable, nor does the plea agreement in any way compromise or abrogate any civil actions, including actions pursuant to A.R.S. §13-2301 et seq. or §13-4301 et seq., or the provisions of A.R.S. §13-2314 or A.R.S. §13-4310.

10. I understand that if I am not a citizen or if I am a naturalized citizen of the United States that my decision to go to trial or enter into a plea agreement may have immigration consequences. Specifically, I understand that pleading guilty or no contest to a crime may affect my immigration status. Admitting guilt may result in deportation even if the charge is later dismissed. My plea or admission of guilt could result in my deportation or removal, could prevent me from ever being able to get legal status in the United States, or could prevent me from becoming a United States citizen. I understand that I am not required to disclose my legal status in the United States to the court.

11. I have read and understand the provisions of pages one, two, and three of this agreement. I have discussed the case and my constitutional rights with my lawyer. My lawyer has explained the nature of the charge(s) and the elements of the crime(s) to which I am pleading. I understand that by pleading GUILTY I will be waiving and giving up my right to a determination of probable cause, to a trial by jury to determine guilt and to determine any fact used to impose a sentence within the range stated above in paragraph one, to confront, cross-examine, compel the attendance of witnesses, to present evidence in my behalf, my right to remain silent, my privilege against self-incrimination, presumption of innocence and right to appeal. I agree to enter my plea as indicated above on the terms and conditions set forth herein. I fully understand that if, as part of this plea agreement, I am granted probation by the court, the terms and conditions thereof are subject to modification at any time during the period of probation. I understand that if I violate any of the written conditions of my probation, my probation may be terminated and I can be sentenced to any term or terms stated above in paragraph one, without limitation.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have known Kamo Danielian and his family for over 10 years. Ever since I can remember he was always a good child. My family and I were always on good terms with Kamo and his family. Kamo told me that any time I needed anything to just ask and he has always stood by his word. He is a very knowledgeable man and it is always a pleasure talking to him. I have always spent a lot of time with Kamo's grandparents and they too are very nice people. Every time I speak to Kamo's grandfather and grandmother, they always bring up something about Kamo. It seems like Kamo means the world to them. When Kamo's grandmother invites me over for dinner, she has some amazing cooking recipes and is always a good time. They always talk about his schooling and how proud they are of him and everything he accomplished. Kamo is the first of his family to graduate college and pursue further education. Everyone makes mistakes and I hope that this one does not affect Kamo's hopes and dreams along with his grandparents.

Character Letter for Kamo Danielian

To Whom It May Concern

I was initially impressed with Kamo Danielian's enthusiasm, cleverness and professionalism when I first met him 13 years ago in our apartment complex. I was neighbors with Kamo Danielian and his family for a little over 12 years. During this time we met and throughout his life growing up we always had a positive relationship. I have always seen him walking around with his grandfather and playing chess with him as well. I felt that as neighbors, there were not any problems during their time living in the apartments. I would always play video games with Kamo and his younger brother (Leon Danielian) throughout their stay at the apartments.

I also noticed that Kamo was always exceling in his schooling; his ability to do well in school has always been spectacular. I was amazed at how he managed to juggle school, work, and a job all at the same and still succeed. I have heard that he has recently shown success in a rigorous accelerated 3-year pharmacy program as well.

With all these previous life experiences, I feel that Kamo Danielian has always had a positive effect on me and everyone around him.

Sincerely,

Brian

Kamo Danielian's Character Letter:

Ever since Kamo's mother and younger brother moved in next to us, we have always been on good terms. We now this young men for eleven years, and we saw them growing, going to school, etc. Kamo wanted to be tennis pro. The longer Kamo and his mother lived near us, the more and more we have gotten to know them. We knew Kamo's mother and father had a very bad divorce when Kamo and his brother were both very young. Kamo has told me that his father would always talk bad about his mother and vice versa. We were always surprised how Kamo could stay in a neutral standpoint between both of his parents and not favor one over the other. Kamo would always help his mother during her hard times and the same with his father. With each parent talking so bad about the other, it was very strong of Kamo to not choose a side and help both of his parents during their times of need. Both Kamo's mother and father were not raised in this country and had a very hard time to adjusting to the life here. Kamo's mother and father have a very old school mentality about life and would always turn to Kamo for the simplest things. We were very shocked to hear about the recent news with Kamo's father. We hope everything works out for him and his family.

Court members:

I am writing this for my son Kamo Danielian. My son Kamo has helped me tremendously from work, school, and relocating around Phoenix. He is always a positive person and tries to help out others in any way he can. After his DUI, he has changed and started to drink less even when we all came together as family and attend parties/events. I believe that this DUI has changed the way he behaves and acts around everyone. Kamo has also went back to school, graduated and passed his board exams and now is looking for a job. He is on the right path for success and deserves to have this honor. Please take my words into consideration when making a decision for his set aside.

Thank you,

Olga Danielian

To Whom It May Concern,

I have known Kamo Danielian professionally since January of 2015 when he first joined our team of caregivers. He has been working for us ever since and we have not had any problems with his employment. He is always responsible with getting his requirements for employment done (CPR certifications, sending in time sheets in a timely manner, CEU credit completions, etc..). During the quarterly checkups we have for him, his members are very grateful to have his caregiving services. He has a flexible schedule and is an open minded person. Kamo Danielian has an excellent reputation with people of all ages from the elderly to his peers and is able to connect with them and inspire them to put forth their best efforts. He is organized and never misses any deadlines at work. I recommend to set aside his past so his future would not be so tainted.

You can file the notice of post-conviction relief before you leave the courtroom on the day you are sentenced if you wish.

RESPONSE TO MOTION TO MODIFY PROBATION

(Assigned to the Honorable James R Rummage, Div. RCCT3)

The State of Arizona, by and through undersigned counsel, hereby responds to Defendant's Motion to Modify and resists Defendant's request. Defendant entered into a plea agreement wherein he stipulated to being placed on supervised probation. Defendant, at this point, has been on probation for approximately one month. Defendant's probation grant by the Court was for 9 months. The State respectfully submits that considering the nature of the offense (a marijuana sale incident) that both the supervision and length of probation should remain unchanged given how short a time period Defendant has presently been on probation.

PETITION FOR EARLY TERMINATION OF PROBATION OR UNSUPERVISED PROBATION

The defendant was formally judged guilty of the crime of COUNT 1: SOLICITATION TO COMMIT POSSESSION OF MARIJUANA FOR SALE, A CLASS 6 UNDESIGNATED FELONY.

Probation Start Date: 02/25/2015 Prob. Length: 9 month(s) Standard

It is respectfully recommended that the defendant's probation be terminated for the following reasons:
The defendant has credit for 44 earned time credit days as of April 30, 2015. That would put his discharge charge date from probation at October 12, 2015.

The defendant's performance on probation thus far makes him eligible for an early termination of probation. He paid court monies in full, submitted to six negative drug tests, maintained stable employment and residence and reported as directed. The defendant attends pharmacy school in Massachusetts and he would like to terminate from probation to be able to return there and attend school. It is respectfully recommended that probation in this cause be early terminated.

It is recommended the offense be designated a misdemeanor.

THE STATE OF ARIZONA, Plaintiff, vs. KAMO DANIELIAN, Defendant.	CR2014-158850-001 STATE'S RESPONSE TO ADULT PROBATION OFFICE'S PETITION FOR EARLY TERMINATION OF PROBATION OR MODIFICATION TO UNSUPERVISED PROBATION AND RECOMMENDATION FOR MISDEMEANOR DESIGNATION (Assigned to the Honorable James Rummage)

Pursuant to Arizona Rule of Criminal Procedure 27.3, the State of Arizona, by and through undersigned counsel, hereby responds to the Adult Probation Office's Petition for Early Termination of Probation and recommendation for misdemeanor designation. The State objects to both for the following reasons:

The defendant was charged with, among other things, 2 counts of Sale or Transportation of Marijuana, both Class 3 Felonies. He pled to Solicitation to Commit Possession of Marijuana for Sale, a Class 6 Undesignated Felony. The defendant was afforded a supervised probation grant of 9 months on 02/25/2015.

This offense involved sale of marijuana. Illegal drugs contribute to the degradation of our community. Given the serious nature of the drug trade, continued supervision is imperative to protect against re-offending.

The defendant has greater than six months left in his original probation grant. The defendant is on probation to ensure rehabilitation and community safety. Terminating probation at this time increases the likelihood of recidivism and jeopardizes the community.

In addition, the defendant was given the benefit of having the offense remain undesignated and should serve the remainder of the term to earn the designation of the offense as a misdemeanor.

For the reasons stated above, the State objects to early termination of this defendant's probation at this time and respectfully requests this Court affirm the defendant's current

Defendant Kamo Danielian, by and through undersigned counsel, hereby requests this Court to set aside his judgment of guilt, restore her civil rights and restore his right to possess or carry a gun or firearm pursuant to A.R.S. §§ 13-907, 13-912 and 13-905. MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. Factual and Procedural History

On February 25, 2015, Mr. Danielian pled guilty to Solicitation to Commit Possession of Marijuana for Sale a Class 6 Felony, pursuant to a plea agreement. On the same date, Mr. Danielian was sentenced to one (9) months of supervised probation. On May 8, 2015, Mr. Danielian was successfully discharged from probation.

Since being discharged from probation, Mr. Danielian has maintained employment and a stable residence. Mr. Danielian has significant community support. Furthermore, it appears that Mr. Danielian has remained law-abiding since his conviction in this matter. It appears that the event which led to the conviction in this matter was an isolated situation as Mr. Danielian has exhibited no similar behavior since being discharged from probation.

Ms. Danielian now wants to finally close this uncharacteristic chapter of his life by requesting that this honorable court set aside the judgment of guilt in this matter. Mr. Danielian has been a law-abiding, hard-working, and successful man since the offense date in this matter. He has fully completed all of his obligations in the underlying matter and wishes to ensure that his civil rights are restored.

II. Legal Standard

Every person convicted of a criminal offense may, upon fulfillment of the conditions of probation or sentence and discharge by the court, apply to the judge who pronounced sentence or such judge's successor in office to have the judgment of guilt set aside. See, A.R.S. § 13-907(A). If the judge grants the application, the judge shall set aside the judgment of guilt, dismiss the accusations or information and order that the person be released from all penalties and disabilities resulting from the conviction. See, Id.

Maasen Law Firm

Scottsdale, AZ 85255
P: (480) 778-1500 | F: (480) 778-0514

Upon completion of the term of probation, or upon absolute discharge from imprisonment, and upon the completion of payment of any fine or restitution imposed, any person who has not previously been convicted of any other felony shall automatically be restored any civil rights which were lost or suspended by the conviction. A.R.S. § 13-912(A). Further, a person who has been discharged from probation may have any civil rights which were lost or suspended by the felony conviction restored. See A.R.S. § 13-905 (B).

III. Argument

Defendant realizes he made a serious mistake when he committed the current offense. He accepted responsibility and pled guilty. As far as counsel is aware, this case represents the only adult criminal convictions Mr. Danielian has suffered during his lifetime. He has complied with and completed all the terms of his probation.

As described above, Mr. Danielian has remained law-abiding since committing the current offenses. Additionally, Mr. Danielian has the support of family and friends and presents virtually no risk to re-offend. Mr. Danielian has demonstrated he is a stable, contributing member of society. Removal of this conviction from Mr. Danielian record will enable him to put this in his past and move on with his life. Based on his exceptional performance thus far, Counsel respectfully requests that the Court set aside the judgment of guilty pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-907.

IV. Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Defendant Kamo Danielian respectfully requests that this Court set aside his judgments of conviction pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-907, to restore his civil rights pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-912, and restore his right to possess or carry a gun or firearm pursuant to A.R.S § 13-905.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. Factual and Procedural History

On February 25, 2015, Mr. Danielian pled guilty to Solicitation to Commit Possession of Marijuana for Sale a Class 6 Felony, pursuant to a plea agreement. On the same date, Mr. Danielian was sentenced to nine (9) months of supervised probation. On May 8, 2015, Mr. Danielian was successfully discharged from probation. Mr. Danielian filed a previous motion to set aside the conviction and restore his civil rights and right to possess a firearm on December 15, 2015 but was denied due to Mr. Danielian having a past-due balance on probation fees. Mr. Danielian has completed payment of all of his fees as of this date.

Since being discharged from probation, Mr. Danielian has maintained employment and a stable residence. Mr. Danielian has significant community support. Furthermore, it appears that Mr. Danielian has remained law-abiding since his conviction in this matter. It appears that the event which led to the conviction in this matter was an isolated situation as Mr. Danielian has exhibited no similar behavior since being discharged from probation.

Ms. Danielian now wants to finally close this uncharacteristic chapter of his life by requesting that this honorable court set aside the judgment of guilt in this matter. Mr. Danielian is set to graduate in May, 2016 and wants to ensure he is able to find gainful employment upon completion of his degree. Mr. Danielian has been a law-abiding, hard-working, and successful man since the offense date in this matter. He has fully completed all of his obligations in the underlying matter and wishes to ensure that his civil rights are restored.

II. Legal Standard

Every person convicted of a criminal offense may, upon fulfillment of the conditions of probation or sentence and discharge by the court, apply to the judge who pronounced sentence or such judge's successor in office to have the judgment of guilt set aside. A.R.S. § 13-907(A). If the judge grants the application, the judge shall set aside the judgment of guilt, dismiss the accusations or information and order that the person be released from all penalties and disabilities resulting from the conviction. Id.

Upon completion of the term of probation, or upon absolute discharge from imprisonment, and upon the completion of payment of any fine or restitution imposed, any person who has not previously been convicted of any other felony shall automatically be restored any civil rights which were lost or suspended by the conviction. A.R.S. § 13-912(A). Further, a person who has been discharged from probation may have any civil rights which were lost or suspended by the felony conviction restored. See A.R.S. § 13-905 (B).

III. Argument

Defendant realizes he made a serious mistake when he committed the current offense. He accepted responsibility and pled guilty. As far as counsel is aware, this case represents the only adult criminal convictions Mr. Danielian has suffered during his lifetime. He has complied with and completed all the terms of his probation.

As described above, Mr. Danielian has remained law-abiding since committing the current offenses. Additionally, Mr. Danielian has the support of family and friends and presents virtually no risk to re-offend. Mr. Danielian has demonstrated he is a stable, contributing member of society. Removal of this conviction from Mr. Danielian record will enable him to put this in his past and move on with his life. Based on his exceptional performance thus far, Counsel respectfully requests that the Court set aside the judgment of guilty pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-907.

IV. Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Defendant Kamo Danielian respectfully requests that this Court set aside his judgments of conviction pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-907, to restore his civil rights pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-912, and restore his right to possess or carry a gun or firearm pursuant to A.R.S § 13-905.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. Factual and Procedural History

On February 25, 2015, Mr. Danielian pled guilty to Solicitation to Commit Possession of Marijuana for Sale a Class 6 Felony, pursuant to a plea agreement. On the same date, Mr. Danielian was sentenced to nine (9) months of supervised probation. On May 8, 2015, Mr. Danielian was successfully discharged from probation. Mr. Danielian filed a previous motion to set aside the conviction and restore his civil rights and right to possess a firearm on December 15, 2015 but was denied due to Mr. Danielian having a past-due balance on probation fees. Mr. Danielian has completed payment of all of his fees as of this date. Mr. Danielian filed a subsequent motion on March 8, 2016, which was also denied due to close proximity to probation discharge date.

Since being discharged from probation, Mr. Danielian has graduated from Pharmacy School, where he earned his Pharm-D degree. Mr. Danielian has maintained employment throughout and since completing school, and is currently employed as a caregiver while he seeks employment as a pharmacist. Mr. Danielian is a responsible, hard-working caregiver with a compassionate, friendly attitude that his patients adore. (See attached Character Letter from Oliver Fultz). Mr. Danielian worked hard to graduate from pharmacy school and is focused and excited on beginning his new career as a pharmacist, though he will miss the clients and staff at Instant Care of Arizona.

Mr. Danielian has remained law-abiding, has fulfilled all obligations of this Court, and has completed alcohol education classes since his discharge from probation in this matter. Mr. Danielian was obviously very accountable and successful while on probation, as he was discharged at the request of the Adult Probation Department after serving just two months. The APD also requested Mr. Danielian's charge be designated a misdemeanor at that time due to his lack of criminal history, acting out of character in the commission of the offense, and success with reporting to probation and paying fines in an expedient manner.

Mr. Danielian has strong family and community ties and is well-supported by his peers and loved ones. (See attached character letters from family and neighbors). Mr. Danielian remains close to his parents, brother, and grandparents, all of whom share their pride and admiration of Mr. Danielian with others. Mr. Danielian especially enjoys playing video games with his brother and taking walks with his grandfather.

Mr. Danielian has grown immensely as a person and as a professional in his career since the charges in this matter. Mr. Danielian has learned from his mistakes and worked hard to make up for them; he has cut back on the amount of drinking and going out, has excelled in school, and has overall gotten his life back on track. Mr. Danielian has set lofty goals for himself, including moving forward with his career and eventually owning a home. Mr. Danielian has so far faced difficulties in obtaining professional employment as a pharmacist due to his criminal record with this charge. Mr. Danielian has gone above and beyond to demonstrate that he is not the person who made the mistakes in this case, and will never find himself in this position again. Mr. Danielian has a rewarding future ahead of him and wants to begin his journey to that point by putting this case and his past regrets behind him.

II. Legal Standard

Every person convicted of a criminal offense may, upon fulfillment of the conditions of probation or sentence and discharge by the court, apply to the judge who pronounced sentence or such judge's successor in office to have the judgment of guilt set aside. A.R.S. § 13-907(A). If the judge grants the application, the judge shall set aside the judgment of guilt, dismiss the accusations or information and order that the person be released from all penalties and disabilities resulting from the conviction. Id.

Upon completion of the term of probation, or upon absolute discharge from imprisonment, and upon the completion of payment of any fine or restitution imposed, any person who has not previously been convicted of any other felony shall automatically be restored any civil rights which were lost or suspended by the conviction. III. Argument

Mr. Danielian fully accepted responsibility for the choices he made and pled guilty to the charges in this matter. Mr. Danielian was sentenced to a rather short term of probation – 9 months – based on his character and lack of criminal history. Mr. Danielian complied with all requirements of sentencing and probation, and was discharged from probation after only 2 months due to his success, while having his offense designated a misdemeanor. The sentencing Court and APD clearly recognized Mr. Danielian's true character for a man who is smart, thoughtful, compassionate, and genuinely good. Mr. Danielian clearly acted out of character in the commission of the offense in this matter and has not demonstrated any similar behavior since. In fact, Mr. Danielian has done the opposite in working hard to move forward with his life in a positive direction and becoming a pharmacist.

As described above, Mr. Danielian has the support of family and friends and presents virtually no risk to re-offend. Mr. Danielian's career depends on the fact that he never make a similar mistake, and he knows he never will. Mr. Danielian has demonstrated he is a stable, contributing member of society with a positive outlook and bright future. Removal of this conviction from Mr. Danielian record will enable him to put this in his past and move on with his life, and ideally to be able to obtain employment as a full-time pharmacist in the very near future. Based on his exceptional performance thus far, Counsel respectfully requests that the Court set aside the judgment of guilty pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-907.

IV. Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Defendant Kamo Danielian respectfully requests that this Court set aside his judgments of conviction pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-907, to restore his civil rights pursuant to A.R.S. § 13-912, and restore his right to possess or carry a gun or firearm pursuant to A.R.S § 13-905.

REQUIRED INFORMATION FOR ALL TYPES OF OWNERSHIP

An application for an out-of-state pharmacy requires Board approval. Upon receipt of the completed application, documentation and fee, your application will be placed on the agenda of the next regularly scheduled Board meeting. The current board meeting schedule is available on the website under the "Calendar of Upcoming Boards & Committee Meetings".

AN APPEARANCE AT THE BOARD MEETING WILL BE REQUIRED, IF THE PHARMACY INTENDS TO SHIP PARENTERAL PRODUCTS, INCLUDING STERILE COMPOUNDED DRUGS INTO NEVADA. Nevada Administrative Code (NAC) 639.215 provides, "An applicant for a license to operate a pharmacy in the State of Nevada must appear before the board in support of the application and must received instructions relative to the pharmacy laws, if the applicant . . .(c) is applying for the licensure of a pharmacy located outside the state that will be shipping compounded parenteral products into this state.

The purpose is to insure firms will provide a continuum of home parenteral care which has frequently been absent with contract providers of parenteral pharmaceutical products from out-of-state. Our regulation in part will require:

1. A pharmacist, practitioner and nurse must be available at all times for immediate assistance to the patient;
2. The pharmacy must have access to orders for the medication, laboratory tests and other patient treatments; and
3. Documentation that patient assessment has been performed.

Your presence before the board can describe how these services are available and how you fulfill the requirements of the regulations.

The board has a legal right to require an appearance at a schedule board meeting. If an appearance is required, your company will be notified in writing two (2) weeks prior to the meeting.

If you check off-site cognitive services on the application, Nevada Administrative Code 639.4916 requires “A pharmacist who is employed by an off-site pharmaceutical service provide to provide remote chart order processing services to a hospital or correctional institution pursuant to NAC 639.4915 must (a) Be licensed to practice in Nevada.” Provide name and Nevada pharmacist license number. This does not have to be the managing pharmacist.

A license is usually issued and mailed within 15 days from the board meeting date, if approved.

This license is renewed in October of even numbered years, no matter when the license is issued. Fees are not pro-rated.

Please access the applicable laws on the website under “Nevada Statues & Regulations” tab.

If you have any questions, contact the licensing specialist in the Reno office at (775) 850-1440 or by email at pharmacy@pharmacy.nv.gov.

Al,

I was on a call this morning with public health folks and the person representing Nevada was raving about the Board of Pharmacy in Nevada - working with them was a game changer in addressing COVID-19 vaccine administration in their state.

I just wanted you to know - this is a model program nationally.

Pam

For complete guidance, see: https://www.cdc.gov/reproductivehealth/contraception/contraception_guidance.htm. Most contraceptive methods do not protect against sexually transmitted diseases (STDs). Consistent and correct use of the male latex condomreduces the risk of STDs and HIV.

Summary

The 2016 U.S. Medical Eligibility Criteria for Contraceptive Use (U.S. MEC) comprises recommendations for the use of specific contraceptive methods by women and men who have certain characteristics or medical conditions. These recommendations for health care providers were updated by CDC after review of the scientific evidence and consultation with national experts who met in Atlanta, Georgia, during August 26–28, 2015. The information in this report updates the 2010 U.S. MEC (CDC. U.S. medical eligibility criteria for contraceptive use, 2010. MMWR 2010:59 [No. RR-4]). Notable updates include the addition of recommendations for women with cystic fibrosis, women with multiple sclerosis, and women receiving certain psychotropic drugs or St. John's wort; revisions to the recommendations for emergency contraception, including the addition of ulipristal acetate; and revisions to the recommendations for postpartum women; women who are breastfeeding; women with known dyslipidemias, migraine headaches, superficial venous disease, gestational trophoblastic disease, sexually transmitted diseases, and human immunodeficiency virus; and women who are receiving antiretroviral therapy. The recommendations in this report are intended to assist health care providers when they counsel women, men, and couples about contraceptive method choice. Although these recommendations are meant to serve as a source of clinical guidance, health care providers should always consider the individual clinical circumstances of each person seeking family planning services. This report is not intended to be a substitute for professional medical advice for individual patients. Persons should seek advice from their health care providers when considering family planning options.

Introduction

Approximately 45% of all pregnancies that occur in the United States are unintended (1), with associated increased risks for adverse maternal and infant health outcomes (2) and increased health care costs (3). Women, men, and couples have increasing numbers of safe and effective choices for contraceptive methods, including long-acting reversible contraception methods such as intrauterine devices (IUDs) and implants, to reduce the risk for an unintended pregnancy. However, with these expanded options comes the need for evidence-based guidance to help health care providers offer quality family planning care to their patients, including choosing the most appropriate contraceptive method for individual circumstances and using that method correctly, consistently, and continuously to maximize effectiveness.

In 2010, CDC published the first U.S. Medical Eligibility Criteria for Contraceptive Use (U.S. MEC), which provided recommendations on safe use of contraceptive methods for women with various medical conditions and other characteristics (and was adapted from global guidance developed by the World Health Organization [WHO MEC]) (4,5). U.S. MEC is a companion document to the U.S. Selected Practice Recommendations for Contraceptive Use (U.S. SPR), which provides guidance on how to use contraceptive methods safely and effectively once they are deemed to be medically appropriate (6). WHO intended for the global guidance to be used by local or national policy makers, family planning program managers, and the scientific community as a reference when they develop family planning guidance at the country or program level. During 2008–2010, CDC participated in a formal process to adapt the global guidance for appropriateness for use in the United States, which included rigorous identification and critical appraisal of the scientific evidence through systematic reviews, and input from national experts on how to translate that evidence into recommendations for U.S. health care providers (5). At that time, CDC committed to keeping this guidance up to date and based on the best available evidence, with full review every few years (5).

This document updates CDC's U.S. MEC 2010 (5), based on new evidence and input from experts. A summary of changes from U.S. MEC 2010 is provided (Appendix A). Notable updates include the following:

- addition of recommendations for women with cystic fibrosis, women with multiple sclerosis, and women receiving certain psychotropic drugs or St. John's wort
- revisions to the recommendations for emergency contraception, including the addition of ulipristal acetate
- revisions to the recommendations for postpartum women; women who are breastfeeding; women with known dyslipidemias, migraine headaches, superficial venous disease, gestational trophoblastic disease, sexually transmitted diseases (STDs), and human immunodeficiency virus (HIV); and women who are receiving antiretroviral therapy

The goal of these recommendations is to remove unnecessary medical barriers to accessing and using contraception, thereby decreasing the number of unintended pregnancies. These recommendations are meant to serve as a source of clinical guidance for health care providers; health care providers should always consider the individual clinical circumstances of each person seeking family planning services. This report is not intended to be a substitute for professional medical advice for individual patients, who should seek advice from their health care providers when considering family planning options.

Methods

Since publication of U.S. MEC 2010, CDC has monitored the literature for new evidence relevant to the recommendations through the WHO/CDC continuous identification of research evidence (CIRE) system. This system identifies new evidence as it is published and allows WHO and CDC to update systematic reviews and facilitate updates to recommendations as new evidence warrants. Automated searches are run in PubMed weekly, and the results are reviewed. Abstracts that meet specific criteria are added to the web-based CIRE system, which facilitates coordination and peer review of systematic reviews for both WHO and CDC (7). In 2014, CDC reviewed all of the existing recommendations in U.S. MEC 2010 for new evidence identified by CIRE that had the potential to lead to a changed recommendation. During August 27–28, 2014, CDC held a meeting in Atlanta, Georgia, of 11 family planning experts and representatives from partner organizations to solicit their input on the scope of and process for updating both U.S. MEC 2010 and U.S. SPR 2013. The participants were experts in family planning and represented various types of health care providers, as well as health care provider organizations. A list of participants is provided at the end of this report. Meeting participants discussed topics to be addressed in the update of U.S. MEC based on new evidence published since 2010 (identified through the CIRE system), topics addressed at a 2014 WHO meeting to update global guidance, and suggestions CDC received from health care providers for the addition of recommendations for women with medical conditions not yet included in U.S. MEC (e.g., from provider feedback through e-mail, public inquiry, and questions received at conferences). CDC identified several topics to consider when updating the guidance, including revision of existing recommendations for certain medical conditions or characteristics (breastfeeding, postpartum, HIV, receiving antiretroviral therapy, obesity, dyslipidemia, increased risk for STDs, superficial venous thrombosis, gestational trophoblastic disease, and migraine headaches), addition of recommendations for new medical conditions (cystic fibrosis, multiple sclerosis, use of certain psychotropic drugs, and St. John's wort), and addition of recommendations for new contraceptive methods (ulipristal acetate for emergency contraception). CDC determined that all other recommendations in U.S. MEC 2010 were up to date and consistent with the existing body of evidence for that recommendation.

In preparation for a subsequent expert meeting held during August 26–28, 2015, to review the scientific evidence for potential recommendations, CDC staff members and other invited authors listed at the end of this report conducted independent systematic reviews for each of the topics being considered. The purpose of these systematic reviews was to identify direct evidence about the safety of contraceptive method use by women with selected conditions (e.g., risk for disease progression or other adverse health effects in women with multiple sclerosis who use combined hormonal contraceptives [CHCs]). Preferred Reporting Items for Systematic Reviews and Meta-Analyses (PRISMA) guidelines were followed for reporting systematic reviews (8,9), and strength and quality of the evidence were assigned using the system of the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force (10). When direct evidence was limited or not available, indirect evidence (e.g., evidence on surrogate outcomes or among healthy women) and theoretical issues were considered and either added to direct evidence within a systematic review or separately compiled for presentation to the meeting participants. Completed systematic reviews were peer reviewed by two or three experts and then provided to participants before the expert meeting. Reviews are referenced and cited throughout this document; the full reviews appear in the published literature and contain the details of each review, including the systematic review question, literature search protocol, inclusion and exclusion criteria, evidence tables, and quality assessments. CDC staff continued to monitor new evidence identified through the CIRE system during the preparation for the August 2015 meeting.

During August 26–28, 2015, in Atlanta, Georgia, CDC held a meeting with 44 participants who were invited to provide their individual perspectives on the scientific evidence presented and potential recommendations. Twenty-nine of the participants represented a wide range of expertise in family planning provision and research, and included obstetricians/gynecologists, pediatricians, family physicians, nurse practitioners, epidemiologists, and others with research and clinical practice expertise in contraceptive safety, effectiveness, and management; these individuals participated in the entire meeting. Fifteen participants with expertise relevant to specific topics on the meeting agenda provided information and participated in the discussion (e.g., an expert in cystic fibrosis was asked to provide general information about the condition and to assist in interpreting the evidence and any theoretical concerns on the use of contraceptive methods in women with the condition); these participants provided input only during the session for which their topics were discussed. Lists of participants and any potential conflicts of interest are provided at the end of this report. During the meeting, the evidence from the systematic review for each topic was presented, including direct evidence and any indirect evidence or theoretical concerns. Participants provided their perspectives on using the evidence to develop recommendations that would meet the needs of U.S. health care providers. After the meeting, CDC determined the recommendations in this report, taking into consideration the perspectives provided by the meeting participants. Feedback also was received from three external reviewers, composed of health care providers and researchers who had not participated in the update meetings. These reviewers were asked to provide comments on the accuracy, feasibility, and clarity of the recommendations. Areas of research that need additional investigation also were considered during the meeting (11).

How to Use This Document

These recommendations are intended to help health care providers determine the safe use of contraceptive methods among women and men with various characteristics and medical conditions. Providers also can use the information in these recommendations when consulting with women, men, and couples about their selection of contraceptive methods. The tables in this document include recommendations for the use of contraceptive methods by women and men with particular characteristics or medical conditions. Each condition is defined as representing either an individual's characteristics (e.g., age or history of pregnancy) or a known preexisting medical or pathologic condition (e.g., diabetes or hypertension). The recommendations refer to contraceptive methods being used for contraceptive purposes; the recommendations do not consider the use of contraceptive methods for treatment of medical conditions because the eligibility criteria in these situations might differ. The conditions affecting eligibility for the use of each contraceptive method are classified into one of four categories (Box 1).

Using the Categories in Practice

Health care providers can use the eligibility categories when assessing the safety of contraceptive method use for women and men with specific medical conditions or characteristics. Category 1 comprises conditions for which no restrictions exist for use of the contraceptive method. Classification of a method/condition as category 2 indicates the method generally can be used, although careful follow-up might be required. For a method/condition classified as category 3, use of that method usually is not recommended unless other more appropriate methods are not available or acceptable. The severity of the condition and the availability, practicality, and acceptability of alternative methods should be considered, and careful follow-up is required. Hence, provision of a contraceptive method to a woman with a condition classified as category 3 requires careful clinical judgement and access to clinical services. Category 4 comprises conditions that represent an unacceptable health risk if the method is used. For example, a smoker aged <35 years generally can use combined oral contraceptives (COCs) (category 2). However, for a woman aged ≥35 years who smokes <15 cigarettes per day, the use of COCs usually is not recommended unless other methods are not available or acceptable to her (category 3). A woman aged ≥35 years who smokes ≥15 cigarettes per day should not use COCs because of unacceptable health risks, primarily the risk for myocardial infarction and stroke (category 4). The programmatic implications of these categories might depend on the circumstances of particular professional or service organizations. For example, in some settings, a category 3 might mean that a special consultation is warranted.

The recommendations address medical eligibility criteria for the initiation and continued use of all methods evaluated. The issue of continuation criteria is clinically relevant whenever a medical condition develops or worsens during use of a contraceptive method. When the categories differ for initiation and continuation, these differences are noted in the Initiation and Continuation columns. When initiation and continuation are not indicated, the category is the same for initiation and continuation of use.

On the basis of this classification system, the eligibility criteria for initiating and continuing use of a specific contraceptive method are presented in tables (Appendices A–K). In these tables, the first column indicates the condition. Several conditions are divided into subconditions to differentiate between varying types or severity of the condition. The second column classifies the condition for initiation or continuation (or both) into category 1, 2, 3, or 4. For certain conditions, the numeric classification does not adequately capture the recommendation; in these cases, the third column clarifies the numeric category. These clarifications were determined during the discussions of the scientific evidence and are considered a necessary element of the recommendation. The third column also summarizes the evidence for the recommendation if evidence exists. The recommendations for which no evidence is cited are based on expert opinion from either the WHO or U.S. expert meeting in which these recommendations were developed, and might be based on evidence from sources other than systematic reviews. For certain recommendations, additional comments appear in the third column and generally come from the WHO meeting or the U.S. meeting.

Recommendations for Use of Contraceptive Methods

The classifications for whether women with certain medical conditions or characteristics can use specific contraceptive methods are provided for intrauterine contraception, including the copper-containing IUD and levonorgestrel-releasing IUDs (Appendix B); progestin-only contraceptives (POCs), including etonogestrel implants, depot medroxyprogesterone acetate injections, and progestin-only pills (Appendix C); CHCs, including low-dose (containing ≤35 μg ethinyl estradiol) COCs, combined hormonal patch, and combined vaginal ring (Appendix D); barrier contraceptive methods, including male and female condoms, spermicides, diaphragm with spermicide, and cervical cap (Appendix E); fertility awareness–based methods (Appendix F); lactational amenorrhea method (Appendix G); coitus interruptus (Appendix H); female and male sterilization (Appendix I); and emergency contraception, including emergency use of the copper-containing IUD and emergency contraceptive pills (Appendix J). A table at the end of this report summarizes the classifications for the hormonal and intrauterine methods (Appendix K).

Contraceptive Method Choice

Many elements need to be considered by women, men, or couples at any given point in their lifetimes when choosing the most appropriate contraceptive method. These elements include safety, effectiveness, availability (including accessibility and affordability), and acceptability. The guidance in this report focuses primarily on the safety of a given contraceptive method for a person with a particular characteristic or medical condition. Therefore, the classification of category 1 means that the method can be used in that circumstance with no restrictions with regard to safety but does not necessarily imply that the method is the best choice for that person; other factors, such as effectiveness, availability, and acceptability, might play an important role in determining the most appropriate choice. Voluntary informed choice of contraceptive methods is an essential guiding principle, and contraceptive counseling, when applicable, might be an important contributor to the successful use of contraceptive methods.

In choosing a method of contraception, dual protection from the simultaneous risk for HIV and other STDs also should be considered. Although hormonal contraceptives and IUDs are highly effective at preventing pregnancy, they do not protect against STDs, including HIV. Consistent and correct use of the male latex condom reduces the risk for HIV infection and other STDs, including chlamydial infection, gonococcal infection, and trichomoniasis (12). Although evidence is limited, use of female condoms can provide protection from acquisition and transmission of STDs (12). All patients, regardless of contraceptive choice, should be counseled about the use of condoms and the risk for STDs, including HIV infection (12). Additional information about prevention and treatment of STDs is available from the CDC Sexually Transmitted Diseases Treatment Guidelines (http://www.cdc.gov/std/treatment) (12).

Contraceptive Method Effectiveness

Contraceptive method effectiveness is critical for minimizing the risk for an unintended pregnancy, particularly among women for whom an unintended pregnancy would pose additional health risks. The effectiveness of contraceptive methods depends both on the inherent effectiveness of the method itself and on how consistently and correctly it is used (Figure). Methods that depend on consistent and correct use have a wide range of effectiveness. IUDs and implants are considered long-acting, reversible contraception (LARC); these methods are highly effective because they do not depend on regular compliance from the user. LARC methods are appropriate for most women, including adolescents and nulliparous women. All women should be counseled about the full range and effectiveness of contraceptive options for which they are medically eligible so that they can identify the optimal method.

Unintended Pregnancy and Increased Health Risk

For women with conditions that might make pregnancy an unacceptable health risk, long-acting, highly effective contraceptive methods might be the best choice to avoid unintended pregnancy (Figure). Women with these conditions should be advised that sole use of barrier methods for contraception and behavior-based methods of contraception might not be the most appropriate choice because of their relatively higher typical-use rates of failure (Figure). Conditions included in U.S. MEC that are associated with increased risk for adverse health events as a result of pregnancy are identified throughout the document (Box 2). Some of the medical conditions included in U.S. MEC recommendations are treated with teratogenic drugs. While the woman's medical condition may not affect her eligibility to use certain contraceptive methods, women using teratogenic drugs are at increased risk for poor pregnancy outcomes; long-acting, highly effective contraceptive methods might be the best option to avoid unintended pregnancy or delay pregnancy until teratogenic drugs are no longer needed.

Keeping Guidance Up to Date

Updating the evidence-based recommendations as new scientific evidence becomes available is a challenge. CDC will continue to work with WHO to identify and assess new relevant evidence as it becomes available and to determine whether changes in the recommendations are warranted (7). In most cases, U.S. MEC follows the WHO guidance updates, which typically occur every 5 years (or sooner if warranted by new data). However, CDC will review all WHO updates for their application in the United States. CDC also will identify and assess any new literature for the recommendations and medical conditions that are not included in the WHO guidance. CDC will completely review U.S. MEC every 5 years as well. Updates to the guidance will appear on the CDC U.S. MEC website (http://www.cdc.gov/reproductivehealth/UnintendedPregnancy/USMEC.htm).

Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP)

To get a PDF version of the information below and access other print resources for your practice and patients, visit our PrEP/PEP materials page.

What is PrEP?

PrEP is short for pre-exposure prophylaxis. It is the use of antiretroviral medication to prevent acquisition of HIV infection. PrEP is used by people without HIV who are at risk of being exposed to HIV through sexual contact or injection drug use. Two medications have been approved for use as PrEP by the FDA. Each consists of two drugs combined in a single oral tablet taken daily:

- Emtricitabine (F) 200 mg in combination with tenofovir disoproxil fumarate (TDF) 300 mg (F/TDF – brand name Truvada®)
- Emtricitabine (F) 200 mg in combination with tenofovir alafenamide (TAF) 25 mg (F/TAF – brand name Descovy®)

These medications are approved to prevent HIV infection in adults and adolescents weighing at least 35 kg (77 lb) as follows:

- Daily oral PrEP with F/TDF is recommended to prevent HIV infection among all persons at risk through sex or injection drug use.
- Daily oral PrEP with F/TAF is recommended to prevent HIV infection among persons at risk through sex, excluding people at risk through receptive vaginal sex. F/TAF has not yet been studied for HIV prevention for receptive vaginal sex.

PrEP should be considered part of a comprehensive prevention plan that includes a discussion about adherence to PrEP, condom use, other sexually transmitted infections (STIs), and other risk reduction methods.

What are the guidelines for prescribing PrEP?

Comprehensive guidelines for prescribing PrEP have been published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in A Clinical Practice Guideline,[1] including a Clinical Providers' Supplement.[2]

The Clinical Providers' Supplement contains additional tools for clinicians providing PrEP, such as a patient/provider checklist, patient information sheets, provider information sheets, a risk incidence assessment, supplemental counseling information, billing codes, and practice quality measures. If questions arise or if prescribing advice is needed, clinicians should consult the National Clinicians Consultation Center PrEP Line @ 1-855-448-7737 (9:00 AM – 8:00 PM EST).

The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force has given PrEP a grade A recommendation.[3] This grade indicates that their review found that there is high certainty that the net benefit of this service is substantial. For more information, view the full recommendation rationale at www.uspreventiveservicestaskforce.org .

Who can prescribe PrEP?

Any licensed prescriber can prescribe PrEP. Specialization in infectious diseases or HIV medicine is not required. In fact, primary care providers who routinely see people at risk for HIV acquisition should consider offering PrEP to all eligible patients.[4]

To whom should I offer PrEP?

PrEP is for people without HIV who are at risk of acquisition from sex or injection drug use. People at risk who should be assessed for PrEP include:

- Sexually active gay and bisexual men without HIV
- Sexually active heterosexual men and women without HIV
- Sexually active transgender persons without HIV
- Persons without HIV who inject drugs

- Persons without HIV who inject drugs
- Persons who have been prescribed non-occupational post-exposure prophylaxis (PEP) and report continued risk behavior, or who have used multiple courses of PEP

Sexually-Active Adults and Adolescents	Persons Who Inject Drugs
Anal or vaginal sex in the past 6 months; and HIV-positive sexual partner (especially if partner has unknown or detectable viral load); or Recent bacterial STI; or History of inconsistent or no condom use with sexual partner(s)	HIV-positive injecting partner; or Shares drug preparation or injection equipment
Documented negative HIV test result before prescribing PrEP; and No signs/symptoms of acute HIV infection; and Normal renal function; and No contraindicated medications

How is PrEP prescribed?

PrEP is FDA-approved to be taken once daily by mouth.[5,6] Full prescribing information is available at https://www.gilead.com/-/media/files/pdfs/medicines/hiv/truvada/truvada_pi.pdf and https://www.gilead.com/-/media/files/pdfs/medicines/hiv/descovy/descovy_pi.pdf.

(See Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 5: https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/pdf/risk/prep/cdc-hiv-prep-provider-supplement-2017.pdf)

What is the evidence base for PrEP?

Multiple studies have demonstrated that PrEP is highly effective when taken as prescribed.

Transmission Route	Effectiveness Estimate	Interpretation
Sexual	~99%	Very high levels of adherence to PrEP ensures maximum effectiveness.
Injection drug use	74% – 84%	These estimates are based on tenofovir alone and not necessarily when taken daily. The effectiveness may be greater for the two-drug oral therapy and if used daily.

For more information on evidence related to daily, consistent, and on-demand PrEP use, visit http://www.cdc.gov/hiv/risk/estimates/preventionstrategies.html.

How important is adherence to PrEP?

To be effective, PrEP requires high levels of adherence. When taken as prescribed, oral PrEP is extremely effective in preventing HIV.[7] A few cases of HIV infection have been reported among MSM whose high adherence to PrEP was verified. These rare cases indicate that the risk of HIV acquisition with high adherence to PrEP is extremely low, but not completely eliminated.

Based on existing research, PrEP reaches maximum protection from HIV for receptive anal sex at about 7 days of daily use. For receptive vaginal sex and injection drug use, PrEP reaches maximum protection at up to about 21 days of daily use.

Is PrEP safe?

Yes. PrEP has not caused serious short- or medium-term safety concerns.[8,9,10] F/TDF as PrEP is considered generally safe for pregnant and breastfeeding women.[6] Providers and patients who are or may become pregnant and have concerns should decide together if the risk of ongoing HIV transmission through sex or drug injection is sufficiently high to use PrEP knowing that pregnancy is associated with an increased risk of HIV acquisition.[11]

Since F/TDF and F/TAF are eliminated by the kidneys, PrEP should only be used in patients without renal impairment (see Renal Function, below). It should be co-administered with care in patients taking other drugs eliminated by the kidneys (e.g., acyclovir, adefovir dipivoxil, cidofovir, ganciclovir, valacyclovir, valganciclovir, aminoglycosides, and high-dose or multiple NSAIDs). Drugs that decrease renal function may also increase serum concentrations of tenofovir or emtricitabine.[5,6]

Who should not be prescribed PrEP?

- People with HIV. Individuals must be confirmed as HIV-negative before initiating PrEP. Excluding persons with acute HIV infection is critically important, as there is a risk of developing resistant HIV if they are inadvertently started on PrEP. F/TDF and F/TAF are appropriate components of a regimen to treat HIV but must be combined with additional antiretrovirals to provide effective treatment.
- People with renal insufficiency. Providers should confirm that the patient's estimated creatinine clearance is ≥60 mL/minute (Cockcroft-Gault formula) before initiating F/TDF as PrEP, or ≥30 mL/minute before initiating F/TAF as PrEP.

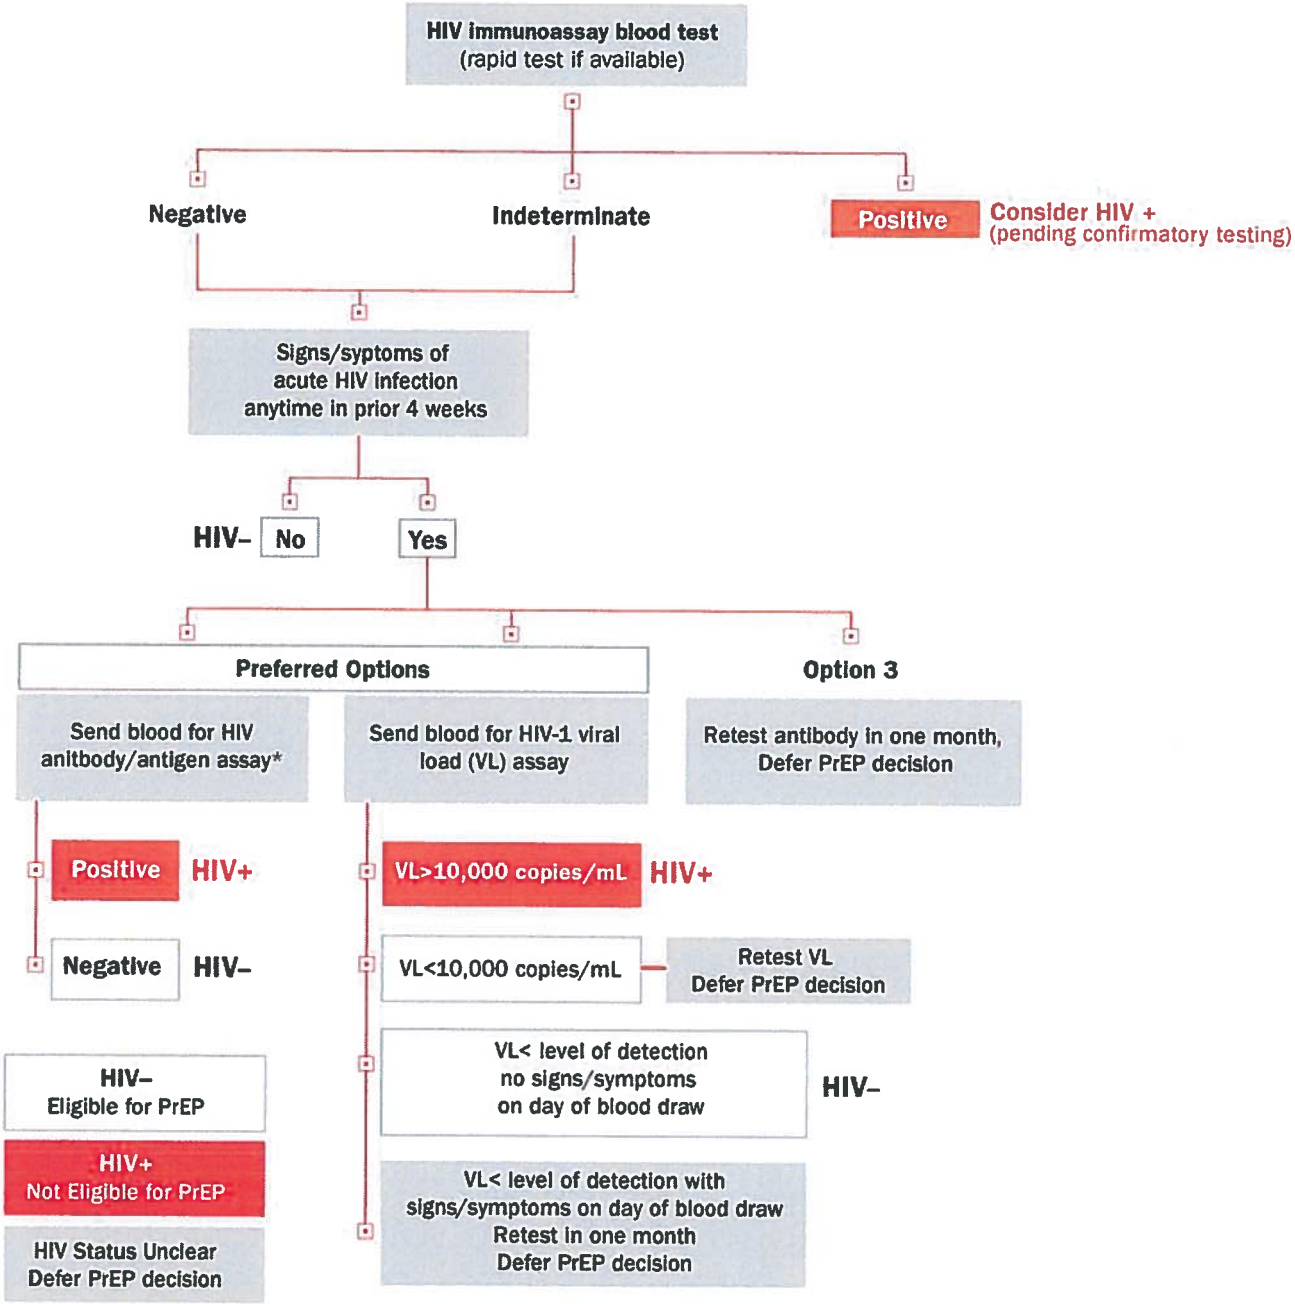
What baseline assessment is required for individuals beginning PrEP?

HIV Testing

HIV testing is required to confirm that patients do not have HIV infection when they start taking PrEP. While antigen/antibody tests are preferred, at a minimum, clinicians should document a negative antibody test result within the week before initiating (or re-initiating) PrEP medications. The required HIV testing can be accomplished by (1) drawing blood and sending the specimen to a laboratory for testing or (2) performing a rapid, point-of-care FDA-approved fingerstick blood test. Oral rapid tests should not be used to screen for HIV infection when considering PrEP use because they can be less sensitive than blood tests.[12] A listing of FDA-approved HIV tests, specimen requirements, and time to detection of HIV infection are available online at: www.cdc.gov/hiv/testing/laboratorytests.html

Since PrEP is indicated for individuals who report sexual or injection behaviors that place them at risk of HIV acquisition, clinicians should suspect acute HIV infection in persons known to have been exposed recently. Clinicians should solicit a history of signs or symptoms of viral infection during the preceding month or on the day of evaluation in all PrEP candidates with a negative or an indeterminate result on an HIV antibody test.

For patients with signs/symptoms of acute HIV infection within the prior four weeks, the following options are suggested:



1. Test patient with a combination antibody/antigen assay, ideally with a laboratory-based method. If the test is non-reactive (negative), PrEP can be initiated.
2. Test patient with a viral load (VL) assay. If the patient has a measurable VL <3,000 copies/mL infection is unlikely, but PrEP should be deferred while testing is repeated. If the VL is below the level of detection of the assay, and the patient has no signs/symptoms on that day, PrEP can be initiated.
3. Defer PrEP and retest patient for HIV antibody in one month.

Renal Function

When used as PrEP, TDF-containing regimens can cause decreases in renal function that are typically small and of unknown clinical significance, and that also typically reverse with discontinuation of the drug [5,6]. Occasional cases of acute renal failure, including Fanconi's syndrome, have occurred. [13-20] Therefore, all persons considered for PrEP must have their renal function assessed at treatment initiation as well as periodically thereafter so that PrEP can be stopped, if necessary. Renal function should be assessed using the Cockcroft-Gault formula and the patient's serum creatinine value to calculate an estimated creatinine clearance (eCrCl). F/TDF is approved for use in persons with a eCrCl ≥60 ml/min. F/TAF is approved for use in persons with eCrCl ≥30 ml/min.

Hepatitis B Serology

Emtricitabine and tenofovir can be used to treat HBV, and discontinuation of these medicines can cause rebound hepatitis. HBV infection is not a contraindication to PrEP, but all persons considered for PrEP with F/TDF or F/TAF must be screened for HBV; if they start PrEP, when they stop the medication their liver function can be closely monitored for reactivation of HBV replication that could result in hepatic damage.

 Use only HIV antigen/antibody tests that are approved by FDA for diagnostic purposes*

What additional support and ongoing assessments are required for patients on PrEP?

Prescribe PrEP as part of a combination prevention plan. At minimum, while patients are on PrEP, CDC guidelines recommend:

	Provide the following services:

At 3 months after PrEP initiation:	• Test for HIV.
	• Measure serum creatinine and estimate creatinine clearance.
	• Provide medication adherence and behavioral risk reduction support.
	• Additionally, for
	  ◦ MSM: screen for bacterial STIs*;
	  ◦ Women with reproductive potential: test for pregnancy; and ◦ PWID: assess access to sterile needles/syringes and to drug treatment services.

Every 3 months after the first 3-month follow-up:	• Test for HIV.
	• Provide medication adherence and behavioral risk reduction support.
	• Additionally, for
	  ◦ MSM: screen for bacterial STIs*;
	  ◦ Women with reproductive potential: test for pregnancy; and ◦ PWID: assess access to sterile needles/syringes and to substance use disorder treatment services.

Every 6 months after the first 3-month follow-up:	• Measure serum creatinine and estimate creatinine clearance. • For all sexually active patients: Screen for bacterial STIs*.

*Nucleic Acid Amplification Test (NAAT) to screen for gonorrhea and chlamydia based on anatomic site of exposure; blood test for syphilis.

How will my patients pay for PrEP medication, clinical visits, and lab tests?

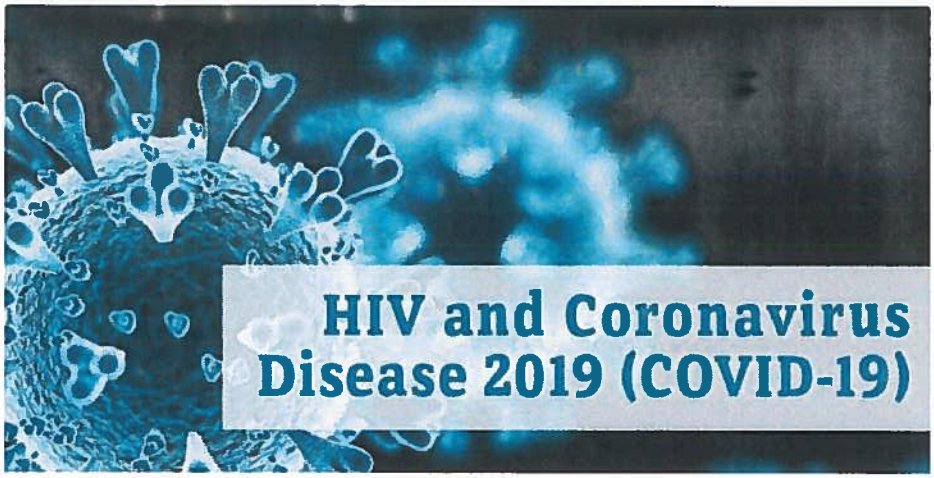
Most insurance plans and state Medicaid programs cover PrEP. Prior authorization may be required.

Patient assistance program: There are medication assistance programs that provide free PrEP medications to people with no insurance to cover PrEP care. To learn more, call 855-447-8410 or visit www.getyourprep.com

Co-pay assistance program: Income is not a factor in eligibility. More information is available at: https://www.gileadadvancingaccess.com/ Some states have their own PrEP assistance programs. Some cover medication, some cover clinical visit and lab costs, some cover both. To learn more visit: https://www.nastad.org/prepcost-resources/prep-assistance-programs

How should a patient who acquires HIV infection while taking PrEP be managed?

Once additional laboratory tests have confirmed infection, the following steps should be taken:



- Initiate treatment or refer for comprehensive HIV care.
- Counsel the patient about how to prevent HIV transmission to others and to improve their own health.
- Report the new HIV infection to the local health department.

To learn more about HIV treatment, see: /preventioniscare

How do I provide

How do I provide PrEP Services during COVID 19?

CDC has developed guidance for providing PrEP when facility-based services and in-person patient-clinician contact is limited. For programs experiencing disruption in PrEP clinical services, CDC offers the following guidance for clinics to consider in the context of local resources and staff availability.

Resources for people at risk or with HIV, clinicians, and public health partners.

1. Clinicians should continue to ensure the availability of PrEP for patients newly initiating PrEP and patients continuing PrEP use.
2. Quarterly HIV testing should be continued for patient safety. Lab-only visits for assessment of HIV infection and other indicated tests for the provision of PrEP are preferred. When these are not available or feasible, CDC recommends considering two additional options:
   - Some laboratories (such as Molecular Testing Labs™) have validated protocols for testing home-collected samples for the panel of tests required for those initiating or continuing PrEP. This laboratory-conducted test is sensitive enough to detect recent HIV infection.
   - The second option is self-testing via an oral swab-based test. Although this type of HIV self-test is usually not recommended for PrEP patients due to its lower sensitivity in detecting recent HIV infection during PrEP use, clinicians could consider use of these tests when other options are not available.
3. When HIV-negative status is confirmed, consider providing a prescription for a 90-day supply of PrEP medication (rather than a 30-day supply with two refills) to minimize trips to the pharmacy and to facilitate PrEP adherence. Several programs are available to help provide affordable PrEP medication including Ready, Set, PrEP , a nationwide program that makes PrEP medications available at no cost to individuals who qualify and lack prescription drug coverage; state drug assistance programs; and Gilead's Medication Assistance Program (MAP) , which assists eligible HIV-negative adults in the United States who require assistance paying for PrEP.
4. If a PrEP clinic is considering closing or suspending services temporarily, health care providers should establish referral relationships with other clinics, telemedicine services, or pharmacies so that clients may remain engaged in PrEP care.

If PrEP clinical services have not been disrupted, providers should continue to follow recommendations outlined in the 2017 PrEP Clinical Guidelines [PDF – 2 MB] and Clinical Providers' Supplement [PDF – 2 MB]. To further ensure safe delivery of critical public health services, CDC has issued guidance for protecting public health workers engaged in public health activities that require face-to-face interaction.

Colorado State Board of Pharmacy Statewide Protocol

Pre-Exposure and Post-Exposure Prophylaxis of HIV

This collaborative pharmacy practice statewide protocol authorizes qualified Colorado-licensed pharmacists ("Pharmacists") to provide pertinent assessment of risk of HIV acquisition and prescribe pre-exposure and post-exposure prophylaxis medications for the prevention of HIV infection according to and in compliance with all applicable state and federal laws and rules.

Pharmacists may prescribe and dispense FDA approved medication(s) to eligible patients according to indications and contraindications recommended in current guidelines from the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)[1, 3] and the United States Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF)[2].

Prior to prescribing and dispensing HIV prevention medication per this protocol, the pharmacist must:

1. Hold a current license to practice in Colorado

2. Be engaged in the practice of pharmacy

3. Have earned a Doctor of Pharmacy degree or completed at least 5 years of experience as a licensed pharmacist

4. Carry adequate professional liability insurance as determined by the Board

5. Complete a training program accredited by the Accreditation Council for Pharmacy Education, or its successor entity, pursuant to the protocol (in compliance with Board Rule 17.00.50 b.2.)

6. Pharmacists must also follow all board rules for statewide protocols in section 17.00.00.

The pharmacy shall ensure that appropriate space is available to provide counseling and ensure confidentiality. Records:

A. Pursuant to Pharmacy Board Rule 17.00.50, a process shall be in place for the pharmacist to communicate with the patient's primary care provider and document changes to the patient's medical record. If the patient does not have a primary care provider, or is unable to provide contact information for his or her primary care provider, the pharmacist shall provide the patient with a written record of the drugs or devices furnished, and lab test(s) ordered, and any test results.

B. Pharmacists shall comply with all aspects of Pharmacy Board Rules 17.01.00 and 17.02.00 with respect to the maintenance of proper records.

Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) Protocol

Under this protocol, Pharmacists may assess for HIV status and high-risk behaviors in which pre-exposure prophylaxis against HIV would be warranted.

The pharmacist may consider and offer the patient an oral antiretroviral agent listed in Table I according to the following criteria:

1. Evidence of HIV negative status as documented by an FDA- approved test, or rapid CLIA-waived point of care fingerstick blood test, taken within 7 days. Neither oral swab testing nor patient report of negative status are acceptable for evidence.

2. Persons who meet eligibility requirements for PrEP per CDC guidelines in the following categories:

   a. MSM (men who have sex with men)
      - Adult man
      - Without acute or established HIV infection
      - Any male sex partners in past 6 months
      - Not in a monogamous partnership with a recently tested, HIV-negative man

      AND at least one of the following:
      - any anal sex without condoms (receptive or insertive) in the past 6 months
      - A bacterial STI (syphilis, gonorrhea or chlamydia) diagnosed or reported in past 6 months

   b. Heterosexually Active Men and Women
      - Adult person
      - Without acute or established HIV infection
      - Any sex with opposite sex partners in past 6 months
      - Not in a monogamous partnership with a recently tested HIV-negative partner

      AND at least one of the following:
      - Is a man who has sex with both women and men (behaviorally bisexual)
      - Infrequently uses condoms during sex with 1 or more partners of unknown HIV status who are known to be substantial risk of HIV infection (persons who inject drugs PWID or bisexual male partner)
      - Is in an ongoing sexual relationship with an HIV-positive partner
      - A bacterial STI (syphilis, gonorrhea in women or men) diagnosed or reported in past 6 months

   c. Persons Who Inject Drugs (PWID)
      - Adult person
      - Without acute or established HIV infection
      - Any injection of drugs not prescribed by a clinician in past 6 months

      AND at least one of the following:
      - Any sharing of injection or drug preparation equipment in past 6 months
      - Risk of sexual acquisition (see above)

Patients who should NOT be prescribed PrEP under this protocol and should be referred to primary care provider for further action:

- Patients with baseline HIV tests indicating existing HIV infection
- Recent flu-like symptoms in the past month as this may suggest recent HIV infection not yet detectable (tiredness, fever, joint or muscle aches, headache, sore throat, vomiting, diarrhea, rash, night sweats, and/or enlarged lymph nodes in the neck or groin)
- CRCL < 60 ml/min

Non-Occupational Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (nPEP) Protocol

Non-Occupational Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (nPEP) is the use of antiretroviral drugs after a single high-risk event to decrease the risk of HIV seroconversion. nPEP must be started as soon as possible to be effective, and always within 72 hours of the possible exposure. This particular protocol addresses non occupational post-exposure prophylaxis (nPEP) only, those with occupational exposures are not eligible and should be referred for care.

Under this protocol, pharmacists may assess patients 13 and older for high-risk exposure to HIV and prescribe antiretroviral drugs if appropriate. Patients under 18 years of age require parental consent to access this Protocol. nPEP should only be provided for infrequent exposures.

If the pharmacy is not able to provide care to the patient, or if the patient does not qualify for care at the pharmacy, the patient should be referred to another provider. PEP providers in Colorado include the STD Clinic at Denver Public Health (303.602.3540) and local emergency departments (CDPHE to comment).

If the following criteria are met, antiretroviral agents in Table 1 are recommended:

- The exposure must have occurred within 72 hours

- A rapid antibody CLIA waived point of care test yields a negative result for HIV. However, if a rapid test is not available, and nPEP is otherwise indicated, therapy should still be initiated.

- Exposure to a source individual known to be HIV-positive. Exposure of:

    - Vagina

    - Rectum

    - Eye

- Mouth
- Other mucous membranes
- Nonintact skin
- Percutaneous contact (e.g., injecting drugs with a contaminated needle or needle stick injury)

WITH

- Blood
- Semen
- Vaginal secretions
- Rectal secretions
- Breast milk
- Any body fluid visibly contaminated with blood

- Exposure types with the highest risk of transmission of HIV are:
  - Needle sharing during injection drug use
  - Percutaneous needle stick
  - Receptive anal intercourse
- If exposure with a source in which the HIV status is not known, nPEP may be considered and antiretroviral agents in Table 1 may be prescribed. NPEP should strongly be considered after exposure in an individual who also meets the criteria for PrEP therapy (see Colorado Statewide Protocol for Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis of HIV).

Patients who should NOT be prescribed nPEP under this protocol and should be referred to primary care provider for further action:

- Patients younger than 13 years of age.
- Patients taking any contraindicated medications per guidelines and package insert information
- Patients with baseline rapid HIV tests indicating existing HIV infection should be referred to a primary care provider.
- Patients who have a potential exposure but have been consistently adherent to PrEP
- If a child presents to the pharmacy with a request for NPEP and is potentially a victim of child abuse, child protective services MUST be contacted.

Other Considerations:

- If the case involves a sexually assaulted person, patients should also be examined and co-managed by professionals specifically trained in assessing and counseling patients and families during these circumstances (e.g., Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner [SANE] program staff). Resources may be found at https://www.ccasa.org/gethelp/health-related-organizations/

- If a child presents to the pharmacy with a request for nPEP and is potentially a victim of child abuse, child protective services MUST be contacted 1-844-CO-4-KIDS.

TABLE 1 – MEDICATION OPTIONS

Other FDA approved / CDC recommended medications or regimens can be used if they become available. Formulations cautions and dose adjustments for antiretroviral medications shall minimally follow the CDC guidelines and package insert information for all regimens.

Medication	Age/Weight	Dose	Duration of Therapy	Notes
PREFERRED REGIMEN
emtricitabine 200 mg/tenofovir disoproxil fumarate 300mg (Truvada® or generic) PLUS raltegravir 400mg	≥ 13 years	Once daily #28 no refills Twice daily #56 no refills	28 days	Dosing adjustments with renal dysfunction if CrCL <60 ml/min.
OR Dolutegravir 50mg		Once daily #28 no refills		Dolutegravir should not be used in pregnant women If contraindications to raltegravir or dolutegravir exist, or for other reasons the preferred regimen cannot be given, then "alternative regimens" per CDC guidelines should be referenced and used.

TABLE 2 – ROUTINE REQUIRED MONITORING OF TREATMENT

Labs:

- All efforts should be made to obtain a negative HIV test at baseline. However, the sooner PEP is initiated, the more effective it is.

- Ask the following screening question:

  - Do you have existing kidney disease, or do you know if your kidney function is decreased for any reason?

In this event, pharmacist should make arrangements to refer patient for a Scr blood test urgently as nephrotoxicity can occur with acute/chronic kidney disease (CrCL <60 ml/min).

- Pharmacist is authorized to order the following labs for the patient OR can refer to another provider for ordering and accept lab work results.
- Pharmacist must make every reasonable effort to follow up with patient post-treatment regimen at 4-6 weeks and test for confirmation of HIV status and make known to patient that repeat HIV testing is recommended at 3 and 6 months as well.

Test	Frequency	CDC recommendations	Notes
HIV	Baseline + Post-exposure at week 4-6, and months 3 and 6	Required	If positive, refer.
STI screenings (syphilis, gonorrhea, chlamydia)	Baseline	Recommended	If positive – refer for care
Serum creatinine	Baseline + @4-6 weeks.	Recommended
ALT/AST	Baseline + @4-6 weeks.	Recommended
Hepatitis B screening	Baseline + 6 mo	Recommended	If positive – refer. If negative and clinically appropriate, vaccinate
Hepatitis C screening	Baseline + 6 mo	Recommended	If positive - refer
Pregnancy	Baseline + @4-6 weeks.	Recommended	Pregnancy is not a contraindication to NPEP

Counseling (at minimum):

- Proper use of medication dosage, schedule and potential common and serious side effects (and how to mitigate)
- The importance of medication adherence with relation to efficacy of nPEP
- Signs/symptoms of acute HIV infection and recommended actions
- The patient should be instructed on correct and consistent use of HIV exposure precautions including condoms and not sharing injection equipment
- For women of reproductive potential with genital exposure to semen, emergency contraception should be discussed
- The necessity of follow up care with a primary care provider for usual care

- The importance and requirement of follow up testing for HIV, renal function, hepatic function, hepatitis B and C, and sexually transmitted diseases

- If appropriate, general discussion of pre-exposure prophylaxis at future time.

Documentation:

- The pharmacist will notify the patient's primary care provider of a record of all medications prescribed. If a patient does not have a primary care provider, the pharmacist will provide the patient with a list of providers and clinics for which they may seek ongoing care.

- The pharmacist will also follow all documentation rules in 17.00

Referrals:

- If a patient tests positive for HIV infection, the pharmacist will refer/direct the patient to a primary care provider and provide a list of providers and clinics in that region for confirmatory testing and follow up care. A list of providers may be found at: https://www.colorado.gosv/pacific/cdphe/linkage-to-care

- The patient should be referred immediately for guideline based follow-up HIV testing and care, and follow-up testing for STIs, Hepatitis C, and Hepatitis B.

- If a patient tests positive for an STI, the pharmacist will refer/direct the patient to a primary care provider and provide a list of providers and clinics in that region for confirmatory testing and follow up care. A list of providers may be found at: https://www.colorado.gosv/pacific/cdphe/linkage-to-care

- If a patient tests positive for Hepatitis B or C, the pharmacist will refer/direct the patient to a primary care provider and provide a list of providers and clinics in that region for confirmatory testing and follow up care. A list of providers may be found at: https://www.colorado.gosv/pacific/cdphe/linkage-to-care

- Signs of symptoms of acute drug toxicities or serious side effects

- Urgent evaluation referral for symptoms or signs of acute renal injury or acute HIV infection.

- Usual care for any other issues, stress importance of routine primary care and health maintenance.

PREEXPOSURE PROPHYLAXIS FOR THE PREVENTION OF HIV INFECTION IN THE UNITED STATES – 2017 UPDATE

A CLINICAL PRACTICE GUIDELINE

What's New in the Preexposure Prophylaxis for the Prevention of HIV Infection in the United States - 2017 Update – A Clinical Practice Guideline?

(Published online March 2018)

The Preexposure Prophylaxis for the Prevention of HIV Infection in the United States – 2014 was published in an electronic format in July 2014 so that it could be updated as relevant changes in supporting evidence became available. The Preexposure Prophylaxis for the Prevention of HIV Infection in the United States – 2016: Update – A Clinical Practice Guideline includes revisions to several sections. These revisions are highlighted throughout the document and are intended solely to update the developing evidence base or to clarify specific points in clinical care. No changes were made to the graded recommendations for the use of PrEP in the US.

Evidence of the Safety and Efficacy of Antiretroviral Prophylaxis

Based on an updated systematic review of publications through June 2017, data from trials and open-label studies were added to the text summary and evidence tables.

Identifying Indications for PrEP

In Box B3 (recommended indications for PrEP use by injection drug users) we deleted whether they had been in drug treatment in the prior 6 months as this was causing confusion for many clinicians.

Laboratory Tests and other Diagnostic Procedures

We replaced the HIV test characteristic tables previously in appendices with a link to a CDC website that is more frequently updated.

The figure and text on testing by clinicians to determine HIV status for PrEP provision (including detection of acute HIV infection) was revised to include a preference for antigen/antibody testing whenever available (rather than antibody-only tests) and use of a 3,000 copies/ml cut-off for suspected false-positive viral load tests.

Additional information about hepatitis C screening associated with provision of PrEP is provided, consistent with the 2017 American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases (AASLD) and the Infectious Disease Society of America (IDSA) guidance.

Providing PrEP

Ledipasvir/sofosbuvir was added to the table (10) of drug interactions

Tenofovir alafenamide (TAF) was added to the section "What not to use"

We revised the clinical follow up schedule to include STI testing for asymptomatic MSM at high risk for recurrent STIs (e.g., those with recent STIs or multiple sex partners) at the 3 month visit in addition to testing for all symptomatic sexually-active persons. This is consistent with 2015 STD guidelines recommendation for STD screening every 3-6 months with multiple sex partners (https://www.cdc.gov/std/tg2015/tg-2015-print.pdf).

Minor revisions were also made to correct typos, add references, and update content from cited guidelines and source materials.

Summary

Preexposure Prophylaxis for HIV Prevention in the United States – 2017 Update: A Clinical Practice Guideline provides comprehensive information for the use of daily oral antiretroviral preexposure prophylaxis (PrEP) to reduce the risk of acquiring HIV infection in adults. The key messages of the guideline are as follows:

- Daily oral PrEP with the fixed-dose combination of tenofovir disoproxil fumarate (TDF) 300 mg and emtricitabine (FTC) 200 mg has been shown to be safe and effective in reducing the risk of sexual HIV acquisition in adults; therefore,
    - PrEP is recommended as one prevention option for sexually-active adult MSM (men who have sex with men) at substantial risk of HIV acquisition (IA)[1]
    - PrEP is recommended as one prevention option for adult heterosexually active men and women who are at substantial risk of HIV acquisition. (IA)
    - PrEP is recommended as one prevention option for adult persons who inject drugs (PWID) (also called injection drug users [IDU]) at substantial risk of HIV acquisition. (IA)
    - PrEP should be discussed with heterosexually-active women and men whose partners are known to have HIV infection (i.e., HIV-discordant couples) as one of several options to protect the uninfected partner during conception and pregnancy so that an informed decision can be made in awareness of what is known and unknown about benefits and risks of PrEP for mother and fetus (IIB)
- Currently the data on the efficacy and safety of PrEP for adolescents are insufficient. Therefore, the risks and benefits of PrEP for adolescents should be weighed carefully in the context of local laws and regulations about autonomy in health care decision-making by minors. (IIIB)
- Acute and chronic HIV infection must be excluded by symptom history and HIV testing immediately before PrEP is prescribed. (IA)
- The only medication regimen approved by the Food and Drug Administration and recommended for PrEP with all the populations specified in this guideline is daily TDF 300 mg co-formulated with FTC 200 mg (Truvada) (IA)
    - TDF alone has shown substantial efficacy and safety in trials with PWID and heterosexually active adults and can be considered as an alternative regimen for these populations, but not for MSM, among whom its efficacy has not been studied. (IC)
    - The use of other antiretroviral medications for PrEP, either in place of or in addition to TDF/FTC (or TDF) is not recommended. (IIIA)
    - The prescription of oral PrEP for coitally-timed or other noncontinuous daily use is not recommended. (IIIA)

[1] See Appendix 1, Grading of Strength of Recommendations and Quality of Evidence (Tables 12-13)

- HIV infection should be assessed at least every 3 months while patients are taking PrEP so that those with incident infection do not continue taking it. The 2-drug regimen of TDF/FTC is inadequate therapy for established HIV infection, and its use may engender resistance to either or both drugs. (IA)
- Renal function should be assessed at baseline and monitored at least every 6 months while patients are taking PrEP so that those in whom renal failure is developing do not continue to take it. (IIIA)
- When PrEP is prescribed, clinicians should provide access, directly or by facilitated referral, to proven effective risk-reduction services. Because high medication adherence is critical to PrEP efficacy but was not uniformly achieved by trial participants, patients should be encouraged and enabled to use PrEP in combination with other effective prevention methods. (IIIA)

Introduction

Recent findings from several clinical trials have demonstrated safety[1] and a substantial reduction in the rate of HIV acquisition for men who have sex with men (MSM)[2], men and women in heterosexual HIV-discordant couples[3], and heterosexual men and women recruited as individuals[4] who were prescribed daily oral antiretroviral preexposure prophylaxis (PrEP) with a fixed-dose combination of tenofovir disoproxil fumarate (TDF) and emtricitabine (FTC). In addition, one clinical trial among persons who injection drugs (PWID) (also called injection drug users [IDU][5] and one among men and women in heterosexual HIV-discordant couples[3] have demonstrated substantial efficacy and safety of daily oral PrEP with TDF alone. The demonstrated efficacy of PrEP was in addition to the effects of repeated condom provision, sexual risk-reduction counseling, and the diagnosis and treatment of sexually transmitted infection (STI), all of which were provided to trial participants, including those in the drug treatment group and those in the placebo group. In July 2012, after reviewing the available trial results, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved an indication for the use of Truvada[§] (TDF/FC) "in combination with safer sex practices for pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) to reduce the risk of sexually acquired HIV-1 in adults at high risk"[6,7].

On the basis of these trial results and the FDA approval, the U.S. Public Health Service recommends that clinicians evaluate their male and female patients who are sexually active or who are injecting illicit drugs and consider offering PrEP as one prevention option to those whose sexual or injection behaviors and epidemiologic context place them at substantial risk of acquiring HIV infection.

The evidence base for the 2014 recommendations were derived from a systematic search and review of published literature. To identify all PrEP safety and efficacy trials pertaining to the prevention of sexual and injection acquisition of HIV, a search of the clinical trials registry (http://www.clinicaltrials.gov) was performed by using combinations search terms (preexposure prophylaxis, pre-exposure prophylaxis, PrEP, HIV, Truvada, tenofovir, and antiretroviral). In addition, the same search terms were used to search conference abstracts for major HIV conferences (e.g., International AIDS Conference, Conference on Retroviruses and Opportunistic Infections) for the years 2009-2013. These same search terms were used to search PubMed and Web of Science databases for the years 2006-2013. Finally, a review of references from published PrEP trial data and the data summary prepared by FDA for its approval decision[8] confirmed that no additional trial results were available. For the 2017 update, the systematic review of published literature was updated through June 2017 and expanded to include the terms chemoprophylaxis and chemoprevention and searches of the MEDLINE, Embase, CINAHL, and Cochrane Library database in addition to those used in 2014. The results of this systematic review were crosschecked for completeness with the review conducted by the World Health

This publication provides a comprehensive clinical practice guideline for the use of PrEP for the prevention of HIV infection in the United States. It incorporates and extends information provided in interim guidance for PrEP use with MSM[10], with heterosexually active adults[11], and with PWID (also called IDU)[12]. Currently, prescribing daily oral PrEP with TDF/FTC is recommended as one prevention option for MSM, heterosexual men, heterosexual women, and PWID at substantial risk of HIV acquisition. As the results of additional PrEP clinical trials and studies in these and other populations at risk of HIV acquisition become known, this guideline will be updated.

The intended users of this guideline include

- primary care clinicians who provide care to persons at risk of acquiring HIV infection
- clinicians who provide substance abuse treatment
- infectious disease and HIV treatment specialists who may provide PrEP or serve as consultants to primary care physicians about the use of antiretroviral medications
- health program policymakers.

Evidence of Need for Additional HIV Prevention Methods

Approximately 40,000 people in the United States are infected with HIV each year[13]. From 2008 through 2014, estimated annual HIV incidence declined 18% overall but progress was uneven. Although declines occurred among heterosexuals, PWID, and white MSM, no decline was observed in the estimated number of annual HIV infections among black MSM and an increase was documented among Latino MSM[13]. In 2015, 67% of the 39,513 newly diagnosed HIV infections were attributed to male-male sexual activity without injection drug use, 3% to male-male sexual activity with injection drug use, 24% to male-female sexual contact without injection drug use, and 6% to injection drug use. Among the 24% of persons with newly diagnosed HIV infection attributed to heterosexual activity, 64% were African-American women and men[14]. These data indicate a need for additional methods of HIV prevention to further reduce new HIV infections, especially (but not exclusively) among young adult and adolescent MSM of all races and Hispanic/Latino ethnicity and for African American heterosexuals (populations with higher HIV prevalence and at higher risk of HIV infection among those without HIV infection).

Evidence of the Safety and Efficacy of Antiretroviral Prophylaxis

The biological plausibility and the short-term safety of antiretroviral use to prevent HIV acquisition in other exposure situations have been demonstrated in 2 studies conducted prior to the PrEP trials. In a randomized placebo-controlled trial, perinatal transmission was reduced 68% among the HIV-infected women who received zidovudine during pregnancy and labor and whose infants received zidovudine for 6 weeks after birth[15]. That is, these infants received both preexposure and postexposure prophylaxis. In 1995, investigators used case-control surveillance data from health-care workers to demonstrate that zidovudine provided within 72 hours after percutaneous exposure to HIV-infected blood and continued for 28 days (PEP, or postexposure prophylaxis) was associated with an 81% reduction in the risk of acquiring HIV infection[16-18].

Evidence from these human studies of blood-borne and perinatal transmission as well as studies of vaginal and rectal exposure among animals suggested that PrEP (using antiretroviral drugs) could reduce the risk of acquiring HIV infection from sexual and drug-use exposures. Clinical trials were launched to evaluate the safety and efficacy of PrEP in populations at risk of HIV infection through several routes of exposure. The results of completed trials and open label or observational studies published as of June 2017 are summarized below. See also Tables 2-7. The quality of evidence in each study was assessed using GRADE criteria (http://www.gradeworkinggroup.org/FAQ/evidence_qual.htm) and the strength of evidence for all studies relevant to a specific recommendation was assessed by the method used in the DHHS antiretroviral treatment guidelines (See Appendix 1)

Published Trials of Antiretroviral Preexposure Prophylaxis Among Men Who Have Sex with Men

iPrEx (Preexposure Prophylaxis Initiative) Trial

The iPrEx study[2] was a phase 3, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial conducted in Peru, Ecuador, Brazil, Thailand, South Africa, and the United States among men and male-to-female transgender adults who reported sex with a man during the 6 months preceding enrollment. Participants were randomly assigned to receive a daily oral dose of either the fixed-dose combination of TDF and FTC or a placebo. All participants (drug and placebo groups) were seen every 4 weeks for an interview, HIV testing, counseling about risk- reduction and adherence to PrEP medication doses, pill count, and dispensing of pills and condoms. Analysis of data through May 1, 2010, revealed that after the exclusion of 58 participants (10 later determined to be HIV- infected at enrollment and 48 who did not have an HIV test after enrollment), 36 of 1,224 participants in the TDF/FTC group and 64 of 1,217 in the placebo group had acquired HIV infection. Enrollment in the TDF/FTC group was associated with a 44% reduction in the risk of HIV acquisition (95% CI, 15-63). The reduction was greater in the as-treated analysis: at the visits at which adherence was ≥50% (by self-report and pill count/dispensing), the reduction in HIV acquisition was 50% (95% CI, 18-70). The reduction in the risk of HIV acquisition was 73% at visits at which self-reported adherence was ≥90% (95% CI, 41-88) during the preceding 30 days. Among participants randomly assigned to the TDF/FTC group, plasma and intracellular drug-level testing was performed for all those who acquired HIV infection during the trial and for a matched subset who remained HIV- uninfected: a 92% reduction in the risk of HIV acquisition (95% CI, 40-99) was found in participants with detectable levels of TDF/FTC versus those with no drug detected.

Generally, TDF/FTC was well tolerated, although nausea in the first month was more common among participants taking medication than among those taking placebo (9% versus 5%). No differences in severe (grade 3) or life-threatening (grade 4) adverse laboratory events were observed between the active and placebo group, and no drug-resistant virus was found in the 100 participants infected after enrollment. Among 10 participants who were HIV-negative at enrollment but later found to have been infected before enrollment, FTC-resistant virus was detected in 2 of 2 men in the active group and 1 of 8 men in the placebo group. Compared to participant reports at baseline, over the course of the study participants in both the TDF/FTC and placebo groups reported fewer total numbers of sex partners with whom the participants had receptive anal intercourse and higher percentages of partners who used condoms.

In the original iPrEx publication[2], of 2,499 MSM, 29 identified as female (i.e., transgender women). In a subsequent subgroup analysis[19], men were categorized as transgender women (n=339) if they were born male and either identified as women (n=29), identified as transgender (n=296), or identified as male and used feminizing hormones (n=14). Using this expanded definition, among transgender women, no efficacy of PrEP was demonstrated. There were 11 infections among the PrEP group and 10 in the placebo group (HR 1.1, 95% CI: 0.5-2.7). By drug level testing (always versus less than always), compared with MSM, transgender women had less consistent PrEP use OR 0.39 (95% CI: 0.16-0.96). In the subsequent open-label extension study (see below), one transgender woman seroconverted while receiving PrEP and one seroconversion occurred in a woman who elected not to use PrEP.

US MSM Safety Trial

The US MSM Safety Trial[1] was a phase 2 randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of the clinical safety and behavioral effects of TDF for HIV prevention among 400 MSM in San Francisco, Boston, and Atlanta. Participants were randomly assigned 1:1:1:1 to receive daily oral TDF or placebo immediately or after a 9- month delay. Participants were seen for follow-up visits 1 month after enrollment and quarterly thereafter. Among those without directed drug interruptions, medication adherence was high: 92% by pill count and 77% by pill bottle openings recorded by Medication Event Monitoring System (MEMS) caps. Temporary drug interruptions and the overall frequency of adverse events did not differ significantly between TDF and placebo groups. In multivariable analyses, back pain was the only adverse event associated with receipt of TDF. In a subset of men at the San Francisco site (n=184) for whom bone mineral density (BMD) was assessed, receipt of TDF was associated with small decrease in BMD (1% decrease at the femoral neck, 0.8% decrease for total hip)[20]. TDF was not associated with reported bone fractures at any anatomical site. Among 7 seroconversions, no HIV with mutations associated with TDF resistance was detected. No HIV infections occurred while participants were being given TDF; 3 occurred in men while taking placebo, 3 occurred among men in the delayed TDF group who had not started receiving drug; 1 occurred in a man who had been randomly assigned to receive placebo and who was later determined to have had acute HIV infection at the enrollment visit.

Adolescent Trials Network (ATN) 082

ATN 082[21] was a randomized, blinded, pilot feasibility study comparing daily PrEP with TDF/FTC with and without a behavioral intervention (Many Men, Many Voices) to a third group with no pill and no behavioral intervention. Participants had study visits every 4 weeks with audio-computer assisted interviews (ACASI), blood draws, and risk-reduction counseling. The outcomes of interest were acceptability of study procedures, adherence to pill-taking, safety of TDF/FTC, and levels of sexual risk behaviors among a population of young (ages 18-22 years) MSM in Chicago. One hundred participants were to be followed for 24 weeks, but enrollment was stopped and the study was unblinded early when the iPrEx study published its efficacy result. Sixty-eight participants were enrolled. By drug level detection, adherence was modest at week 4 (62%), and declined to 20% by week 24. No HIV seroconversions were observed.

Ipergay (Intervention Préventive de l'Exposition aux Risques avec et pour les Gays)

The results of a randomized, blinded, trial of non-daily dosing of TDF/FTC or placebo for HIV preexposure prophylaxis has also been published[22] and is included here for completeness, although non-daily dosing is not currently recommended by the FDA or CDC.

Four-hundred MSM in France and Canada were randomized to a complex peri-coital dosing regimen that involved taking 1) 2 pills (TDF/FTC or placebo) between 2 and 24 hours before sex, 2) 1 pill 24 hours after the first dose, 3) 1 pill 48 hours after the first dose, 4) continuing daily pills if sexual activity continues until 48 hours after the last sex. If more than a 1 week break occurred since the last pill, retreatment initiation was with 2 pills before sex or if less than a 1 week break occurred since the last pill, retreatment initiation was with 1 pill before sex. Each pre-sex dose was then followed by the 2 post-sex doses. Study visits were scheduled at 4 and 8 weeks after enrollment, and then every 8 weeks. At study visits, participants completed a computer-assisted interview, had blood drawn, received adherence and risk reduction counseling, received diagnosis and treatment of STIs as indicated, and had a pill count and a medication refill. Following an interim analysis by the data and safety monitoring board at which efficacy was determined, the placebo group was discontinued and all study participants were offered TDF/FTC. In the blinded phase of the trial, efficacy was 86% (95% CI: 40-98). By self-report, patients took a median of 15 pills per month. By measured plasma drug levels in a subset of those randomized to TDF/FTC, 86% had TDF levels consistent with having taken the drug during the previous week.

Because of the high frequency of sex and therefore of pill-taking among those in this study population, it is not yet known whether the regimen will work if taken only a few hours or days before sex, without any buildup of the drug in rectal tissue from prior use. Studies suggest that it may take days, depending on the site of sexual exposure, for the active drug in PrEP to build up to an optimal level for preventing HIV infection. No data yet exist on how effective this regimen would be for heterosexual men and women, and persons who inject drugs, or on adherence to this relatively complex PrEP regimen outside a trial setting. IPERGAY findings, combined with other recent research, suggest that even with less than perfect daily adherence, PrEP may still offer substantial protection for MSM if taken consistently.

Daily oral PrEP with TDF/FTC is recommended as one HIV prevention option for sexually-active MSM at substantial risk of HIV acquisition because the iPrEx trial presents evidence of its safety and efficacy in this population, especially when medication adherence is high. (IA)

Published Observational and Open-Label Studies of Antiretroviral Preexposure Prophylaxis Among Men Who Have Sex with Men

iPrEx Open-Label Extension (OLE) Study

Persons previously enrolled in the iPrEx, ATN 082, and CDC safety PrEP clinical trials were enrolled in a 72 week open-label study and were offered PrEP free of charge[23]. Seventy-six percent of 1,603 persons (1,428 MSM and 175 transgender women) enrolled received PrEP. HIV incidence among those receiving PrEP was 1.8 per 100 person-years (py) versus 2.6 per 100 py in those concurrently not choosing PrEP (HR 0.51, 95% CI: 0.26-1.01), adjusted for baseline sexual behaviors. Among those receiving PrEP, by dried blood spot drug levels, there were no infections in persons with drug levels associated with having taken 4 or more doses per week ($p<0.0001$) compared with those taking < 2 doses per week.

PROUD Open-Label Extension (OLE) Study

PROUD was an open-label, randomized, wait-list controlled trial designed for MSM attending sexual health clinics in England[24]. A pilot was initiated to enroll 500 MSM, in which 275 men were randomized to receive daily oral TDF/FTC immediately, and 269 were deferred to start after 1 year. At an interim analysis, the data monitoring committee stopped the trial early for efficacy at an interim analysis and recommended that all deferred participants be offered PrEP. Follow-up was completed for 94% of those in the immediate PrEP arm and 90% of those in the deferred arm. PrEP efficacy was 86% (90% CI: 64-96).

Kaiser Permanente Observational Study

An evaluation of a specialized PrEP program provided at the Kaiser Permanente San Francisco Medical Center[25] reported on a cohort of 653 MSM, 3 heterosexual women, and 1 transgender man (with male sexual partners) who initiated PrEP between July 2012 and February 2015. Of these, 20 restarted PrEP after discontinuing it during the study period. The mean duration of use was 7.2 months. No HIV diagnoses were made during 388 py of follow-up on PrEP. No medication adherence measures were reported. After 12 months of use, 50% of PrEP users had received a diagnosis of one or more STI (95% CI: 26-35). In a recent report on PrEP patients seen at this center, as of February 2017, there were no HIV infections during 5104 py of PrEP use while they were being prescribed medication[26].

Demo Project Open-Label Study

In this demonstration project, conducted at 3 community-based clinics in the United States[27], MSM (n = 430) and transgender women (n=5) were offered daily oral TDF/FTC free of charge for 48 weeks. All patients received HIV testing, brief counseling, clinical monitoring, and STI diagnosis and treatment at quarterly follow-up visits. A subset of men underwent drug level monitoring with dried-blood spot testing and protective levels (associated with ≥4 doses per week) were high (80.0%-85.6%) at follow-up visits across the sites. STI incidence remained high but did not increase over time. Two men became infected (HIV incidence 0.43 infections per 100 py, 95% CI: 0.05-1.54), both of whom had drug levels consistent with having taken fewer than 2 doses per week at the visit when seroconversion was detected.

Ipergay Open-Label Extension (OLE) Study

Findings have been reported from the open-label phase of the Ipergay trial that enrolled 361 of the original trial participants[28]. All of the open-label study participants were provided peri-coital PrEP as in the original trial. After a mean follow-up time of 18.4 months (IQR: 17.7-19.1), the HIV incidence observed was 0.19 per 100 py which, compared to the incidence in the placebo group of the original trial (6.60 per 100 py), represented a 97% (95% CI: 81-100) relative reduction in HIV incidence. The one participant who acquired HIV had not taken any PrEP in the 30 days before his reactive HIV test and was in an ongoing relationship with an HIV positive partner. Of 336 participants with plasma drug levels obtained at the 6-month visit, 71% had tenofovir detected. By self-report, PrEP was used at the prescribed dosing for the most recent sexual intercourse by 50% of participants, with suboptimal dosing by 24%, and not used by 26%. Reported condomless receptive anal sex at most recent sexual intercourse increased from 77% at baseline to 86% at the 18-month follow-up visit (p=0.0004). The incidence of a first bacterial STI in the observational study (59.0 per 100 py) was not higher than that seen in the randomized trial (49.1 per 100 py) (p=0.11).

The frequency of pill-taking in the open label study population was higher (median 18 pills per month) than that in the original trial (median 15 pills per month), Therefore it remains unclear whether the regimen will be highly protective if taken only a few hours or days before sex, without any buildup of the drug from prior use.

Published Trials of Antiretroviral Preexposure Prophylaxis Among Heterosexual Men and Women

Partners PrEP Trial

The Partners PrEP trial[3,29] was a phase 3 randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of daily oral TDF/FTC or TDF for the prevention of acquisition of HIV by the uninfected partner in 4,758 HIV-discordant heterosexual couples in Uganda and Kenya. The trial was stopped after an interim analysis in mid-2011 showed statistically significant efficacy in the medication groups (TDF/FTC or TDF) compared with the placebo group. In 48% of couples, the infected partner was male. HIV-positive partners had a median CD4 count of 495 cells/μL and were not being prescribed antiretroviral therapy because they were not eligible by local treatment guidelines. Participants had monthly follow-up visits and the study drug was discontinued among women who became pregnant during the trial.

Adherence to medication was very high: 98% by pills dispensed, 92% by pill count, and 82% by plasma drug-level testing among randomly selected participants in the TDF and TDF/FTC study groups. Rates of serious adverse events and serum creatinine or phosphorus abnormalities did not differ by study group. Modest increases in gastrointestinal symptoms and fatigue were reported in the antiretroviral medication groups compared with the placebo group, primarily in the first month of use. Among participants of both sexes combined, efficacy estimates for each of the 2 antiretroviral regimens compared with placebo were 67% (95% CI, 44-81) for TDF and 75% (95% CI, 55-87) for TDF/FTC. Among women, the estimated efficacy was 71% for TDF and 66% for TDF/FTC. Among men, the estimated efficacy was 63% for TDF and 84% for TDF/FTC. Efficacy estimates by drug regimen were not statistically different among men, women, men and women combined, or between men and women. In a Partners PrEP substudy that measured plasma TDF levels among participants randomly assigned to receive TDF/FTC, detectable drug was associated with a 90% reduction in the risk of HIV acquisition. TDF- or FTC- resistant virus was detected in 3 of 14 persons determined to have been infected when enrolled (2 of 5 in the TDF group; 1 of 3 in the TDF/FTC group)[8]. No TDF or FTC resistant virus was detected among those infected after enrollment. Among women, the pregnancy rate was high (10.3 per 100 py) and rates did not differ significantly between the study groups.

TDF2 Trial

The Botswana TDF2 Trial[4], a phase 2 randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of the safety and efficacy of daily oral TDF/FTC, enrolled 1,219 heterosexual men and women in Botswana, and follow-up has been completed. Participants were seen for monthly follow-up visits, and study drug was discontinued in women who became pregnant during the trial.

Among participants of both sexes combined, the efficacy of TDF/FTC was 62% (22%-83%). Efficacy estimates by sex did not statistically differ from each other or from the overall estimate, although the small number of endpoints in the subsets of men and women limited the statistical power to detect a difference. Compliance with study visits was low: 33.1% of participants did not complete the study per protocol. However, many were re-engaged for an exit visit, and 89.3% of enrolled participants had a final HIV test.

Among 3 participants later found to have been infected at enrollment, TDF/FTC-resistant virus was detected in 1 participant in the TDF/FTC group and a low level of TDF/FTC-resistant virus was transiently detected in 1 participant in the placebo group. No resistant virus was detected in the 33 participants who seroconverted after enrollment.

Medication adherence by pill count was 84% in both groups. Nausea, vomiting, and dizziness occurred more commonly, primarily during the first month of use, among those randomly assigned to TDF/FTC than among those assigned to placebo. The groups did not differ in rates of serious clinical or laboratory adverse events. Pregnancy rates and rates of fetal loss did not differ by study group.

FEM-PrEP Trial

The FEM-PrEP trial[30] was a phase 3 randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of the HIV prevention efficacy and clinical safety of daily TDF/FTC among heterosexual women in South Africa, Kenya, and Tanzania. Participants were seen at monthly follow-up visits, and study drug was discontinued among women who became pregnant during the trial. The trial was stopped in 2011, when an interim analysis determined that the trial would be unlikely to detect a statistically significant difference in efficacy between the two study groups.

Adherence was low in this trial: study drug was detected in plasma samples of <50% of women randomly assigned to TDF/FTC. Among adverse events, only nausea and vomiting (in the first month) and transient, modest elevations in liver function test values were more common among those assigned to TDF/FTC than those assigned to placebo. No changes in renal function were seen in either group. Initial analyses of efficacy results showed 4.7 infections per 100/ person-years in the TDF/FTC group and 5.0 infections per 100 person-years in the placebo group. The hazard ratio 0.94 (95% CI, 0.59-1.52) indicated no reduction in HIV incidence associated with TDF/FTC use. Of the 68 women who acquired HIV infection during the trial, TDF or FTC resistant virus was detected in 5 women: 1 in the placebo group and 4 in the TDF/FTC group. In multivariate analyses, there was no association between pregnancy rate and study group.

Phase 2 Trial of Preexposure Prophylaxis with Tenofovir Among Women in Ghana, Cameroon, and Nigeria

A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial of oral tenofovir TDF was conducted among heterosexual women in West Africa - Ghana (n = 200), Cameroon (n = 200), and Nigeria (n = 136)[31]. The study was designed to assess the safety of TDF use and the efficacy of daily TDF in reducing the rate of HIV infection. The Cameroon and Nigeria study sites were closed prematurely because operational obstacles developed, so participant follow-up data were insufficient for the planned efficacy analysis. Analysis of trial safety data from Ghana and Cameroon found no statistically significant differences in grade 3 or 4 hepatic or renal events or in reports of clinical adverse events. Eight HIV seroconversions occurred among women in the trial: 2 among women in the TDF group (rate=0.86 per 100 person-years) and 6 among women receiving placebo (rate, 2.48 per 100 person-years), yielding a rate ratio of 0.35 (95% CI, 0.03-1.93; p=0.24). Blood specimens were available from 1 of the 2 participants who seroconverted while taking TDF; standard genotypic analysis revealed no evidence of drug-resistance mutations.

VOICE (Vaginal and Oral Interventions to Control the Epidemic) Trial

VOICE (MTN-003)[32] was a phase 2B randomized, double-blind study comparing oral (TDF or TDF/FTC) and topical vaginal (tenofovir) antiretroviral regimens against corresponding oral and topical placebos among 5,029 heterosexual women enrolled in eastern and southern Africa. Of these women, 3,019 were randomly assigned to daily oral medication (TDF/FTC, 1,003; TDF, 1,007; oral placebo, 1,009). In 2011, the trial group receiving oral TDF and the group receiving topical tenofovir were stopped after interim analyses determined futility. The group receiving oral TDF/FTC continued to the planned trial conclusion.

After the exclusion of 15 women later determined to have had acute HIV infection when enrolled in an oral medication group and 27 with no follow-up visit after baseline, 52 incident HIV infections occurred in the oral TDF group, 61 in the TDF/FTC group, and 60 in the oral placebo group. Effectiveness was not significant for either oral PrEP medication group; –49%% for TDF (hazard ratio [HR] 1.49; 95% CI, 0.97-2.29) and –4.4% for TDF/FTC (HR, 1.04; 95% CI, 0.73-1.49) in the modified-intent-to-treat analysis.

Face-to-face interview, audio computer-assisted self-interview, and pill-count medication adherence were high in all 3 groups (84%-91%). However, among 315 participants in the random cohort of the case-cohort subset for whom quarterly plasma samples were available, tenofovir was detected, on average, in 30% of samples from women randomly assigned to TDF and in 29% of samples from women randomly assigned to TDF/FTC. No drug was detected at any quarterly visit during study participation for 58% of women in the TDF group and 50% of women in the TDF/FTC group. The percentage of samples with detectable drug was less than 40% in all study drug groups and declined throughout the study. In a multivariate analysis that adjusted for baseline confounding variables (including age, marital status), the detection of study drug was not associated with reduced risk of HIV acquisition.

The number of confirmed creatinine elevations (grade not specified) observed was higher in the oral TDF/FTC group than in the oral placebo group. However, there were no significant differences between active product and placebo groups for other safety outcomes. Of women determined after enrollment to have had acute HIV infection at baseline, two women from the TDF/FTC group had virus with the M184I/V mutation associated with FTC resistance. One woman in the TDF/FTC group who acquired HIV infection after enrollment had virus with the M184I/V mutation; No participants with HIV infection had virus with a mutation associated with tenofovir resistance.

In summary, although low adherence and operational issues precluded reliable conclusions regarding efficacy in 3 trials (VOICE, FEM-PrEP and the West African trial)[33], 2 trials (Partners PrEP and TDF2) with high medication adherence have provided substantial evidence of efficacy among heterosexual men and women. All 5 trials have found PrEP to be safe for these populations.

Daily oral PrEP with TDF/FTC is recommended as one HIV prevention option for heterosexually-active men and women at substantial risk of HIV acquisition because these trials present evidence of its safety and 2 present evidence of efficacy in these populations, especially when medication adherence is high. Published Trial of Antiretroviral Preexposure Prophylaxis Among Persons Who Inject Drugs

Bangkok Tenofovir Study (BTS)

BTS[5] was a phase 3 randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of the safety and efficacy of daily oral TDF for HIV prevention among 2,413 PWID (also called IDU) in Bangkok, Thailand[5] The study was conducted at drug treatment clinics; 22% of participants were receiving methadone treatment at baseline. At each monthly visit, participants could choose to receive either a 28-day supply of pills or to receive medication daily by directly- observed therapy. Study clinics (n=17) provided condoms, bleach (for cleaning injection equipment), methadone, primary medical care, and social services free of charge. Participants were followed for 4.6 years (mean) and received directly- observed therapy 87% of the time.

In the modified intent- to-treat analysis (excluding 2 participants with evidence of HIV infection at enrollment), efficacy of TDF was 48.9% (95% CI, 9.6-72.2; P = .01). A post-hoc modified intent-to-treat analysis was done, removing 2 additional participants in whom HIV infection was identified within 28 days of enrollment, including only participants on directly observed therapy who met pre-established criteria for high adherence (taking a pill at least 71% of days and missing no more than two consecutive doses), and had detectable levels of tenofovir in their blood. Among this set of participants, the efficacy of TDF in plasma was associated with a 73.5% reduction in the risk for HIV acquisition (95% CI, 16.6-94.0; $P = .03$). Among participants in an unmatched case-control study that included the 50 persons with incident HIV infection and 282 participants at 4 clinics who remained HIV uninfected, detection of TDF in plasma was associated with a 70.0% reduction in the risk for acquiring HIV infection (95% CI, 2.3-90.6; $P = .04$).

Rates of nausea and vomiting were higher among TDF than among placebo recipients in the first 2 months of medication but not thereafter. The rates of adverse events, deaths, or elevated creatinine did not differ significantly between the TDF and the placebo groups. Among the 49 HIV infections for which viral RNA could be amplified (of 50 incident infections and 2 infections later determined to have been present at enrollment), no virus with mutations associated with TDF resistance were identified.

Among participants with HIV infection followed up for a maximum of 24 months, HIV plasma viral load was lower in the TDF than in the placebo group at the visit when HIV infection was detected ($P = .01$), but not thereafter ($P = .10$).

Published Open-Label Study of Antiretroviral Preexposure Prophylaxis Among Person Who Inject Drugs

Bangkok Tenofovir Study (BTS) Open-Label Extension (OLE) Study

All 1315 participants in the randomized trial (BTS) who were HIV-negative and had no renal contraindication were offered daily oral TDF for 1 year in an open label extension study[34]. Sixty-one percent (n=798) elected to take PrEP. Participants who were older (≥30 years, $p<0.0001$), injected heroin ($p=0.007$) or had been in prison ($p=0.0007$) were more likely to start PrEP than those without these characteristics. Twenty-eight percent (n=220) did not return for any follow-up visits. Those who had injected heroin ($p=0.01$) or had been in prison ($p=0.0007$) during the 3 months before the open label study returned for a follow-up visit. Overall, by diary, adherence was lower in the open label study (38.5 % of days) than in the randomized clinical trial (83.8% of days). Those who injected midazolam ($p=0.02$) or were in prison ($p<0.0001$) during the open label study were more likely to be more than 90% adherent than those without these characteristics. During a median 335 days of follow-up, one HIV infection occurred in a participant who reported not taking any doses during the 60 days before the positive test, yielding an HIV incidence of 2.1 per 1000 py (95% CI: 0.05-11.7). Among the 339 (42%) who completed a 12-month follow-up visit, injection and needle sharing did not increase during the open-label study.

Daily oral PrEP with TDF/FTC (or TDF alone) is recommended as one HIV prevention option for PWID at substantial risk of HIV acquisition because this trial presents evidence of the safety and efficacy of TDF as PrEP in this population, especially when medication adherence is high. (IA)

Identifying Indications for PrEP

Taking a sexual history is recommended for all adult and adolescent patients as part of ongoing primary care, but the sexual history is often deferred because of urgent care issues, provider discomfort, or anticipated patient discomfort. This deferral is common among providers of primary care[36], STI care[37], and HIV care[38-40].

Routinely taking a sexual history is a necessary first step to identify which patients in a clinical practice are having sex with same-sex partners, which are having sex with opposite-sex partners, and what specific sexual behaviors may place them at risk for, or protect them from, HIV acquisition. To identify the sexual health needs of all their patients, clinicians should not limit sexual history assessments to only selected patients (e.g., young, unmarried persons or women seeking contraception), because new HIV infections and STIs are occurring in all adult and adolescent age groups, both sexes, and both married and unmarried persons. The clinician can introduce this topic by stating that taking a brief sexual history is routine practice, go on to explain that the information is necessary to the provision of individually appropriate sexual health care, and close by reaffirming the confidentiality of patient information.

Transgender persons are those whose sex at birth differs from their self-identified gender. Although the effectiveness of PrEP for transgender women has not yet been definitively proven in trials[19], and trials have not been conducted among transgender men, PrEP has been shown to reduce the risk for HIV acquisition during anal sex and penile-vaginal sex. Therefore, its use may be considered in all persons at risk of acquiring HIV sexually.

Assessing Risk of Sexual HIV Acquisition

Because offering PrEP is currently indicated for MSM at substantial risk of HIV acquisition, it is important to consider that although 76% of MSM surveyed in 2008 in 21 US cities reported a health care visit during the past year[41], other studies reported that health care providers do not ask about, and patients often do not disclose, same-sex behaviors[42]. Box A1 contains a set of brief questions designed to identify men who are currently having sex with men and to assess a key set of sexual practices that are associated with the risk of HIV acquisition. In studies to develop scored risk indexes predictive of incident HIV infection among MSM[43,44] (see Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 6), several critical factors were identified.

Box A1: Risk Behavior Assessment for MSM[44]

In the past 6 months:

- Have you had sex with men, women, or both?
- (if men or both sexes) How many men have you had sex with?
- How many times did you have receptive anal sex (you were the bottom) with a man who was not wearing a condom?
- How many of your male sex partners were HIV-positive?
- (if any positive) With these HIV-positive male partners, how many times did you have insertive anal sex (you were the top) without you wearing a condom?
- Have you used methamphetamines (such as crystal or speed)?

Box A2 contains a set of brief questions designed to identify women and men who are currently having sex with opposite-sex partners (heterosexually active) and to assess a key set of sexual practices that are associated with the risk of HIV acquisition as identified both in PrEP trials and epidemiologic studies[45-48].

Box A2: Risk Behavior Assessment for Heterosexual Men and Women

In the past 6 months:

- Have you had sex with men, women, or both?
- (if opposite sex or both sexes) How many men/women have you had sex with?
- How many times did you have vaginal or anal sex when neither you nor your partner wore a condom?
- How many of your sex partners were HIV-positive?
- (if any positive) With these HIV-positive partners, how many times did you have vaginal or anal sex without a condom?

In addition, for all sexually active patients, clinicians may want to consider reports of diagnoses of bacterial STIs (chlamydia, syphilis, gonorrhea) during the past 6 months as evidence of sexual activity that could result in HIV exposure. For heterosexual women and men, sex without a condom (or its correct use) may also be indicated by recent pregnancy of a female patient or sexual partner of a male patient.

Clinicians should also briefly screen all patients for alcohol abuse[49] (especially before sexual activity) and the use of illicit non-injection drugs (e.g., amyl nitrite, stimulants) [50,51]. The use of these substances may affect sexual risk behavior[52], hepatic or renal health, or medication adherence, any of which may affect decisions about the appropriateness of prescribing PrEP medication. In addition, if substance abuse is reported, the clinician should provide referral for appropriate treatment or harm-reduction services acceptable to the patient.

Lastly, clinicians should consider the epidemiologic context of the sexual practices reported by the patient. The risk of HIV acquisition is determined by both the frequency of specific sexual practices

(e.g., unprotected anal intercourse) and the likelihood that a sex partner has HIV infection. The same behaviors when reported as occurring in communities and demographic populations with high HIV prevalence or occurring with partners known to have HIV infection, are more likely to result in exposure to HIV and so will indicate greater need for intensive risk-reduction methods (PrEP, multisession behavioral counseling) than when they occur in a community or population with low HIV prevalence (see http://www.AIDSvu.org or http://www.cdc.gov/nchhstp/atlas/).

After assessing the risk of HIV acquisition, clinicians should discuss with the patient which of several effective prevention methods (e.g., PrEP, behavioral interventions) will be pursued (see CDC HIV risk reduction tool at https://wwwn.cdc.gov/hivrisk/estimator.html#). When supporting consistent and correct condom use is feasible and the patient is motivated to achieve it, high levels of protection against both HIV and several STIs[48] are afforded without the side effects or cost of medication. A clinician can support consistent condom use by providing brief clinical counseling (see Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 11), by referring the patient to behavioral medicine or health education staff in the clinical setting, or by referring the patient to community-based or local health department counseling and support services.

Reported consistent ("always") condom use is associated with an 80% reduction in HIV acquisition among heterosexual couples[53] and 70% among MSM[57]. However, inconsistent condom use is less effective[45,55], and studies have reported low rates of recent consistent condom use among MSM[57,59] and other sexually active adults[57]. Especially low rates have been reported when condom use was measured over several months rather than during most recent sex or the past 30 days[58]. Therefore, unless the patient reports confidence that consistent condom use can be achieved, additional HIV prevention methods, including the consideration of PrEP should be provided while continuing to support condom.

A patient who reports that 1 or more regular sex partners is of unknown HIV status should be offered HIV testing for those partners, either in the clinician's practice or at a confidential testing site (see zip code lookup at http://www.hivtest.org/).

Lastly, for any regular sex partner reported to be HIV-positive, clinician should determine whether the HIV-negative patient knows if the HIV-positive partner is receiving antiretroviral therapy and whether a recent evaluation indicates an undetectable viral load. In addition to the known health benefits of viral load suppression by antiretroviral therapy, a recent clinical trial (HPTN 052[59]) demonstrated that antiretroviral therapy also substantially protects against HIV transmission to a heterosexual partner. Among 1,753 HIV discordant couples where the infected partner was treated, transmission risk was reduced 93%. All documented infections where viral genetic linkage was confirmed occurred in the context of an unsuppressed viral load in the partner initially infected with HIV. Another study included 548 HET and 340 MSM HIV-discordant couples where the partner with HIV infection was virally suppressed with antiretroviral treatment[60,61]. This study observed no HIV transmissions to the uninfected partner despite approximately 58,000 reported episodes of condomless vaginal or anal intercourse during 1,200 couple/years of observation substantial protection (100%). However, some persons who know they have HIV infection may not be in care, may not be receiving antiretroviral therapy, may not be receiving highly effective regimens, may not be adherent to their medications, or for other reasons may not have viral loads that are associated with the least risk of transmission to an uninfected sex partner[62,63]. In addition, clinicians providing care to the HIV-negative patient may not have access to the medical records of the HIV-positive partner to document their recent viral load status and over time.

Assessing Risk of HIV Acquisition Through Injection Practices

Although the annual number of new HIV infections among PWID in the United States has declined, a sizable number occur each year. In 2010, PWID accounted for 8% of estimated incident HIV infections[13]. According to the National HIV Behavioral Surveillance System (NHBS)[64] substantial proportions of PWID report sharing syringes (34%) and sharing injection equipment (58%). In addition, in NHBS and epidemiologic studies conducted with PWID, most PWID report sexual behaviors that also confer risk of HIV acquisition[65]. Because of the efficacy and safety demonstrated in the PrEP trial with PWID, providing PrEP to those who report injection behaviors that place them at substantial risk of acquiring HIV infection could contribute to HIV prevention for PWID at both the individual and the population level.

Although current evidence is insufficient for a recommendation that all patients be screened for injection or other illicit drug use, the US Preventive Services Task Force recommends that clinicians be alert to the signs and symptoms of illicit drug use in patients[66]. Clinicians should determine whether patients who are currently using illicit drugs are in (or want to enter) behavioral, medication-assisted, or in-patient drug treatment. For persons with a history of injecting illicit drugs but who are currently not injecting, clinicians should assess the risk of relapse along with the patients' use of relapse prevention services (e.g., a drug-related behavioral support program, use of mental health services, 12-step program).

Box A3 contains a set of brief questions that may help identify persons who are injecting illicit drugs, and to assess a key set of injection practices that are associated with the risk of HIV acquisition as identified in the PrEP trial with PWID[5] and in epidemiologic studies[64,67] (for a scored risk index predictive of incident HIV infection among PWID[63], see the Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 7)

- In the past 6 months, have you injected by using needles, syringes, or other drug preparation equipment that had already been used by another person?
- In the past 6 months, have you been in a methadone or other medication-based drug treatment program?

Box B3: Recommended Indications for PrEP Use by Persons Who Inject Drugs

- Adult person
- Without acute or established HIV infection
- Any injection of drugs not prescribed by a clinician in past 6 months

AND at least one of the following

- Any sharing of injection or drug preparation equipment in past 6 months
- Risk of sexual acquisition (also evaluate by criteria in Box B1 or B2)

PrEP or other HIV prevention should be integrated with prevention and clinical care services for the many health threats PWID may face (e.g., hepatitis B and C infection, abscesses, septicemia, endocarditis, overdose)[69] In addition, referrals for drug treatment, mental health services, and social services may be indicated.

Laboratory Tests and Other Diagnostic Procedures

All patients whose sexual or drug injection history indicates consideration of PrEP and who are interested in taking PrEP must undergo laboratory testing to identify those for whom this intervention would be harmful or for whom it would present specific health risks that would require close monitoring.

HIV testing

HIV testing and the documentation of results are required to confirm that patients do not have HIV infection when they start taking PrEP medications. For patient safety, HIV testing and should be repeated at least every 3 months (before prescriptions are refilled or reissued). This requirement should be explained to patients during the discussion about whether PrEP is appropriate for them.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the US Preventive Services Task Force recommends that MSM, PWID, patients with a sex partner who has HIV infection, and others at substantial risk of HIV acquisition undergo an HIV test at least annually or for those with additional risk factors, every 3-6 months[70,71]. However, outside the context of PrEP delivery, testing is often not done as frequently as recommended[72].

Clinicians should document a negative antibody test result within the week before initiating (or reinitiating) PrEP medications, ideally with an antigen/antibody test conducted by a laboratory. The required HIV testing can be accomplished by (1) drawing blood (serum) and sending the specimen to a laboratory for an antigen/antibody test or and antibody-only test or (2) performing a rapid, point-of-care, FDA-approved, fingerstick blood test. Rapid tests that use oral fluid should not be used to screen for HIV infection when considering PrEP use because they can be less sensitive than blood tests[73]. Clinicians should not accept patient-reported test results or documented anonymous test results. A preliminary positive HIV antibody test must be confirmed according to the local laboratory standard practice[74] and viral load and CD4 lymphocyte tests should be ordered to assist in future treatment decisions.

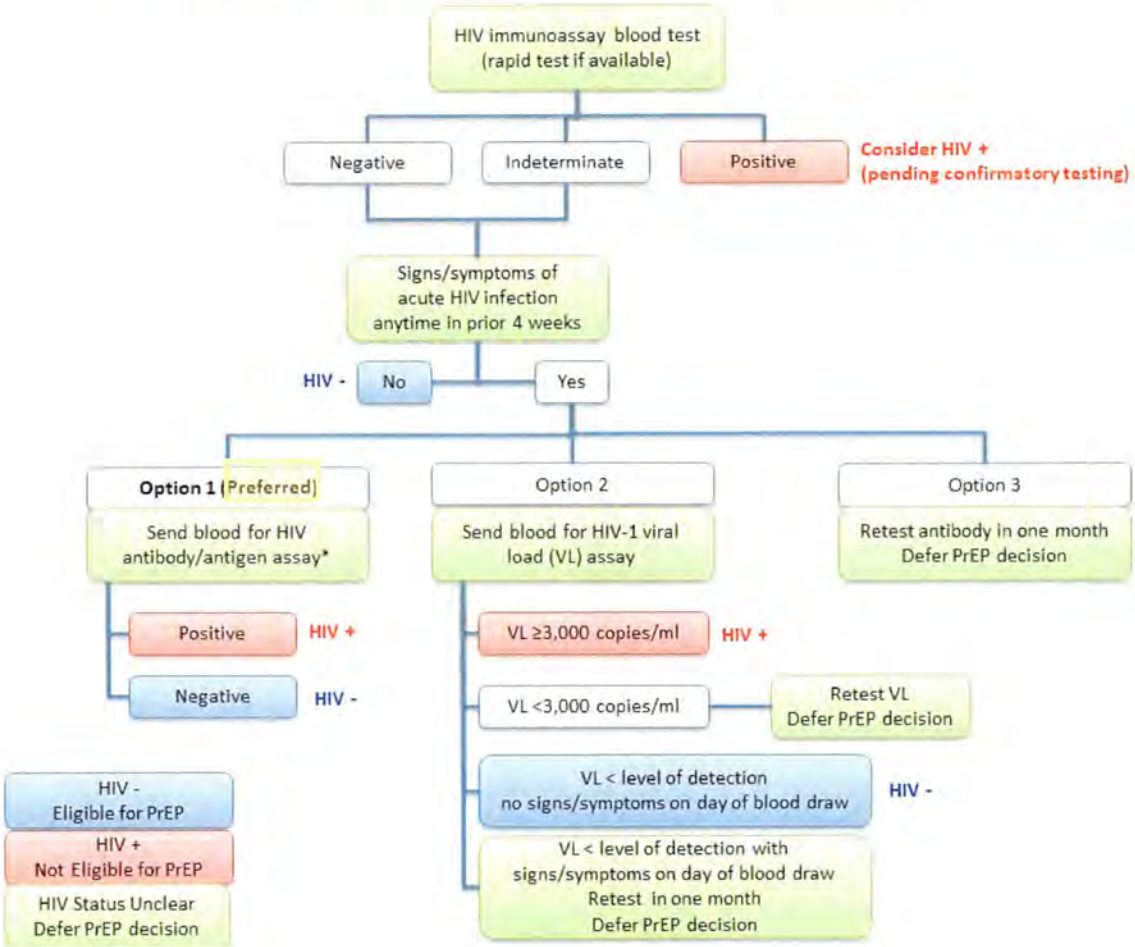
See http://www.cdc.gov/hiv/testing/laboratorytests.html for FDA-approved HIV tests, specimen requirements, and time to detection of HIV infection.

Acute HIV Infection

In the iPrEx trial, drug-resistant virus developed in 2 persons with unrecognized acute HIV infection at enrollment and for whom TDF/FTC had been dispensed. These participants had negative antibody test results before they started taking PrEP, tested positive at a later study visit, and PCR (polymerase chain reaction) on stored specimens from the initial visit detected the presence of virus. When questioned, most of the 10 acutely infected participants (8 of whom had been randomly assigned the placebo group) reported signs and symptoms consistent with a viral syndrome[2]. Both acutely infected patients to whom TDF/FTC had been dispensed had the M184V/I mutation associated with emtricitabine resistance, but not the K65R mutation associated with tenofovir resistance[2]. Among participants who were dispensed PrEP medication in the US MSM Safety Trial and in the Partners PrEP, TDF2, and VOICE trials (see Table 6), the M184V mutation, developed in several persons who were enrolled and had started taking medication with unrecognized acute HIV infection but K65R developed in only one (in the TDF2 study). However, no mutations emerged in persons who acquired infection after baseline. In the one trial with very low medication adherence that has published its resistance testing results, the emtricitabine resistance mutation, but not the K65R mutation was found in a few persons with incident infection after baseline (4 persons in the FEM-PrEP trial).



PrEP is indicated for MSM, heterosexual men and women, and PWID who report injection or sexual behaviors that place them at substantial risk of HIV acquisition. Therefore clinicians should suspect acute HIV infection in persons known to have been exposed recently (e.g., a condom broke during sex with an HIV-infected partner, relapse to injection drug use with shared injection equipment). In addition, clinicians should solicit a history of nonspecific signs or symptoms of viral infection during the preceding month or on the day of evaluation (see Table 8) in all PrEP candidates with a negative or an indeterminate result on an HIV antigen/antibody or antibody-only test.

The figure below illustrates the recommended clinical testing algorithm to establish HIV infection status before the initiation of PrEP or its re-initiation after more than a week off PrEP medication. . Laboratory antigen/antibody tests (option 1) are preferred because they have the highest sensitivity for detecting acute HIV infection which is associated with high viral loads. While viral load testing is sensitive (option 2), healthcare providers should be aware that available assays might yield false-positive low viral load results (e.g., <3,000 copies/mL) among persons without HIV infection. Without confirmatory tests, such false-positive results can lead to misdiagnosis of HIV infection.[76,77] Repeat antibody testing (option 3) is least preferred because it delays determination of true HIV status and uninfected patients may have additional exposures and become infected without PrEP while waiting to retest. When clinicians prescribe PrEP based solely on the results of antibody-only or rapid tests, ordering a laboratory antigen/antibody test at the time baseline labs are drawn is recommended. This will increase the likelihood of detecting unrecognized acute infection so that PrEP can be stopped and the patient started on antiretroviral treatment in a timely manner.

RENAL FUNCTION

In addition to confirming that any person starting PrEP medication is not infected with HIV, a clinician should determine renal function and test for infection with hepatitis B virus (HBV) because both decreased renal function and active HBV infection are potential safety issues for the use of TDF/FTC as PrEP.

TDF is widely used in combination antiretroviral regimens for the treatment of HIV infection[78]. Among HIV-infected persons prescribed TDF-containing regimens, decreases in renal function (as measured by estimated creatinine clearance [eCrCl]) have been documented, and occasional cases of acute renal failure, including Fanconi's syndrome, have occurred [79-81].

In the PrEP trials among otherwise healthy, HIV-uninfected adults, an eCrCl of ≥60 ml/min was an eligibility criterion. Safety data for TDF/FTC prescribed to persons with reduced renal function are not available. Therefore, for all persons considered for PrEP, a serum creatinine test should be done, and an eCrCL should be calculated by using the Cockcroft-Gault formula (see Box C). Any person with an eCrCl of <60 ml/min should not be prescribed PrEP with TDF/FTC.

Box C Cockcroft-Gault Formulas

Basic Formula[82]

$eCrCl_{CG}$ = [[(140 - age) × IBW × 0.85 for females] ÷ (serum creatinine × 72)]

IBW = ideal body weight Males: IBW = 50 kg + 2.3 kg for each inch over 5 feet
Females: IBW = 45.5 kg + 2.3 kg for each inch over 5 feet

Age in years, weight in kg, and serum creatinine in mg/100mL

Optional adjustment for low actual body weight[83]
If the actual body weight is less than the IBW (ideal body weight) use the actual body weight for calculating the eCrCl.

Optional adjustment of high actual body weight[83]
Used only if the actual body weight is 30% greater than the IBW. Otherwise, the IBW is used.

AjBW = IBW + 0.3(ABW - IBW)
AjBW = adjusted body weight ABW = actual body weight

Optional adjustment for body surface area (BSA)[84]
Can be used if actual body weight is greater or less than IBW

BSA (DuBois and DuBois formula[74]) = (height (m)$^{0.725}$ × weight (kg)$^{0.425}$) ÷ 139.2

Hepatitis Serology

Sexually active adults (especially MSM), and persons who inject illicit drugs, are at risk of acquiring HBV infection[85] and hepatitis C virus (HCV) infection[86].

Vaccination against HBV is recommended for all adolescents and adults at substantial risk for HIV infection, especially for MSM. Therefore, HBV infection status should be documented by screening serology before TDF/FTC is prescribed as PrEP (see Table 9). Those patients determined to be susceptible to HBV infection should be vaccinated. Those patients found to be HBsAg positive should be evaluated for possible treatment either by the clinician providing PrEP care or by linkage to an experienced HBV care provider.

HBV infection is not a contraindication to PrEP use. Both TDF and FTC are active against HBV[87]. HBV-monoinfected patients taking TDF or FTC, whether as PrEP or to treat HBV infection, who then stop these medications must have their liver function closely monitored for reactivation of HBV replication that can result in hepatic damage[6].

Table 9: Hepatitis B Screening Serology

HBsAg	Total anti-HBc	IgM anti-HBc	anti-HBs	Interpretation	Action
Negative	Negative	—	Negative	Susceptible	Vaccinate
Negative	Positive	—	Positive*	Immune (natural infection)	Document
Negative	Negative	—	Positive*	Immune (prior vaccination)	Document

For additional guidance about the management of PrEP in persons with chronic active HBV infection see the section Special Clinical Considerations.

Serologic testing for HCV is recommended for persons who have ever injected drugs[88]. MSM at substantial risk for HIV infection being started on PrEP have been shown to have a high prevalence of HCV infection [89,90,91]. Therefore, MSM starting PrEP should be tested for HCV infection as a part of baseline laboratory assessment. HCV testing for all sexually active persons starting PrEP is a recommended consideration by guidance from the American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases (AASLD) and the Infectious Disease Society of America (IDSA)[92]. In addition, persons born during 1945 through 1965 should be tested for HCV at least once in a lifetime (without prior ascertainment of HCV risk factors). Guidance from AASLD-IDSA recommends annual HCV retesting for PWID, and clinicians can consider annual retesting for other persons with ongoing risk of HCV exposure[92].

Patients with active HCV infection (HCV RNA+ with or without anti-HCV seropositivity) should be evaluated for possible treatment because TDF/FTC does not treat HCV infection. When the clinician providing PrEP care is not able to provide HCV care, the patient should be linked to an experienced HCV care provider

Testing for Sexually transmitted Infections

Tests to screen for syphilis are recommended for all adults prescribed PrEP, both at screening and at semi-annual visits. See the 2015 STD guidelines for recommended assays[93].

Tests to screen for gonorrhea are recommended for all sexually active adults prescribed PrEP, both at screening and at semi-annual visits. Tests to screen for chlamydia are recommended for all sexually active MSM prescribed PrEP, both at screening prior to initiation and at semi-annual visits.

Because chlamydia is very common, especially in young women[94] and does not strongly correlate with risk of HIV acquisition[61], regular screening for chlamydia is not recommended for all sexually active women as a component of PrEP care. However, clinicians should refer to the 2015 STD guidelines for recommendations about chlamydia testing frequency for women regardless of PrEP use[93].

For gonorrhea and chlamydia testing in MSM, NAAT tests are preferred because of their sensitivity. Pharyngeal, rectal, and urine specimens should be collected ("3-site testing") to maximize the identification of infection, which may occur at any of these sites of exposure during sex. Self-collected samples have equivalent performance as clinician-obtained samples [95-97] and can help streamline patient visit flow.

For gonorrhea testing in women, vaginal specimens for NAAT tests are preferred. They may also be self-collected. For women who report engaging in anal sex, rectal specimens for gonorrhea and chlamydia testing should be collected in addition to vaginal specimens[98-100]. Studies have estimated that 29% of HIV infections in women are linked to sex with MSM (i.e., bisexual men)[101,102], and that more than 1/3 of women report having had anal sex[103]. In the HPTN 064 trial that recruited women at high risk of HIV acquisition, 38% reported condomless anal sex in the 6 months prior to enrollment[104]. Identifying asymptomatic rectal gonorrhea in women at substantial risk for HIV infection and providing treatment can provide benefits to the woman's health and help reduce the burden of infection in her sexual networks as well[105,106], especially when accompanied by partner services[107] or expedited partner therapy[108-110].

Providing PrEP

Goals of PrEP Therapy

The ultimate goal of PrEP is to reduce the acquisition of HIV infection with its resulting morbidity, mortality, and cost to individuals and society. Therefore clinicians initiating the provision of PrEP should

- Prescribe medication regimens that are proven safe and effective for uninfected persons who meet recommended criteria to reduce their risk of HIV acquisition
- Educate patients about the medications and the regimen to maximize their safe use
- Provide support for medication-adherence to help patients achieve and maintain protective levels of medication in their bodies
- Provide HIV risk-reduction support and prevention services or service referrals to help patients minimize their exposure to HIV
- Provide effective contraception to women who are taking PrEP and who do not wish to become pregnant
- Monitor patients to detect HIV infection, medication toxicities, and levels of risk behavior in order to make indicated changes in strategies to support patients' long-term health

Indicated Medication

The medication proven safe and effective, and currently approved by FDA for PrEP in healthy adults at risk of acquiring HIV infection, is the fixed-dose combination of TDF and FTC in a single daily dose (see Table 10). Therefore, TDF/FTC is the recommended medication that should be prescribed for PrEP for MSM, heterosexually active men and women, and PWID who meet recommended criteria. Because TDF alone has been proven effective in trials with PWID and heterosexually active men and women, it can be considered as an alternative regimen for these specific populations. As PrEP for MSM, TDF alone is not recommended because no trials have been done, so the efficacy of TDF alone for MSM is unknown.

Table 10: Recommended Oral PrEP Medications

Generic Name	Trade Name	Dose	Frequency	Common Side Effects[73]
Tenofovir disoproxil fumarate (TDF)	Viread	300 mg	Once a day	Nausea, flatulence
Emtricitabine (FTC)[a]	Emtriva	200 mg	Once a day	Rash, headache
TDF + FTC	Truvada	300mg/200 mg	Once a day	—

[a] Not recommended alone; only for use in combination with TDF.

In addition to the safety data obtained in PrEP clinical trials, data on drug interactions and longer-term toxicities have been obtained by studying the component drugs individually for their use in treatment of HIV-infected persons. Studies have also been done in small numbers of HIV-uninfected, healthy adults (see Table 11).

Table 11: PrEP Medication Drug Interactions [6,80]

	TDF	FTC
Buprenorphine	No significant effect. No dosage adjustment necessary.	No data
Methadone	No significant effect. No dosage adjustment necessary.	No data
Oral contraceptives	No significant effect. No dosage adjustment necessary.	No data
Acyclovir, valacyclovir, cidofovir, ganciclovir, valganciclovir, aminoglycosides, high-dose or multiple NSAIDS or other drugs that reduce renal function or compete for active renal tubular secretion	Serum concentrations of these drugs and/or TDF may be increased. Monitor for dose-related renal toxicities.	No data
Ledipasvir/sofosbuvir	Serum concentrations of TDF may be increased. Monitor for toxicities.	No significant effect

WHAT NOT TO USE

No antiretroviral regimens should be used for PrEP other than a daily oral dose of TDF/FTC, or a daily dose of TDF alone as an alternative only for PWID and heterosexually active adults.

Other medications and other dosing schedules have not yet been shown to be safe or effective in preventing HIV acquisition among otherwise healthy adults and are not approved by FDA for PrEP.

- Do not use other antiretroviral medications (e.g., 3TC, TAF [tenofovir alafenamide]), either in place of, or in addition to, TDF/FTC or TDF.
- Do not use other than daily dosing (e.g., intermittent, episodic [pre/post sex only], or other discontinuous dosing)
- Do not provide PrEP as expedited partner therapy (i.e., do not prescribe for an uninfected person not in your care).

TIME TO ACHIEVING PROTECTION

The time from initiation of daily oral doses of TDF/FTC to maximal protection against HIV infection is unknown. There is not scientific consensus on what intracellular concentrations are protective for either drug or the protective contribution of each drug in specific body tissues. It has been shown that the pharmacokinetics of TDF and FTC vary by tissue[111].

Data from exploratory pharmacokinetic studies conducted with HIV-uninfected men and women does provide preliminary data on the lead-time required to achieve steady state levels of tenofovir diphosphate (TFV-DP, the activated form of the medication) in blood (PBMCs [peripheral blood mononuclear cells]), rectal, and vaginal tissues[112,113]. These data suggest that maximum intracellular concentrations of TFV-DP are reached in blood after approximately 20 days of daily oral dosing, in rectal tissue at approximately 7 days, and in cervicovaginal tissues at approximately 20 days. No data are yet available about intracellular drug concentrations in penile tissues susceptible to HIV infection to inform considerations of protection for male insertive sex partners.

MANAGING SIDE EFFECTS

Patients taking PrEP should be informed of side effects among HIV-uninfected participants in clinical trials (see Table 5). In these trials, side effects were uncommon and usually resolved within the first month of taking PrEP ("start-up syndrome"). Clinicians should discuss the use of over-the-counter medications for headache, nausea, and flatulence should they occur. Patients should also be counseled about signs or symptoms that indicate a need for urgent evaluation (e.g., those suggesting possible acute renal injury or acute HIV infection).

CLINICAL FOLLOW-UP AND MONITORING

Once PrEP is initiated, patients should return for follow-up approximately every 3 months. Clinicians may wish to see patients more frequently at the beginning of PrEP (e.g., 1 month after initiation, to assess and confirm HIV-negative test status, assess for early side effects, discuss any difficulties with medication adherence, and answer questions.

All patients receiving PrEP should be seen as follows:

- At least every 3 months to
  - Repeat HIV testing and assess for signs or symptoms of acute infection to document that patients are still HIV negative (see Figure)
  - Repeat pregnancy testing for women who may become pregnant
  - Provide a prescription or refill authorization of daily TDF/FTC for no more than 90 days (until the next HIV test)
  - Assess side effects, adherence, and HIV acquisition risk behaviors
  - Provide support for medication adherence and risk-reduction behaviors
  - Respond to new questions and provide any new information about PrEP use
  - Conduct STI testing for sexually active persons with signs or symptoms of infection and screening for asymptomatic MSM at high risk for recurrent bacterial STIs (e.g., those with syphilis, gonorrhea, or chlamydia at prior visits or multiple sex partners)
- At least every 6 months to
  - Monitor eCrCl
    - If other threats to renal safety are present (e.g., hypertension, diabetes), renal function may require more frequent monitoring or may need to include additional tests (e.g., urinalysis for proteinuria)
    - A rise in serum creatinine is not a reason to withhold treatment if eCrCl remains ≥60 ml/min.

- If eCrCl is declining steadily (but still ≥60 ml/min), consultation with a nephrologist or other evaluation of possible threats to renal health may be indicated.

- Conduct STI screening for sexually active adolescents and adults (i.e., syphilis and gonorrhea for both men and women, chlamydia for MSM) even if asymptomatic

- At least every 12 months to
  - Evaluate the need to continue PrEP as a component of HIV prevention

Optional Assessments

Bone Health

Decreases in bone mineral density (BMD) have been observed in HIV-infected persons treated with combination antiretroviral therapy (including TDF-containing regimes)[114,115]. However, it is unclear whether this 3%-4% decline would be seen in HIV-uninfected persons taking fewer antiretroviral medications for PrEP. The iPrEx trial (TDF/FTC) and the CDC PrEP safety trial in MSM (TDF) conducted serial dual-emission x-ray absorptiometry (DEXA) scans on a subset of MSM in the trials and determined that a small (~1%) decline in BMD that occurred during the first few months of PrEP either stabilized or returned to normal[23,116]. There was no increase in fragility (atraumatic) fractures over the 1-2 years of observation in these studies comparing those persons randomized to receive PrEP medication and those randomized to receive placebo[117].

Therefore, DEXA scans or other assessments of bone health are not recommended before the initiation of PrEP or for the monitoring of persons while taking PrEP. However, any person being considered for PrEP who has a history of pathologic or fragility bone fractures or who has significant risk factors for osteoporosis should be referred for appropriate consultation and management.

Therapeutic Drug Monitoring

Similar to the limited use of therapeutic drug monitoring (TDM) in the treatment of HIV infection[80], several factors mitigate against the routine use of TDM during PrEP. These factors include (1) a lack of established concentrations in blood associated with robust efficacy of TDF or FTC for the prevention of HIV acquisition in adults after exposure during penile-rectal or penile-vaginal intercourse[118] and (2) the limited but growing availability of clinical laboratories that perform quantitation of antiretroviral medicine concentrations under rigorous quality assurance and quality control standards.

However, some clinicians may want to use TDM periodically to assess adherence to PrEP medication. If so, a key limitation should be recognized. The levels of medication in serum or plasma reflect only very recent doses, so they are not valid estimates of consistent adherence[118]. However, if medication is not detected or is detected at a very low level, support to reinforce medication adherence would be indicated.

Persons with Documented HIV Infection

All persons with HIV-positive test results whether at screening or while taking TDF/FTC or TDF alone as PrEP should be provided the following services[80].

- Laboratory confirmation of HIV status (see Figure)
- Determination of CD4 lymphocyte count and viral load to guide therapeutic decisions
- Documentation of results of genotypic HIV viral resistance testing to guide future treatment decisions
- If on PrEP, conversion of the PrEP regimen to an HIV treatment regimen recommended by the DHHS Panel on Antiretroviral Guidelines for Adults and Adolescents[80] without waiting for additional laboratory test results. See Clinical Providers' Supplement Section 8.
- Provision of, or referral to, an experienced provider for the ongoing medical management of HIV infection
- Counseling about their HIV status and steps they should take to prevent HIV transmission to others and to improve their own health
- Assistance with, or referral to, the local health department for the identification of sex partners who may have been recently exposed to HIV so that they can be tested for HIV infection, considered for nonoccupational postexposure prophylaxis (nPEP)[119], and counseled about their risk-reduction practices

In addition, a confidential report of new HIV infection should be provided to the local health department.

Discontinuing PrEP

Patients may discontinue PrEP medication for several reasons, including personal choice, changed life situations resulting in lowered risk of HIV acquisition, intolerable toxicities, chronic nonadherence to the prescribed dosing regimen despite efforts to improve daily pill-taking, or acquisition of HIV infection. How to safely discontinue and restart PrEP use should be discussed with patients both when starting PrEP and when discontinuing PrEP. Protection from HIV infection will wane over 7-10 days after ceasing daily PrEP use[120-122]. Because some patients have acquired HIV infection soon after stopping PrEP use[29], alternative methods to reduce risk for HIV acquisition should be discussed, including indications for PEP and how to access it quickly if needed.

Upon discontinuation for any reason, the following should be documented in the health record:

- HIV status at the time of discontinuation
- Reason for PrEP discontinuation
- Recent medication adherence and reported sexual risk behavior

For persons with incident HIV infection, see Persons with Documented HIV Infection. See also Clinical Providers' Supplement Section 8 for a suggested management protocol.

For persons with active hepatitis B infection, see Special Clinical Considerations.

Any person who wishes to resume taking PrEP medications after having stopped should undergo all the same pre-prescription evaluation as a person being newly prescribed PrEP, including an HIV test to establish that they are still without HIV infection. In addition, a frank discussion should clarify the changed circumstances since discontinuing medication that indicate the need to resume medication, and the commitment to take it.

Special Clinical Considerations

The patient with certain clinical conditions requires special attention and follow-up by the clinician.

Women who become pregnant or breastfeed while taking PrEP medication

Women without HIV infection who have sex partners with documented HIV infection may be at risk of HIV acquisition during attempts to conceive (i.e., sex without a condom). Pregnancy is associated with an increased risk of HIV acquisition[123]. Risk is substantial for women whose partners are not taking antiretroviral treatment medication or women whose partners are treated but not virally suppressed. Women whose partners have documented sustained viral load suppression are at effectively no risk of sexual acquisition of HIV infection (see page 32 above). The extent to which PrEP use further decreases risk of HIV acquisition when the male partner has a documented recent undetectable viral load is unknown.

However, clinicians providing pre-conception and pregnancy care to women who report their partners have HIV infection, may not be providing care to the male partner and so may not have access to their medical records documenting the recent viral load status of the partner with HIV infection[65]. When the HIV status of the male partner is unknown, the clinician should offer HIV testing for the partner. When the male partner is reported to have HIV infection but his recent viral load status is not known, is reported detectable, or cannot be documented as undetectable, PrEP use during the preconception period and pregnancy by the uninfected woman offers an additional tool to reduce the risk of sexual HIV acquisition. Both the FDA labeling information[6] and the perinatal antiretroviral treatment guidelines[124] permit off-label use in pregnancy. However, data directly related to the safety of PrEP use for a developing fetus are limited. Providers should discuss available information about potential risks and benefits of beginning or continuing PrEP during pregnancy so that an informed decision can be made. (See Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 5 at https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/pdf/risk/prep-cdc-hiv-prep-provider-supplement-2017.pdf

In the PrEP trials with heterosexual women, medication was promptly discontinued for those who became pregnant, so the safety for exposed fetuses could not be adequately assessed. A single small study of periconception use of TDF in 46 uninfected women in HIV-discordant couples found no ill effects on the pregnancy and no HIV infections[125]. Additionally, TDF and FTC are widely used for the treatment of HIV infection and continued during pregnancies that occur[126-128]. The data on pregnancy outcomes in the Antiretroviral Pregnancy Registry provide no evidence of adverse effects among fetuses exposed to these medications[129].

Providers should educate HIV-discordant couples who wish to become pregnant about the potential risks and benefits of all available alternatives for safer conception[130,131] and if indicated make referrals for assisted reproduction therapies. Whether or not PrEP is elected, the HIV-infected partner should be prescribed effective antiretroviral therapy before conception attempts[124,132]: if the infected partner is male, to reduce the risk of transmission-related viral load in semen; and in both sexes, for the benefit of their own health[133].

In addition, health care providers are strongly encouraged to prospectively and anonymously submit information about any pregnancies in which PrEP is used to the Antiretroviral Pregnancy Registry at http://www.apregistry.com/.

The safety of PrEP with TDF/FTC or TDF alone for infants exposed during lactation has not been adequately studied. However, data from studies of infants born to HIV-infected mothers and exposed to TDF or FTC through breast milk suggest limited drug exposure.[134,135] Additionally, the World Health Organization has recommended the use of TDF/FTC or 3TC/efavirenz for all pregnant and breastfeeding women for the prevention of perinatal and postpartum mother-to-child transmission of HIV[136]. Therefore, providers should discuss current evidence about the potential risks and benefits of beginning or continuing PrEP during breastfeeding so that an informed decision can be made[11]. (See Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 5 at https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/pdf/risk/prep-cdc-hiv-prep-provider-supplement-2017.pdf

Patients with Chronic Active Hepatitis B Virus Infection

TDF and FTC are each active against both HIV infection and HBV infection and thus may prevent the development of significant liver disease by suppressing the replication of HBV. Only TDF, however, is currently FDA-approved for this use. Therefore, in persons with substantial risk of both HIV acquisition and active HBV infection, daily doses of TDF/FTC may be especially indicated.

All persons screened for PrEP who test positive for hepatitis B surface antigen (HBsAg) should be evaluated by a clinician experienced in the treatment of HBV infection. For clinicians without this experience, co-management with an infectious disease or a hepatic disease specialist should be considered. Patients should be tested for HBV DNA by the use of a quantitative assay to determine the level of HBV replication[137] before PrEP is prescribed and every 6-12 months while taking PrEP.

TDF presents a very high barrier to the development of HBV resistance. However, it is important to reinforce the need for consistent adherence to the daily doses of TDF/FTC to prevent reactivation of [11]Although the DHHS Perinatal HIV Guidelines state that "pregnancy and breastfeeding are not contraindications for PrEP"[9], the FDA-approved package insert[6] says "If an uninfected individual becomes pregnant while taking TRUVADA for a PrEP indication, careful consideration should be given to whether use of TRUVADA should be continued, taking into account the potential increased risk of HIV-1 infection during pregnancy" and "mothers should be instructed not to breastfeed if they are receiving TRUVADA, whether they are taking TRUVADA for treatment or to reduce the risk of acquiring HIV-1.". Therefore both are currently off-label uses of Truvada.

HBV infection with the attendant risk of hepatic injury, and to minimize the possible risk of developing TDF-resistant HBV infection[138].

If PrEP is no longer needed to prevent HIV infection, a separate determination should be made to about whether to continue TDF/FTC as a means of providing TDF to treat HBV infection. Acute flares resulting from the reactivation of HBV infection have been seen in HIV-infected persons after the cessation of TDF and other medications used to treat HBV infection. Such flares have not yet been seen in HIV-uninfected persons with chronic active HBV infection who have stopped taking TDF-containing PrEP regimens. Nonetheless, when such patients discontinue PrEP, they should continue to receive care from a clinician experienced in the management of HBV infection so that if flares occur, they can be detected promptly and treated appropriately.

Patients with Chronic Renal Failure

HIV-uninfected patients with chronic renal failure, as evidenced by an eCrCl of <60 ml/min, should not take PrEP because the safety of TDF/FTC for such persons was not evaluated in the clinical trials. TDF is associated with modestly reduced renal function when used as part of an antiretroviral treatment regimen in persons with HIV infection (which itself can affect renal function). Because other HIV prevention options are available, the only PrEP regimen proven effective to date (TDF/FTC) and approved by FDA for PrEP is not indicated for persons with chronic renal failure.[6]

Adolescent Minors

As a part of primary health care, HIV screening should be discussed with all adolescents who are sexually active or have a history of injection drug use. Parental/guardian involvement in an adolescent's health care is often desirable but is sometimes contraindicated for the safety of the adolescent. However, laws and regulations that may be relevant for PrEP-related services (including HIV testing), such as those concerning consent, confidentiality, parental disclosure, and circumstances requiring reporting to local agencies, differ by jurisdiction. Clinicians considering providing PrEP to a person under the age of legal adulthood (a minor) should be aware of local laws, regulations, and policies that may apply[1139].

Although the FDA labeling information specifies PrEP indications for "adults," an age above which an adolescent is considered an adult is not provided.[6] None of the completed PrEP trials have included persons under the age of 18. Therefore, clinicians should consider carefully the lack of data on safety and effectiveness of PrEP taken by persons under 18 years of age, the possibility of bone or other toxicities among youth who are still growing, and the safety evidence available when TDF/FTC is used in treatment regimens for HIV-infected youth[140,141]. These factors should be weighed against the potential benefit of providing PrEP for an individual adolescent at substantial risk of HIV acquisition.

Nonoccupational Postexposure Prophylaxis

Persons not receiving PrEP who seek care within 72 hours after an isolated sexual or injection-related HIV exposure should be evaluated for the potential need for nPEP[119]. If the exposure is isolated (e.g., sexual assault, infrequent condom failure), nPEP should be prescribed, but PrEP or other continued antiretroviral medication is not indicated after completion of the 28-day PEP course.

Persons who repeatedly seek nPEP or who are at risk for ongoing HIV exposures should be evaluated for possible PrEP use after confirming they have not acquired HIV infection[142]. Because HIV infection has been reported in association with exposures soon after completing an nPEP course, daily PrEP may be more protective than repeated intermittent episodes of nPEP. Persons who engage in behaviors that result in frequent, recurrent exposures that would require sequential or near-continuous courses of nPEP should be offered PrEP at the conclusion of their 28-day nPEP medication course. Because no definitive evidence exists that prophylactic antiretroviral use delays seroconversion, and nPEP is highly effective when taken as prescribed, a gap is unnecessary between ending nPEP and beginning PrEP. Upon documenting HIV-negative status, preferably by using a laboratory-based Ag/Ab test, daily use of the fixed dose combination of TDF (300mg) and FTC (200 mg) can begin immediately for patients for whom PrEP is indicated. See Clinical Providers' Supplement Section 9 for a recommended transition management strategy.

In contrast, patients fully adhering to a daily PrEP regimen do not need nPEP if they experience a potential HIV exposure while on PrEP. PrEP is highly effective when taken daily or near daily. For patients who report taking their PrEP medication sporadically, and those who did not take it within the week before the recent exposure, initiating a 28-day course of nPEP might be indicated. In that instance, all nPEP baseline and follow-up laboratory evaluations should be conducted. After the 28-day nPEP regimen is completed, if confirmed to be HIV uninfected, the previously experienced barriers to PrEP adherence should be evaluated and if addressed, daily PrEP regimen can be reinitiated.

Improving Medication Adherence

Data from the published studies of daily oral PrEP indicate that medication adherence is critical to achieving the maximum prevention benefit (see Table 4) and reducing the risk of selecting for a drug-resistant virus if non-adherence leads to HIV acquisition[143-145]. Three additional studies reinforce the need to prescribe, and support adherence to uninterrupted daily doses of TDF/FTC.

A study of the pharmacokinetics of directly observed TDF dosing in MSM in the STRAND trial found that the intracellular levels of the active form of TDF (tenofovir diphosphate), when applied to the drug detection-efficacy statistical model with iPrEx participants, corresponded to an HIV risk reduction efficacy of 99% for 7 doses per week, 96% for 4 doses per week, and 76% for 2 doses per week143. This finding adds to the evidence that despite some "forgiveness" for occasional missed doses for MSM, a high level of prevention efficacy requires a high level of adherence to daily medication. However, a laboratory study comparing vaginal and colorectal tissue levels of active metabolites of TDF and FTC found that drug levels associated with significant protection against HIV infection required 6-7 doses per week (~85% adherence) for lower vaginal tract tissues but only 2 doses per week (28% adherence) for colorectal tissures146. This strongly suggests that there is less "forgiveness" for missed doses among women than among MSM.

A pilot study of daily TDF/FTC as PrEP with young MSM was stopped when the iPrEx trial results were reported.[147] Among the 68 men enrolled (mean age, 20 years; 53% African American; 40% Hispanic/Latino) plasma specimens were tested to objectively measure medication adherence. At week 4, 63% had detectable levels of tenofovir, but at week 24, only 20% had detectable levels of tenofovir. Two open-label safety studies with 243 young MSM (median age 19, 46% African American, 32% Latino/Hispanic) similarly found lower adherence in young adult men than has been reported in older adult men taking PrEP, and lower adherence with quarterly visits than with monthly visits[148].

In addition, a study with MSM and commercial sex workers in Kenya evaluated adherence to daily, fixed-interval (Mondays and Fridays), and coitally-timed (single post-coital) TDF/FTC dosing schedules by the use of pill bottles with caps monitored by an electronic medication event monitoring system (MEMS) and monthly interviews about sexual behavior[149]. Among the 67 men and 5 women in this study, 83% adhered to daily dosing, 55% to fixed-interval dosing, and 26% to post-coital dosing regimens. These findings suggest that adherence is better with daily dosing, as currently recommended, than with non-daily regimens (not yet proven effective as PrEP). These data confirm that medication education and adherence counseling (also called medication self-management) will need to be provided to support daily PrEP use.

A recent review of the antiretroviral treatment adherence studies over the past 15 years and adherence data from the completed PrEP trials suggests various approaches to effectively support medication adherence[150]. These approaches include educating patients about their medications; helping them anticipate and manage side effects; helping them establish dosing routines that mesh with their work and social schedules; providing reminder systems and tools; addressing financial, substance abuse, or mental health needs that may impede adherence; and facilitating social support.

Although many published articles address antiretroviral medication adherence among persons being treated for HIV infection, these findings may be only partially applicable to PrEP users. HIV treatment regimens include more than 2 drugs (commonly including more than 1 pill per day), resulting in an increased pill burden, and the possibility of side effects and toxicities with 3 or more drugs may occur that would not occur with TDF/FTC alone. The motivations of persons being treated for HIV infection and persons trying to prevent HIV infection may differ. Because PrEP will be used in otherwise healthy adults, studies of the use of medications in asymptomatic adults for the prevention of potential serious future health outcomes may also be informative for enhancing adherence to PrEP medications. The most cost-effective interventions for improving adherence to antihypertensive and lipid-lowering medications were initiated soon after the patients started taking medication and involved personalized, regularly scheduled education and symptom management (patients were aware that adherence was being monitored)[151]. Patients with chronic diseases reported that the most important factors in adherence to medications were incorporating medication into their daily routines, knowing that the medications work, believing that the benefits outweigh the risks, knowing how to manage side effects, and low out-of pocket costs[152,153].

When initiating a PrEP regimen, clinicians must educate patients so that they understand clearly how to take their medications (i.e., when to take them, how many pills to take at each dose) and what to do if they experience problems (e.g., what constitutes a missed dose [number of hours after the failure to take a scheduled dose], what to do if they miss a dose). Patients should be told to take a single missed dose as soon as they remember it, unless it is almost time for the next dose. If it is almost time for the next dose, patients should skip the missed dose and continue with the regular dosing schedule.

Side effects can lead to non-adherence, so clinicians need a plan for addressing them. Clinicians should tell patients about the most common side effects and should work with patients to develop a specific plan for handling them, including the use of specific over-the-counter medications that can mitigate symptoms. The importance of using condoms during sex, especially for patients who decide to stop taking their medications, should be reinforced.

Box D: Key Components of Medication Adherence Counseling

Establish trust and bidirectional communication

Provide simple explanations and education

- Medication dosage and schedule
- Management of common side effects
- Relationship of adherence to the efficacy of PrEP
- Signs and symptoms of acute HIV infection and recommended actions

Support adherence

- Tailor daily dose to patient's daily routine
- Identify reminders and devices to minimize forgetting doses
- Identify and address barriers to adherence

Monitor medication adherence in a non-judgmental manner

- Normalize occasional missed doses, while ensuring patient understands importance of daily dosing for optimal protection
- Reinforce success
- Identify factors interfering with adherence and plan with patient to address them
- Assess side effects and plan how to manage them

Using a broad array of a health care professionals (e.g., physicians, nurses, case-managers, physician assistants, clinic-based and community pharmacists) that work together on a health care team to influence and reinforce adherence instructions[154] significantly improves medication adherence and may alleviate the time constraints of individual providers[155,156]. This broad-team approach may also provide a larger number of providers to counsel patients about self-management of behavioral risks.

For additional information on adherence counseling, see the Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 10 at https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/pdf/risk/prep-cdc-hiv-prep-provider-supplement-2017.pdf.

Reducing HIV Risk Behaviors

The adoption and the maintenance of safer behaviors (sexual, injection, and other substance abuse) are critical for the lifelong prevention of HIV infection and are important for the clinical management of persons prescribed PrEP.

Video-based interventions such as Safe in the City, which make use of waiting-room time rather than clinician time[150,157], have reduced STI incidence in a general clinic population. However, they take a general approach, so they do not allow tailoring to the sexual risk-reduction needs of individual patients (e.g., as partners change, PrEP is initiated or discontinued).

Interactive, client-centered counseling (in which content is tailored to a patient's sexual risk behaviors and the situations in which risks occur), in conjunction with goal-setting strategies is effective in HIV prevention[142,158-160]. An example of this method is Project Respect: although this counseling protocol alone did not reduce HIV incidence significantly, 20-minute clinical counseling sessions to develop and review patient-specific, incremental risk-reduction plans led to reduced incidence of STIs in a heterosexual population,[161] . Project Aware included MSM and heterosexuals attending STD clinics and provided a single brief counseling session (using the Respect-2 protocol) while conducting rapid HIV testing. There was no reduction in the incidence of STIs attributed to counseling[162]. However, in the context of PrEP delivery, brief, repeated counseling sessions can take advantage of multiple visits for follow-up care[163] while addressing the limited time available for individual visits[157] and the multiple prevention[155,156] and treatment topics that busy practitioners need to address.

Reducing or eliminating injection risk practices can be achieved by providing access to drug treatment and relapse prevention services (e.g., methadone, buprenorphine for opiate users) for persons who are willing to participate[164]. For persons not able (e.g., on a waiting list or lacking insurance) or not motivated to engage in drug treatment, providing access to unused injection equipment through syringe service programs (where available), prescriptions for syringes or purchase from pharmacies without a prescription (where legal) can reduce HIV exposure. In addition, providing or referring for cognitive or behavioral counseling and any indicated mental health or social services may help reduce risky injection practices. See the Substance Abuse Treatment and Mental Health Treatment Locators at http://findtreatment.samhsa.gov/.

Box E: Key Components of Behavioral Risk-Reduction Counseling

Establish trust and 2-way communication

Provide feedback on HIV risk factors identified during sexual and substance use history taking

- Elicit barriers to, and facilitators of, consistent condom use
- Elicit barriers to, and facilitators of, reducing substance abuse

Support risk-reduction efforts

- Assist patient to identify 1 or 2 feasible, acceptable, incremental steps toward risk reduction
- Identify and address anticipated barriers to accomplishing planned actions to reduce risk

Monitor behavioral adherence in a non-judgmental manner

- Acknowledge the effort required for behavior change
- Reinforce success
- If not fully successful, assess factors interfering with completion of planned actions and assist patient to identify next steps

Financial Case-Management Issues for PrEP

One critical component in providing PrEP medications and related clinical and counseling services is identifying insurance and other reimbursement sources. Although some commercial insurance and employee benefits programs have defined policies for the coverage of PrEP, others have not yet done so. Similarly, public insurance sources vary in their coverage policy. Most public and private insurers cover PrEP but co-pay, co-insurance, and prior authorization policies differ.

For patients who do not have health insurance, whose insurance does not cover PrEP medication, and whose personal resources are inadequate to pay out-of-pocket, Gilead Sciences has established a PrEP medication assistance program. In addition to providing Truvada to providers for eligible patients and access to free HIV testing, the program provides co-pay assistance for medication and free condoms to patients on request[165]. Providers may obtain applications for their patients at https://start.truvada.com/. In addition, a few states and cities have PrEP-specific financial assistance programs (check with your local health department).

Decision Support, Training and Technical Assistance

Decision support systems (electronic and paper), flow sheets, checklists (see Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 1 for a PrEP provider/patient checklist at https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/pdf/risk/prep-cdc-hiv-prep-provider-supplement-2017.pdf, feedback reminders, and involvement of nurse clinicians and pharmacists will be helpful in managing the many steps indicated for the safe use of PrEP and to increase the likelihood that patients will follow them. Often these systems are locally developed but may become available from various sources including training centers and Web sites funded by government agencies; professional associations, or interested private companies. Examples include downloadable applications (widgets) to support the delivery of nPEP or locate nearby sites for confidential HIV tests (http://www.hivtest.org); and confidential commercial services to electronically monitor medication-taking, send text message reminders, or provide telephone assistance to help patients with problems concerning medication adherence.

Appendices

APPENDIX 1 GRADING OF STRENGTH OF RECOMMENDATIONS AND QUALITY OF EVIDENCE

Key recommendations in this guideline are based on the review of published scientific evidence and expert opinions. For details on the guidelines development process used, see the Clinical Providers' Supplement, Section 14 at https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/pdf/risk/prep-cdc-hiv-prep-provider-supplement-2017.pdf.

Using the same grading system as the DHHS antiretroviral treatment guidelines[80], these key recommendations are rated with a letter to indicate the strength of the recommendation and with a numeral to indicate the quality of the combined evidence supporting each recommendation.

Table 12: Rating Scheme for Recommendations

A. Strong recommendation for the statement	I. One or more well-executed randomized, controlled trials with clinical outcomes, validated laboratory endpoints, or both
B. Moderate recommendation for the statement	II. One or more well-executed, nonrandomized trials or observational cohort studies with clinical outcomes
C. Optional recommendation for the statement	III. Expert opinion

The quality of scientific evidence ratings in Table 2 are based on the GRADE rating system.[38]

Table 13: Criteria for rating quality of scientific evidence

Type of evidence	Randomized trial = high Observational study = low Any other evidence = very low
Decrease grade if[a]	▪ Serious or very serious limitation to study quality ▪ Important inconsistency ▪ Some or major uncertainty about directness ▪ Imprecise or sparse data ▪ High probability of reporting bias
Increase grade if[a]	▪ Strong evidence of association – significant relative risk >2 (<0.5) based on consistent evidence from 2 or more observational studies, with no plausible confounders (+1) ▪ Very strong evidence of association – significant relative risk of >5 (<0.2) based on direct evidence with no major threats to validity (+2) ▪ Evidence of a dose-response gradient (+1) ▪ All plausible confounders would have reduced the effect (+1)
Range	High-quality evidence Moderate-quality evidence Low-quality evidence Very-low quality evidence

[a] Each quality criterion can reduce or increase the quality by 1 or, if very significant, by 2 levels.

IV. Summary

The purpose of these guidelines is to provide health care providers in the United States with updated guidelines to the 2005 U.S. Department of Health and Human Services nonoccupational postexposure prophylaxis (nPEP) recommendations[1] on the use of antiretroviral nPEP and other aspects of case management for persons with isolated exposure outside health care settings to blood, genital secretions, or other potentially infectious body fluids that might contain human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). The use of occupational PEP (oPEP) for case management for persons with possible HIV exposures occurring in health care settings are not addressed in this guideline; updated oPEP guidelines have been published separately.[2]

IV-A. What Is New in This Update

This update incorporates additional evidence regarding use of nonoccupational postexposure prophylaxis (nPEP) from animal studies, human observational studies, and consideration of new antiretroviral medications that were approved since the 2005 guidelines, some of which have improved tolerability. New features are inclusion of guidelines for the use of rapid antigen/antibody (Ag/Ab) combination HIV tests, for revised preferred and alternative 3-drug antiretroviral nPEP regimens, an updated schedule of laboratory evaluations of source and exposed persons, updated antimicrobial regimens for prophylaxis of sexually transmitted infections and hepatitis, and a suggested procedure for transitioning patients between nPEP and HIV preexposure prophylaxis (PrEP), as appropriate.

IV-B. Summary of Guidelines

- Health care providers should evaluate persons rapidly for nPEP when care is sought ≤72 hours after a potential nonoccupational exposure that presents a substantial risk for HIV acquisition.[a] [VI-A4] [VII-A2][b]
    - All persons considered for nPEP should have determination of their HIV infection status by HIV testing, preferably by using rapid combined Ag/Ab, or antibody blood tests. [VII-A1] [VII-B1]
    - If rapid HIV blood test results are unavailable, and nPEP is otherwise indicated, it should be initiated without delay and can be discontinued if the patient is later determined to have HIV infection already or the source is determined not to have HIV infection. [VII-A1]

[b] Numbers in brackets refers readers to the section in these guidelines that provides the basis for the recommendation.

- nPEP is recommended when the source of the body fluids is known to be HIV-positive and the reported exposure presents a substantial risk for transmission. [VII-A]
- nPEP is not recommended when the reported exposure presents no substantial risk of HIV transmission. [VII-A]
- nPEP is not recommended when care is sought > 72 hours after potential exposure. [VI-A4] [VII-A] [VII-A2]
- A case-by-case determination about the nPEP is recommended when the HIV infection status of the source of the body fluids is unknown and the reported exposure presents a substantial risk for transmission if the source did have HIV infection. [VII-A]
- All persons offered nPEP should be prescribed a 28-day course of a 3-drug antiretroviral regimen.[a] [VII-B1] [VII-C]

    - Health care providers considering using antiretroviral regimens for nPEP other than those listed in these guidelines as preferred or alternative are encouraged to consult with other health care providers who have expertise in antiretroviral medication use for similar patients (e.g., children, pregnant women, or those with such comorbid conditions as impaired renal function). [VII-C] [VII-E2]

- All persons who report behaviors or situations that place them at risk for frequently recurring HIV exposures (e.g., injection drug use, or sex without condoms) or who report receipt of ≥ 1 course of nPEP in the past year should be provided risk-reduction counseling and intervention services, including consideration of preexposure prophylaxis. [VII-E4] [VII-E5]

V. INTRODUCTION

The most effective methods for preventing human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) infection are those that protect against exposure. Antiretroviral therapy cannot replace behaviors that help avoid HIV exposure (e.g., sexual abstinence, sex only in a mutually monogamous relationship with an HIV-uninfected partner, consistent and correct condom use, abstinence from injection drug use, and consistent use of sterile equipment by those unable to cease injection drug use). Provision of antiretroviral medication after isolated sexual, injection drug use, or other nonoccupational HIV exposure, known as nonoccupational postexposure prophylaxis (nPEP), is less effective at preventing HIV infection than avoiding exposure.

In 2005, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) released its first recommendations for nPEP use to reduce the risk for HIV infection after nonoccupational exposures to blood, genital secretions, and other body fluids that might contain HIV.[1] In 2012, updated guidelines on the use of occupational PEP (oPEP) for case management for persons with possible HIV exposures occurring in health care settings were published and are not addressed in this guideline.[2] Other organizations, including health departments, professional medical societies, and medical institutions, have developed guidelines, recommendations, and protocols for nPEP delivered to adults and children.[3-10]

This document updates the 2005 DHHS nPEP recommendations in response to new information regarding clinical experience for delivering nPEP, including using newer antiretroviral regimens and their side-effect profiles and cost-effectiveness of nPEP to prevent HIV infection for different exposure types. We describe in more detail the goals for the new guidelines, funding source of the guidelines, persons involved in guidelines development, definition of competing interest for persons involved in guidelines development and procedures for managing competing interest (Appendix 1A).

CDC scientists selected nPEP subject matter experts from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the National Institutes of Health (NIH), hospitals, clinics, health departments, and professional medical societies to participate as panelists to discuss recent developments in nPEP practice by CDC teleconferences in December 2011, and April 2012 (Appendix 1B). Any potential conflicts of interests reported by persons involved in developing the guidelines and the determination made for each of those potential conflicts are listed in Appendix 1C.

A working group of CDC HIV prevention scientists and other CDC scientists with expertise pertinent to the nPEP guidelines conducted nPEP-related systematic literature reviews. Appendix 2 summarizes the methods used to conduct that review, including databases queried, topics addressed, search terms, search dates, and any limitations placed on the searches (i.e., language, country, population, and study type). All studies identified through the literature search were reviewed and included in the body of evidence. Appendix 3 includes a summary of the key observational and case studies among humans that comprise the main body of evidence.

These nPEP guidelines are not applicable for occupational exposures to HIV; however, we attempted to standardize the selection of preferred drugs for nPEP and occupational postexposure prophylaxis (oPEP).[2] These guidelines also do not apply to continuous daily oral antiretroviral prophylaxis that is initiated before potential exposures to HIV as a means of reducing the risk for HIV infection among persons at high risk for its sexual acquisition (preexposure prophylaxis or PrEP[11]).

Among the limitations of these guidelines is that they are based on a historical case-control study related to occupational PEP among hospital workers, observational and case studies examining nPEP's effectiveness among humans, animal studies related to PEP's efficacy among primates, and expert opinion on clinical practice among humans related to nPEP. Because of concerns about the ethics and feasibility of conducting large-scale prospective randomized placebo-controlled nPEP clinical trials, no such studies have been conducted. Additionally, although nPEP failures were rare in the observational studies we reviewed, those studies often have inadequate follow-up testing rates for HIV infection; therefore, nPEP failures might be underestimated. Because these guidelines represent an update of previous guidelines about a now established clinical practice, we elected not to use a formal grading scheme to indicate the strength of supporting evidence.

VI. Evidence Review

VI-A. Possible Effectiveness of nPEP

No randomized, placebo-controlled clinical trial of nPEP has been conducted. However, data relevant to nPEP guidelines are available from animal transmission models, perinatal clinical trials, observational studies of health care workers receiving prophylaxis after occupational exposures, and observational and case studies of nPEP use. Although the working group mainly systematically reviewed studies conducted after 2005 through July 2015, we also include findings from seminal studies published before 2005 that help define key aspects of nPEP guidelines. Newer data reviewed in this document continue to support the assertion that nPEP initiated soon after exposure and continued for 28 days with sufficient medication adherence can reduce the risk for acquiring HIV infection after nonoccupational exposures.

V1-A1. oPEP Studies

A case-control study demonstrating an 81% (95% confidence interval [CI] = 48%–94%) reduction in the odds of HIV transmission among health care workers with percutaneous exposure to HIV who received zidovudine (ZDV) prophylaxis was the first to describe the efficacy of oPEP.[12] Because of the ethical and operational challenges, no randomized controlled trials have been conducted to test the efficacy of nPEP directly. In the absence of a randomized controlled trial for nPEP, this case-control study reports the strongest evidence of benefit of antiretroviral prophylaxis initiated after HIV exposure among humans.

V1-A2. Observational and Case Studies of nPEP

The following is a synopsis of domestic and international observational studies and case reports that have been published since the 2005 U.S. nPEP guidelines were issued. In the majority of studies, failure of nPEP, defined as HIV seroconversion despite taking nPEP as recommended, was typically confirmed by a seronegative HIV enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) at baseline visit, followed by a positive ELISA and Western blot or indirect fluorescent antibody (IFA) during a follow-up visit.

VI-A2a. Men Who Have Sex with Men

Based on 1 case report[13] and 6 studies[14-19] reporting results exclusively or separately among men who have sex with men (MSM), 49 seroconversions were reported after nPEP use. The case report from Italy described an nPEP failure in an MSM despite self-reported 100% adherence to his 3-drug medication regimen consisting of ZDV, lamivudine (3TC), and indinavir (IDV) and denial of ongoing HIV risk transmission behaviors after completing nPEP; concomitant hepatitis C virus (HCV) seroconversion was also diagnosed.[13] In the 6 studies, 48 of 1,535 (31.3 seroconverions/1,000 persons) MSM participants became HIV infected despite nPEP use. At least 40 of the 48 seroconversions likely resulted from ongoing risk behavior after completing nPEP. Thirty-five of these 40 seroconversions occurred ≥ 180 days subsequent to nPEP initiation and are unlikely to constitute nPEP failures.[16,18] The remaining 8 seroconverters among 1,535 MSM participants (5.2 seroconverions/1,000 persons) may be classified as potential nPEP failures. This included 1 recipient with an indeterminate HIV test result and isolation of an M184 mutation resistant virus on the last day of his 28-day regimen despite initiating nPEP ≤ 48 hours after exposure,[20] indicating that seroconversion was occurring during the 28-day period of nPEP administration. Another 4 patients seroconverted at 91 days, 133 days, 160 days, and 168 days after nPEP initiation, including 3 who reported completing the 28-day regimen; however, there was no description of the presence or lack of ongoing sexual risk behaviors after nPEP completion.[18] Among the remaining 3 men who seroconverted after taking nPEP, taking nPEP was not associated with any suggestion of change in seroconversion risk, although no information was reported regarding the nPEP regimen prescribed, adherence to nPEP, delay in nPEP initiation or timing of HIV-positive results.[15]

In a 2-year prospective study in Brazil, investigators provided 200 seronegative MSM at high risk with education regarding nPEP and a 4-day starter pack with instructions to initiate its use for a suspected eligible exposure.[16] A follow-up 24-day pack (to complete a 28-day course) was provided only for those men with eligible exposures. Sixty-eight of 200 MSM initiated nPEP. Adherence to nPEP medications was estimated on the basis of questions at the 28-day visit and remaining pill counts. The entire 28-day nPEP regimen was completed by 89% of men with eligible exposures including 1 participant who seroconverted. Ten of 11 seroconversions occurred among men who did not initiate nPEP.[16]

VI-A2b. Sexual Assault

VI-A2bi. General Population (all ages). Globally, 3 systematic reviews[20-22] and 1 prospective cohort study[23] spanning childhood through adulthood reported wide-ranging proportions of participants being eligible for nPEP (range, 6%–94%), being offered nPEP (range, 5%–94%), accepting nPEP (range, 4%–100%), or completing nPEP (range, 9%–65%). Among the 3 systematic reviews, none reported HIV screening results or the number of nPEP failures.[20-22]

VI-A2bii. Adults and Adolescents. Although nPEP use for sexual assault survivors has been widely encouraged both in the United States and elsewhere,[24-27] documented cases of HIV infection resulting from sexual assault of women or men rarely have been published.[25,28,29] Of 5 individual retrospective studies of nPEP limited to adult and/or adolescent sexual assault survivors that the working group reviewed, 3 reported no seroconversions at baseline or at follow-up among those sexual assault survivors who completed nPEP,[30-32] and 2 did not report any information about HIV screening results or the number of nPEP failures.[33,34]

VI-A2biii. Children and Adolescents. Studies of nPEP also have focused on children or adolescents evaluated for sexual assault. In a pooled analysis based on 10 studies of 8,336 children or adolescents evaluated for sexual assault or abuse, at least 1,362 were determined to be nPEP eligible. Twenty-four of the remaining 6,974 (3.4 seroconversions/1,000 persons) children or adolescents who were not eligible for nPEP were found to be HIV infected at baseline testing.[35-44] Among 672 children or adolescents reported to have been offered nPEP, 472 were known to have initiated nPEP, and 126 were reported to have completed a 28-day nPEP course. No new HIV infections were documented among these 472 (0.0 seroconversions/1,000 persons) children/adolescents in the pooled analysis who initiated nPEP. New HIV infections might have been underestimated as return rates for children or adolescents attending at least 1 follow-up visit during which an HIV test might have been conducted after initiating nPEP ranged from 10%[40] to 76%.[44]

VI-A2c. Mixed or Other Populations

VI-A2ci. Mixed populations. Eighteen studies, including 9 international studies[45-54] and 9 domestic studies[55-63] examined multiple routes of HIV risk exposure among adults, adolescents, and children with sexual and nonsexual exposures, including consensual sexual relations, sexual assault, injection drug use, and needlestick exposures.

Fifteen of the 19 studies reported both the number of participants who completed 28 days of nPEP and the number of participants who HIV seroconverted after initiating nPEP.[46-58,62,63] In these 15 studies, 2,209 participants completed 28 days of nPEP, of whom, at least 19 individuals HIV seroconverted,[45-48,52,54,56,62,63] but only 1 seroconversion[47] (8.6/1,000) was attributed to nPEP failure. This seroconversion occurred 6 weeks after nPEP initiation in a sexually assaulted female who presented ≤ 4 hours after assault and completed nPEP.[47] She had a positive HIV RNA polymerase chain reaction (PCR) test but no confirmatory HIV ELISA test documented during the 5–6 week follow-up HIV testing period after initiating nPEP. Among the other 18 seroconversions that occurred during follow-up HIV testing among participants who completed 28 days of nPEP, 5 occurred ≥6 months after nPEP completion and were likely associated with ongoing sexual risk behavior after nPEP completion.[45,54] One seroconversion occurred after a participant reported poor adherence to nPEP, ongoing sexual risk behavior, and multiple nPEP courses after the initial course of nPEP, however, the timing of seroconversion was not clearly specified.[63] One seroconversion occurred in an MSM presenting with acute retroviral syndrome 3 weeks after condomless anal sex with an anonymous partner and no receipt of nPEP.[48] One seroconversion occurred in a woman during the 6-month follow-up period after completing nPEP and it was attributed to ongoing sharing of injection drug use equipment.[48] One seroconversion occurred in a patient who started nPEP > 72 hours after a high-risk exposure.[46] Additional seroconversions occurred at various time periods after initiation of nPEP without detailed information about ongoing sexual exposure or adherence to nPEP (2 and 5 months [n=2 participants][62]; 3 and 6 months [n=2 participants][52]; 5 months [n=1 participant][62]; and 12 months [n=1 participant]).[62] Among 3 participants who seroconverted while taking or shortly after taking ZDV-containing nPEP regimens, there was a lack of information about ongoing sexual exposure or detailed information about strict adherence to the full 28-day nPEP regimen.[56] However, only 33.8%–42.1% of all patients who were administered ZDV-containing nPEP regimens in this study completed their regimens as prescribed.[56]

In the remaining 4 of 19 studies, 2 studies did not report rates of HIVseroconversion[59,60] and 2 studies did not report rates of completion of the 28-day nPEP regimen,[45,61] including a study that reported 7 seroconversions that occurred at unspecified time periods during the 6 months after nPEP initiation among 649 users of nPEP.[61]Of all nPEP clients in this study, 18.5% had previously used nPEP between 1 and 5 times.[61]

In 3 domestic studies, participants who were administered tenofovir (TDF)-containing nPEP regimens were substantially more likely than historical control subjects in studies consisting of ZDV-containing regimens to complete their prophylaxis as prescribed and less likely to experience common side effects.[49,56,57,60] In two studies, the highest completion rates were observed for the TDF-3TC (87.5%) and TDF-emtricitabine (FTC) (72.7%) arms followed by the TDF-FTC-raltegravir (RAL) (57%) and ZDV-3TC-3rd drug arms (the 3rd drug was mainly a protease inhibitor [PI]) (38.8 %).[57] In addition to the 57% of patients who completed all 3 drugs of the TDF-FTC-RAL arm, 27% of patients took their TDF-FTC and first RAL dose daily, but sometimes missed the second dose of RAL.[57] In another study, the completion rates were highest in the TDF-FTC-ritonavir (RTV)-boosted lopinavir (LPV/r) arm (88.3%) compared with the TDF-3TC-RTV-boosted atazanavir (ATV/r) arm (79%), ZDV-3TC-LPV/r arm (77.5%), or ZDV-3TC-nelfinavir (NFV) arm (65.5%).[49] In the last domestic study, TDF-containing compared with ZDV-containing regimens were associated with significantly higher completion rates in the bivariate analysis (OR 2.80 [95% CI = 1.69–1.18]) but not in the multivariate analysis (OR 1.96 [95% CI = 0.73–5.28]).[60]

VI-A2cii. Other Populations. Data for 438 persons with unintentional nonoccupational needlestick or other sharps exposures described in 7 published reports were reviewed, including data for 417 children and 21 adults.[64-70] Childhood and adolescent exposures were characterized as community-acquired exposures occurring in public outdoor places (e.g., playgrounds, parks, or beaches) or by reaching into needle disposal boxes at home or in a hospital. Adult exposures were often similar to occupational exposures occurring while handling needles or disposing of needles in a sharps container. In all cases, the HIV status of the source person was unknown except in 1 report[64] involving multiple percutaneous exposures with lancets among 21 children while playing with discarded needles in a playground. Some of the lancets had been used multiple times to stick different children. One of the children stuck with a lancet was known to be HIV infected before the incident, not receiving antiretroviral therapy, and documented to have an HIV-1 plasma viral load of 5,250,000 copies/mL; the other 20 children were considered potentially exposed to HIV.[64] Additionally, in 1 of the studies, 2 children were hepatitis B surface antigen (HBsAg)-positive at baseline before starting prophylaxis.[66] Among 155 children offered nPEP, 149 accepted and initiated nPEP, and 93 completed their 28-day nPEP course.[64-70] Antiretroviral prophylaxis with either ZDV and 3TC or ZDV, 3TC plus a PI (IDV, NFV, LPV/r) or a non-nucleoside reverse transcriptase inhibitor (NNRTI) (nevirapine [NVP]) was used for those 149 children or adults accepting and initiating nPEP. No seroconversions for HIV, hepatitis B virus (HBV), or HCV were reported among those receiving or not receiving nPEP.[64-70]

In the case report of a 12-year old girl in Saudi Arabia with sickle-cell disease who was inadvertently transfused with a large volume of packed red blood cells, the use of a 13-week, 4-drug nPEP regimen of TDF, FTC, ritonavir-boosted darunavir (DRV/r) (later changed to LPV) and RAL resulted in loss of presence of detectable HIV-1 antibodies.[71] No HIV-1 DNA or plasma HIV-1 RNA was detected by PCR testing during the 8-month follow-up period.

VI-A3. Postnatal Prophylaxis of Infants Born to HIV-infected Mothers

Data regarding the efficacy of infant PEP to prevent mother-to-child HIV transmission provides only limited, indirect information about the efficacy of antiretroviral medications for nPEP. Postpartum antiretroviral prophylaxis is designed to prevent infection after contact of mucosal surfaces (ocular, oral, rectal, or urethral) or broken skin in the infant with maternal blood or other fluids that are present at time of labor and delivery, especially during vaginal births. Trials in which the infant was provided postpartum prophylaxis but the mother received neither prepartum or intrapartum antiretroviral prophylaxis provide the most relevant indirect data regarding nPEP after exposure to a source who did not have suppressed viral load secondary to antiretroviral therapy. Although a combination of prophylaxis during the prenatal, intrapartum, and postpartum periods offers the most effective reduction of perinatal transmission, postpartum prophylaxis alone also offers reduction.[72-75]

A randomized open-label clinical trial of antiretrovirals provided to infants born to breastfeeding HIV-infected women demonstrated an overall reduction in postnatal HIV infection at 14 weeks (the end of the period of prophylaxis) by approximately 70% (95% CI unreported). The trial compared a control group receiving a short-arm postnatal prophylaxis regimen and 2 comparison groups, each receiving different extended-arm postnatal prophylaxis regimens.[76] The control group received the short-arm regimen consisting of single-dose NVP plus 1-week ZDV and the 2 comparison groups received the control regimen and either 1) extended daily NVP for 14 weeks or 2) extended daily NVP and ZDV for 14 weeks. The corresponding HIV infection rates at 14 weeks were 8.5% in the control group, and 2.6% and 2.5% in the 2 extended arms comparison groups, respectively.

An observational study documented a potential effect of ZDV prophylaxis initially started postnatally compared with the prepartum and intrapartum periods. A review of 939 medical records of HIV-exposed infants in New York State indicated that the later the prophylaxis was started after the prepartum period, the higher the likelihood of perinatal transmission and that a benefit existed to postnatal prophylaxis alone (without maternal intrapartum or prepartum medication). Perinatal prophylaxis started during the prepartum, intrapartum, early postpartum (≤48 hours after birth), and late postpartum (3 days–42 days) periods resulted in corresponding transmission rates of 6.1%, 10.0%, 9.3%, and 18.4%, respectively.[77] A perinatal transmission rate of 31.6% was observed when no perinatal prophylaxis was provided; the study included data from patients who had pregnancies early in the epidemic when HIV perinatal prophylaxis was first being implemented, and it was uncertain whether using intrapartum and/or postnatal prophylaxis alone was beneficial among mothers without prenatal care.

VI-A4. Animal Studies

Macaque models have been used to assess potential PEP efficacy. These studies examined artificial exposures to simian immunodeficiency virus (SIV) which varied by modes of exposure, virus innocula, and drug regimens. The parameters imposed by those animal studies might not reflect human viral exposures and drug exposures, and those differences should be considered when interpreting their findings. Nevertheless, macaque models have provided important proof-of-concept data regarding PEP efficacy. More recent animal studies have tested the effectiveness of newer antiretrovirals and alternate routes of PEP administration. Subcutaneous tenofovir was reported to block SIV infection after intravenous challenge among long-tailed macaques if initiated ≤ 24 hours after exposure and continued for 28 days.[78] All 10 macaques initiated on PEP at 4 or 24 hours post inoculation were documented to be SIV-uninfected at 36–56 weeks post inoculation compared with all 10 macaques that failed to receive any prophylaxis and became SIV infected within 20–36 weeks post-inoculation. In a study of 24 macaques, TDF was less effective if initiated 48 or 72 hours post-exposure or if continued for only 3 or 10 days.[79] In contrast, all 11 macaques became SIV infected in a study involving 3 control macaques receiving no prophylaxis and 8 macaques receiving a combination of ZDV, 3TC, and IDV administered orally through nasogastric catheter after intravenous virus inoculation at 4 or 72 hours post-SIV inoculation.[80] High virus innocula and drug exposures that are lower than those achieved among humans as a result of inadequate interspecies adjustment of drug dosing might have contributed to the lack of protection reported for that study. However, a macaque study designed to model nPEP for vaginal HIV exposure demonstrated that a combination of ZDV, 3TC and a high dose of IDV protected 4 of 6 animals from vaginal SIV infection when initiated ≤ 4 hours after vaginal exposure and continued for 28 days, whereas 6 of 6 animals in the control group receiving a placebo became SIV infected.[81] In another study, after 20 vaginal simian/human immunodeficiency virus infection (SHIV) challenges and a 10-week follow-up period, 5 of 6 macaques were protected when treated with topically applied gel containing 1% RAL 3 hours after each virus exposure compared with none of four macaques treated with placebo gel.[82] Likewise, macaques administered subcutaneous TDF for 28 days, beginning 12 hours (4 animals) or 36 hours (4 animals) after vaginal HIV-2 exposure, were protected from infection. Three of 4 animals treated 72 hours after exposure were also protected.[83] Three of 4 untreated animals in the control group became infected with HIV-2. Overall, data from these macaque studies demonstrate that PEP might be effective among humans if initiated ≤ 72 hours and continued daily for 28 days. In a systematic review and meta-analysis of 25 nonhuman primate studies, including rhesus macaques in10 studies and cynomolgus monkeys in 5 studies, use of PEP was associated with an 89% lower risk of seroconversion compared with nonhuman primates who did not use PEP. Also, use of tenofovir compared with other drugs was associated with lower seroconversion.[84]

VI-B. Possible Risks Associated with nPEP

Concerns regarding potential risks associated with nPEP as a clinical HIV prevention intervention include the occurrence of serious adverse effects from the short-term use of antiretroviral medications by otherwise healthy persons without HIV infection, and potential selection for drug-resistant strains of virus among those who become HIV infected despite nPEP use (particularly if medication adherence is inconsistent during the 28-day course or if the source transmits resistant virus). An additional concern is that persons engaging in consensual sex or nonsterile injection drug use may rely solely on PEP instead of adopting more long-term risk-reduction behaviors such as safer sexual and drug-injecting behaviors.

VI-B1. Antiretroviral Side Effects and Toxicity

In a meta-analysis[20] of 24 nPEP-related studies, including 23 cohort studies and 1 randomized clinical trial (behavioral intervention to improve nPEP adherence), of 2,166 sexually assaulted persons, clinicians prescribed 2-drug regimens,[36,38,40,42,85-88] 3-drug regimens,[23,31,58,89-92] 2- and 3-drug regimens,[30,32,50,93,94] or an unknown number of drugs.[46,95-97] ZDV was a part of all the regimens and all 2-drug regimens contained ZDV and 3TC, except 1 study in which ZDV and zalcitabine were prescribed.[88] Antiretrovirals provided as a part of 3-drug regimens included ZDV, 3TC, NFV, IDV, LPV/r, NVP, efavirenz (EFV), or co-formulated FTC/TDF with co-formulated LPV/r. Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and fatigue were the most commonly reported side effects.[20]

Serious side effects have been reported occasionally (e.g., nephrolithiasis and hepatitis) in the literature.[98-100] Rarely, severe hepatotoxicity has been observed among patients administered NVP-containing regimens for both oPEP and nPEP, including a female health care worker who required a liver transplantation after taking oPEP[101]; therefore, CDC advises against use of NVP forPEP.[1,99] Also, since January 2001, product labeling for NVP states that using it as part of a PEP regimen is contraindicated.[102]

A retrospective study in western Kenya involved 296 patients who were eligible for and initiated nPEP, including 104 who completed a 28-day course of nPEP; patients received either stavudine (d4T), 3TC and NVP or ZDV, 3TC, and LPV/r.[47] Neither the proportion of patients reporting side effects (14% [LPV-containing arm] and 21% [NVP-containing arm]) nor antiretroviral therapy completion rates differed substantially between the 2 arms. The most commonly reported side effects included epigastric pain, skin rash, and nausea among patients receiving NVP-containing regimens and diarrhea, dizziness, and epigastric pain among those receiving LPV/r-containing regimens. However, 1 hepatitis-related death of a sexual assault survivor taking a NVP-containing regimen prompted investigators to change to a new PEP regimen containing ZDV, 3TC, and LPV/r. Inclusion of NVP and d4T were initially included in nPEP regimens because of availability and cost but were discontinued in 2005 as a result of adverse events and toxicities among healthy patients. This change was also influenced by a black box warning in the drug labeling for NVP describing increased toxicity among patients on NVP with higher CD4 T lymphocyte (CD4) cell counts.

Commonly used medications in the observational studies of nPEP published after 2005 included ZDV, 3TC, LPV/r, TDF, FTC, and RAL. The majority of regimens involved using 3 drugs (range, 2–4 drugs) with a daily 2-pill burden (range, 1–3 pills). The side-effect profile that included fatigue, nausea, headache, diarrhea, and other gastrointestinal complaints was similar across studies of MSM having mainly consensual sex and studies of sexual assault survivors, including mainly women, children, and a limited proportion of men.[20,23,31,44,55-57,103]

Two trials, including a total of 602 participants, compared TDF- versus ZDV-containing nPEP regimens; both reported better medication tolerability among participants taking TDF-containing regimens.[49,56] Another study reported fewer side effects among 100 adult participants prescribed a 3-drug nPEP regimen that included RAL, TDF, and TDF compared to historical controls using a 3-drug PEP regimen including ZDV, 3TC, and a RTV-boosted PI.[57]

In an open-label, nonrandomized, prospective cohort study comparing RAL-FTC-TDF in 86 MSM and FTC-TDF in 34 MSM, 92% and 91% of participants completed 28 days of treatment, respectively, with mean adherences of 89% and 90%, respectively.[17] Use of RAL rather than a PI was associated with the avoidance of 8 prescribed drug, and 37 potential illicit drug, interactions. However, in the RAL arm, 8 recipients (9%) developed mild myalgias, and 4 recipients developed grade 4 elevations in creatinine kinase. Both the myalgias and creatinine kinase elevations improved to grade 2 or less by week 4 without RAL discontinuation.

Among 100 MSM in an open-label, single-arm study at 2 public health clinics and 2 hospital EDs in urban areas in Australia, a once daily 28-day nPEP single-pill combination regimen of FTC-rilpivirine (RPV)-TDF was well tolerated with 98.5% adherence by self-report and 92% completion of the 28-day regimen.[19] However, within 1 week of completing nPEP, 1 patient developed acute abdominal pain, vomiting, and grade 4 laboratory evidence of acute pancreatitis (lipase 872 IU/L). The pancreatitis resolved $\leq$ 21 days without need for hospitalization.[19]

In a 2-arm open label randomized multicenter clinical trial in EDs in 6 urban hospitals in Barcelona, Spain, comparing ZDV/3TC + LPV/r with ZDV/3TC + atazanavir (ATV), 64% of nPEP recipients in both arms completed the 28-day course and 92% of patients reported taking > 90% of scheduled doses (without difference between arms).[53] Adverse events were reported in 46% of patients overall (49%, LPV/r arm; 43%, ATV arm). Gastrointestinal problems were more common in the LPV/r arm.

A pooled series of case reports revealed that 142 (67%; range, 0%–99%) of 213 children and adolescents who initiated nPEP and who had ≥1 follow-up visit, reported adverse effects and 139 of 465 (30%; range, 0%–64.7%) children and adolescents who initiated nPEP, completed their course of nPEP.[32,35-44] Most commonly reported nPEP regimens included ZDV + 3TC or ZDV + 3TC + (NFV or IDV or LPV/r). Most common adverse events among the 213 participants included nausea (n = 83; 39%), fatigue (n = 58; 27%), vomiting (n = 38; 18%), headache (n = 26; 12%), diarrhea (n = 25; 12%), and abdominal pain (n = 15; 7%).

V1-B2. Selection of Resistant Virus

In instances where nPEP fails to prevent infection, selection of resistant virus by the antiretroviral drugs is theoretically possible. However, because of the paucity of resistance testing in documented nPEP failures, the likelihood of resistance occurring is unknown.

A case report from Brazil documented a 3TC-resistance mutation on day 28 of therapy in a man treated with ZDV and 3TC who subsequently underwent HIV seroconversion.[16] Although the patient was noted to have taken nPEP, detailed information regarding adherence was unreported. Because the source-person could not be tested, whether the mutation was present at the time of transmission or whether it emerged during nPEP use is unknown.

Rationale for the concern regarding acquiring resistant virus from the exposure that leads to nPEP prescription includes data from an international meta-analysis of 287 published studies of transmitted HIV-1 drug resistance among 50,870 individuals during March 1, 2000–December 31, 2013, including 27 studies and 9,283 individuals from North America.[104] The study-level estimate of transmitted drug resistance in North America was 11.5% (resistance to any antiretroviral drug class), 5.8% (resistance to NRTIs), 4.5% (resistance to NNRTIs, and 3.0% (resistance to PIs).

VI-B3. Effects of nPEP on Risk Behaviors

The majority of studies examining the association between use and availability of nPEP and sexual risk behaviors during or after its use have been conducted in developed countries, primarily among MSM; no studies related to risk compensation were conducted among persons with injection-related risk factors.[14,16,105-111] The majority of these studies did not report increases in high-risk sexual behaviors after receipt of nPEP[14,16,106,110,111] and participants sometimes reported a decrease in sexual risk-taking behavior.[16,106] However, in 3 studies, nPEP users were more likely than persons who did not use nPEP to report having multiple partners and engaging in condomless receptive or insertive anal sex with HIV-infected partners or partners with unknown serostatus after completing nPEP.[14,108,110] In 2 of these studies, nPEP users were also more likely to subsequently become HIV infected than patients who did not use nPEP.[108,110] During 2000–2009 in the Amsterdam Cohort Study, MSM who were prescribed nPEP, compared with a reference cohort of MSM, had an incidence of HIV infection approximately 4 times as high (6.4 versus 1.6/100 person-years).[108] During 2001–2007, MSM in a community cohort study in Sydney, Australia reported continued, but not increased, high-risk sexual behaviors among nPEP users; more specifically, no change in sexual behavior was reported at 6 months after 154 incident nPEP uses and after ≥18 months for 89 incident nPEP uses. Among those MSM who received nPEP, the hazard ratio of subsequent HIV infection was 2.67 (95% CI = 1.40, 5.08).[110] The authors did not attribute this elevated risk for HIV seroconversion among users of nPEP to nPEP failure but rather to a documented higher prevalence of condomless anal intercourse (CAI) with HIV-infected partners among users of nPEP, compared with persons who did not use nPEP. In summary, users of nPEP, compared with participants who did not use nPEP had a continued higher prevalence of ongoing CAI with HIV-infected persons resulting in a greater likelihood of HIV seroconversion during all periods, especially after completing nPEP. In another study, repeated courses of nPEP were unassociated with risk for subsequent HIV infection.[45] In a study of 99 patients who attended a clinic in Toronto to be evaluated for nPEP during January 1, 2013–September 30, 2014, 31 (31%) met CDC criteria for

PrEP initiation.[112] PrEP candidacy in this study was associated with sexual exposure to HIV, prior nPEP use, and lack of drug insurance. Those studies[14,108,110,112] demonstrate that certain nPEP users with ongoing high-risk sexual behaviors might need additional behavioral and biomedical prevention interventions, including PrEP, instead of nPEP.[11,113]

One U.S.-based study among 89 MSM that examined risk behavior during the 28-day course of nPEP reported that among participants, 21% reported having insertive or receptive CAI, and 43% reported engaging with ≥ 1 partner known to be HIV-positive or of unknown serostatus (i.e., a high-risk partner).[105] Ninety-four percent of participants reporting having high-risk partners also reported having insertive or receptive anal intercourse. Of participants with high-risk partners and who practiced insertive or receptive anal intercourse, 26% reported CAI with their high-risk partner while receiving nPEP. The strongest predictor of CAI during nPEP in that study was HIV engagement, defined as receiving services from an HIV-related organization, donating money to or volunteering for an HIV-related cause, or reading HIV-related magazines and online sites. A nearly 5-fold chance of reporting condomless sex with a high-risk partner during nPEP was associated with each standard deviation increase in HIV engagement (OR 4.7 [95% CI = 1.3–17.04]). Investigators hypothesized that persons who are more involved with HIV-related services or organizations might be more informed about the effectiveness of nPEP and more likely to perceive themselves to be at less risk for HIV transmission while receiving nPEP and therefore more likely to have CAI.[105]

Awareness of nPEP availability, defined as general knowledge of availability of nPEP as a tool for preventing HIV infection after a potential HIV exposure[107] or nPEP use more than once in 5 years,[103] was associated with condomless sex among MSM.[103,107] Additionally, a longitudinal study of MSM in the Netherlands reported no associations existed between any nPEP-related beliefs (e.g., perceiving less HIV or acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS) threat, given the availability of nPEP, or perceiving high effectiveness of nPEP in preventing HIV) and the incidence of sexually transmitted infections (STIs) or new HIV infection.[109]

VI-C. Antiretroviral Use During Pregnancy

No trials have been conducted to evaluate use or the maternal or fetal health effects of short-term (i.e., 28-day) antiretroviral use as nPEP among pregnant women without HIV infection. However, clinical trials have been conducted and extensive observational data exist regarding use of specific antiretrovirals during pregnancy among HIV-infected women both when initiated as treatment for health benefits to the women and when initiated to reduce mother-to-child HIV transmission. Although duration of antiretroviral use during pregnancy has varied in these trials, it often spans months of pregnancy. Only ZDV is specifically approved for use in pregnancy, but as a result of data from clinical trials, other antiretroviral drugs have been reported to have short-term safety for pregnant women and their fetuses, and therefore can be considered for nPEP in women who are or who might become pregnant. See Recommendations for Use of Antiretroviral Drugs in Pregnant HIV-1-Infected Women for Maternal Health and Interventions to Reduce Perinatal HIV Transmission in the United States for information regarding use of specific antiretrovirals during pregnancy.[114] Additionally, results from ongoing surveillance of major teratogenic effects related to antiretroviral use during pregnancy are described in the Antiretroviral Pregnancy Registry International Interim Report every 6 months.[115]

Certain antiretrovirals have been associated with severe side effects, toxicity, potential for teratogenicity, or other untoward effects among pregnant and non-pregnant women with HIV infection[114] and therefore are not recommended for nPEP use (see section VII-F2b. Pregnant Women and Women of Childbearing Potential for a list of antiretroviral medications that should not be used for nPEP in pregnant women). These include EFV, NVP, and d4T plus didanosine (DDI).[114] Using IDV without RTV-boosting demonstrated altered drug metabolism during pregnancy.[116,117] No severe side effects, toxicity, or adverse pregnancy outcomes have been reported to occur among HIV-uninfected women taking antiretrovirals for oPEP or nPEP.

Reports are conflicting regarding whether an association exists of substantial malformations with use of EFV during the first trimester among humans. Studies using cynomolgus monkeys reported a potential association between neurologic congenital malformations and first-trimester use of EFV.[118] Although case reports exist of neurologic defects among infants of women receiving EFV,[119,120] no elevated risk for overall congenital malformations associated with first-trimester EFV exposure have been reported in either prospectively reported pregnancies from the Antiretroviral Pregnancy Registry[115] or from a meta-analysis of 23 studies with birth outcomes from 2,026 live births among women receiving EFV during the first trimester.[121]

HIV-infected pregnant women receiving combination antiretroviral regimens that included NVP have been reported to suffer severe hepatic adverse events, including death. However, whether pregnancy increases the risk for hepatotoxic events associated with NVP therapy is unknown. Use of NVP in HIV-infected women (regardless of pregnancy status) with high CD4 counts >250 cells/mm^3[102] or elevated transaminase levels at baseline[122] has been associated with potentially life-threatening rash and hepatotoxicity. NVP use in 3 HIV-infected women with CD4 counts <100 cells/mm^3 at baseline has been associated with death among those also taking anti-tuberculosis therapy.[122]

Among antiretroviral medication combinations no longer recommended, regimens containing d4T with DDI have been associated with severe maternal lactic acidosis among pregnant HIV-infected women,[123,124] including severe necrotic pancreatic and hepatic steatosis and necrotic cellulitis of the abdominal wall in 1 woman,[123] 1 fetal demise (normal for gestational age) at 38 weeks gestation,[124] and 1 postnatal death at age 2 weeks in a 1,000 gram infant with trisomy 18.[123] Additionally, using IDV without RTV-boosting during pregnancy results in substantially lower antepartum exposures of IDV, compared with use of RTV-boosted IDV.[116,117]

VI-D. Behavioral Intervention to Support Risk Reduction During nPEP Use

Study findings from 2 randomized control trials underscore the importance of combining nPEP with behavioral interventions[125] to support continuing risk reduction. In a randomized controlled counseling intervention trial among nPEP recipients at a single U.S. site, investigators compared behavioral effects among those who received 2 (standard) versus 5 (enhanced) risk-reduction counseling sessions. Both interventions were based on social cognitive theory, motivational interviewing, and coping effectiveness. Compared with baseline, a reduction occurred at 12 months in the reported number of condomless sex acts for both intervention arms. The group reporting ≤ 4 condomless sex acts during the previous 6 months at baseline benefitted more from the 2-session intervention, while persons reporting ≥ 5 condomless sex acts during the previous 6 months at baseline revealed a greater reduction of condomless sex acts after receiving the 5-session intervention.[126] These findings demonstrate that more counseling sessions might be necessary for persons reporting higher levels of sexual risk behavior when initiating nPEP. In another randomized control trial, MSM who received contingency management, a substance abuse intervention providing voucher-based incentives for stimulant-use abstinence, had greater nPEP completion rates, greater reductions in stimulant use, and fewer acts of condomless anal intercourse compared with control participants who received incentives that were not contingent on their substance abstinence.[127]

VI-E. Adherence to nPEP Regimens and Follow-up Visits

Difficulties in adherence have been noted in both maintaining adherence to daily doses of antiretroviral medication for 28 days among the majority of populations and adherence to follow-up clinical visits for HIV testing and other care. Such adherence difficulties appear particularly severe in studies of nPEP for sexually assaulted persons. Methods for measuring completion of nPEP medication regimen differed across studies, and loss to follow-up was a major hindrance to assessing medication adherence for the majority of studies.

In a systematic review and meta-analysis of 34 nPEP studies not including sexual assault and 26 nPEP studies including only sexual assault, nPEP completion rates were lowest among persons who experienced sexual assault (40.2% [95% CI = 31.2%, 49.2%]) and highest among persons who had other nonoccupational exposures (65.6% [95% CI = 55.6%, 75.6%]).[128] In a separate meta-analysis of 24 nPEP-related studies, including 23 cohort studies and 1 randomized behavioral intervention to improve nPEP adherence, of 2,166 sexually assaulted persons receiving nPEP and pooled across the 24 studies, 40.3% (95% CI = 32.5%–48.1%; range, 11.8%–73.9%) adhered to a 28-day course of nPEP, and 41.2% (95% CI = 31.1%–51.4%; range, 2.9%–79.7%) did not return to pick up their prescribed medication or did not return for follow-up appointments.[20] Medication adherence was measured in 24 studies by using varying methodology, including pill count, volume of syrup remaining, self-report, counts of number of pharmacy visits, recall of number of doses taken by notation on a calendar, number of prescriptions filled, and number of weekly clinic appointments kept. Reported medication adherence was lower in developed countries (n=15 studies, 5 countries)[23,30-32,36,38,46,50,58,88-92,94,97] compared with developing countries (n=8 studies, three countries)[40,42,85-87,93,95,96] (33.3% versus 53.2%, respectively; P=0.007), possibly due to higher awareness of HIV transmission risk in countries with a high HIV prevalence.[20] Eight of the 24 (33%) studies[30,32,46,86-89,97] provided nPEP medications at time of initiation of prophylaxis as starter packs including 4–7 days of medication, and 1 study provided either a starter pack of medications or a full 28-day supply of nPEP at initiation.[96] In this latter study, the proportion who adhered to the 28 days of nPEP was 29% for patients initially receiving the starter pack and 71% for patients receiving a full 28-day supply.[96]

Although sexually assaulted persons are sometimes at risk for HIV transmission, they often decline nPEP, and many who do take it do not complete the 28-day course. This pattern has been reported in multiple countries and in programs in North America. In Ontario, for example, 798 of 900 eligible sexually assaulted persons were offered nPEP, including 69 and 729 at high or unknown risk for HIV transmission due to the factors associated with their sexual assault, respectively.[23] Forty-six (67%) of 69 persons at high risk for HIV transmission and 301 (41%) of 729 persons with unknown risk accepted and initiated nPEP. Twenty-four percent of patients at high risk and 33% of patients with unknown risk completed the 28-day course. Reasons for discontinuing treatment were documented in 96 cases and included adverse effects (81%), interference with routine (42%), inability to take time away from work or school (22%), and reconsideration of HIV risk (19%).

Of the observational studies of sexually assaulted persons provided nPEP, the majority identified similar challenges. Studies have demonstrated that early discontinuation of medication and a lack of follow-up pose challenges to providing nPEP to sexually assaulted persons.[31,33,47,50]

Four international studies examined adherence among both men and women with non-assault sexual and injection drug use risk exposures.[46,48,49,51] Full medication adherence in these studies ranged from 60%–88%; 60%[48] and 79%[51] completed therapy (without specifying how completion was defined) and 67%[48] and 88%[49] completed 28 days or 4 weeks of nPEP. The proportion of MSM who adhered to nPEP medication for 28 days reported in those studies ranged from 42%–91%.

Studies that used a fixed dose combination of ZDV/3TC and LPV/r as primary components in the nPEP drug regimen reported low medication adherence for 28 days (24%–44%).[23,44,47] A study among MSM compared use of a fixed-dose combination regimen containing TDF/FTC with or without RAL (an integrase inhibitor) with ZDV/3TC and a RTV-boosted PI; adherence rates were superior for the TDF-containing regimens (57% [with RAL]–72.7% [without RAL]) compared with the PI-containing regimen (46%). Although 57% of the TDF/FTC/RAL arm reported taking their medications as directed, an additional 27% took their once daily medication, but sometimes missed their second daily dose of RAL.[57]

VI-F. nPEP Cost-effectiveness

Estimates of cost-effectiveness of nPEP as an HIV prevention method reported in the literature vary by HIV exposure route and estimated prevalence of infection among source persons. A study using data from the San Francisco nPEP program estimated the cost-effectiveness of hypothetical nPEP programs in each of the 96 metropolitan statistical areas in the United States.[129] It included 3 different data sources, including data from clinical care and drug cost data from the San Francisco Department of Public Health nPEP program,[130] estimates of the per-act probability of HIV transmission associated with different modes of sexual and parenteral HIV exposure,[131-133] and HIV prevalence data from 96 U.S. metropolitan statistical areas.[134] Investigators estimated the cost-effectiveness of hypothetical nPEP programs as an HIV prevention method in each area compared with no intervention. By defining cost-effective programs as those costing <$60,000/quality-adjusted life year (QALY), that study found nPEP programs were cost-effective across the combined metropolitan statistical areas with a cost utility ratio of $12,567/QALY saved (range, $4,147–$39,101). nPEP was most cost-effective for MSM ($4,907/QALY). It was not cost-effective for needle-sharing persons who inject drugs (PWID) ($97,867/QALY), persons sustaining nonoccupational needlesticks ($159,687/QALY), and receptive female partners ($380,891/QALY) or insertive male partners ($650,792/QALY) in penile-vaginal sex. The hypothetical nPEP program would be cost-saving (cost-utility ratio, <$0) only for men and women presenting with receptive anal intercourse or if nPEP use was limited to clients with known HIV-infected partners.[129] In another study limited to San Francisco, the overall cost-utility ratio for the existing nPEP program was $14,449/QALY saved and for men experiencing receptive anal sex, the nPEP program was cost-saving.[130]

Studies in Australia and France reported similar results. For example, in Australia, using a threshold for cost-effectiveness of $50,000/QALY, nPEP was cost-effective among persons having CAI with an HIV-infected source ($40,673/QALY).[135] In France, using thresholds for cost-saving and cost-effectiveness of €0/QALY saved and <€50,000/QALY saved, respectively, nPEP was cost-saving among men and women who had receptive anal intercourse with an HIV-infected man (-€22,141/QALY saved [men]; and -€22,031/QALY saved [women]) and cost-saving among PWID having shared needles with an HIV-infected person (-€1,141/QALY saved).[136]

Additionally, these same French and Australian studies, and a Swiss study, reported that HIV testing to determine the status of the source person (when possible) was determined to reduce costs associated with nPEP programs by avoiding unnecessary prophylaxis.[48,135,136]

VI-G. Attitudes, Policies, and Knowledge About nPEP Use Among Health Care Providers and Candidates for nPEP

Since 1997, certain health care providers, health policy makers, and scientific investigators of nPEP have recommended wider availability and/or use of nPEP,[24,131,137-144] while others have been more cautious about implementing it in the absence of definitive evidence of efficacy or effectiveness.[145,146] Multiple public health jurisdictions in the U.S., including the New York State AIDS Institute, the San Francisco County Health Department, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, the Rhode Island Department of Health, and the California State Office of AIDS, have issued policies or advisories for nPEP use.[3,4,147,148]

Surveys of health care providers and facilities indicate a low level of awareness and capacity to provide nPEP as well as a lack of access for nPEP for those for whom it is recommended need for more widespread dissemination and implementation of guidelines and protocols for nPEP use and a need for improved access. In a study of 181 patients presenting to the emergency department (ED) who had been sexually assaulted, lack of insurance, older patient age, and acquaintance rape were factors associated with not being offered nPEP.[30] A study evaluating access to nPEP services in 117 health care sites in Los Angeles County through use of Internet searches and telephone surveys, determined that only 14% offered nPEP to clients regardless of insurance status, and an even lower percentage, 8%, offered nPEP to uninsured clients, indicating the need to improve access to such services.[149] A survey in New York State (NYS) reported that among 184 EDs, 88% reported evaluating patients with possible nonoccupational exposures to HIV in accordance with NYS guidelines, however, full implementation of NYS nPEP guidelines was incomplete with 4% neither supplying nor prescribing antiretroviral drugs in the ED and only 22% confirming whether linkage to follow-up care was successful.[150] Screening of STIs, risk-reduction counseling, and education about symptoms of acute HIV seroconversion were not consistently performed according to the NYS guidelines.[150] Additionally, in a survey of 142 HIV health care providers in Miami and the District of Columbia, prescribing nPEP was associated with having patients request nPEP, or having a written nPEP protocol, although most providers reported not having a written nPEP protocol and that patients rarely or never requested nPEP.[151] Lack of prescribing nPEP was associated with believing that nPEP would lead to antiretroviral resistance.[151] More health care providers in the District of Columbia compared with those in Miami, prescribed nPEP (59.7% versus 39.5%, respectively $P<0.048$).[152] In a cross-sectional study describing program practices related to HIV testing and nPEP among 174 sexual assault nurse examiner (SANE)/forensic nurse examiner (FNE) programs in the U.S. and Canada, 75% had nPEP policies, 31% provided HIV testing, and 63% offered nPEP routinely or based on patient request.[153] Medication cost was the most important barrier to providing nPEP in these programs.

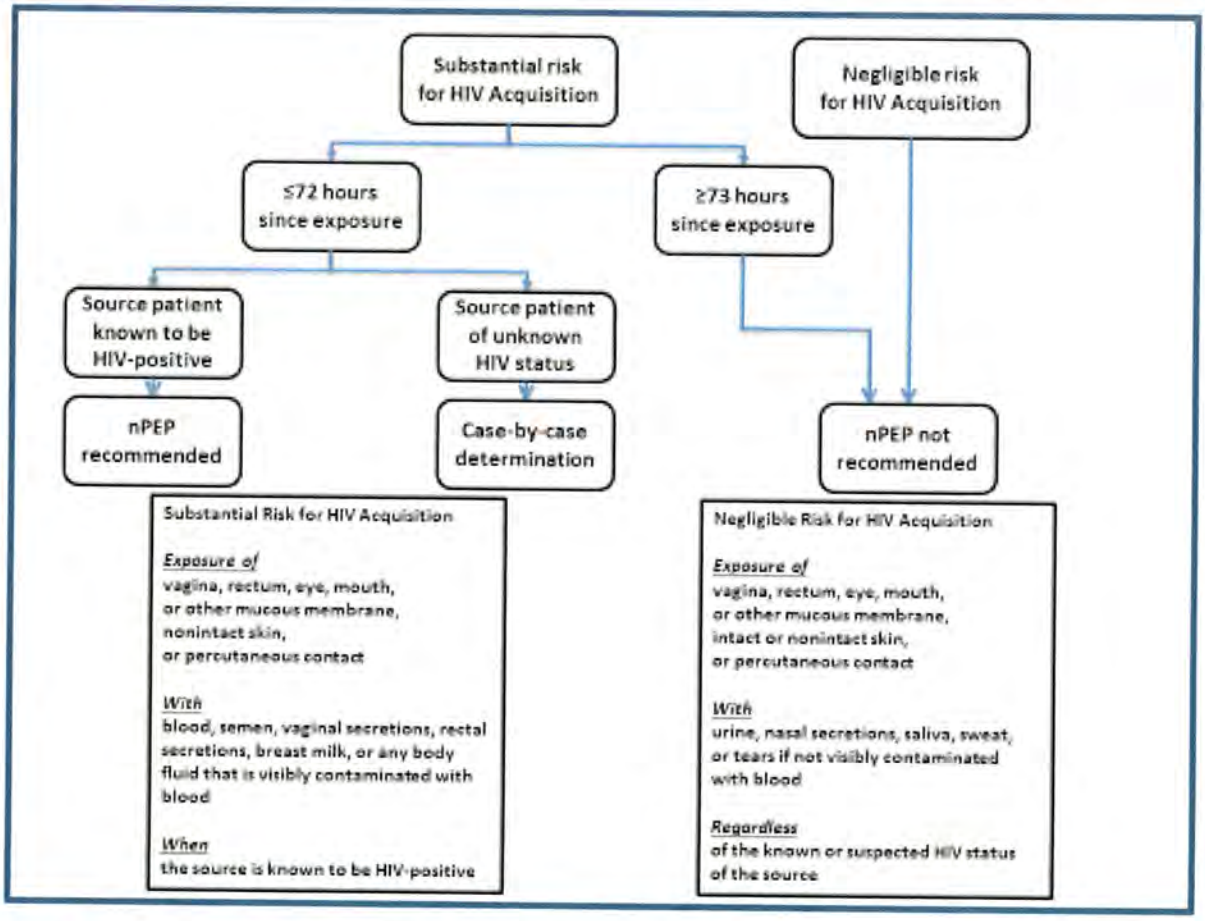
Awareness, knowledge, and use of nPEP has been described among MSM.[14,15,106,108,110,154] Evidence indicates awareness of nPEP and interest in its use among potential patients. When nPEP studies were established in San Francisco, approximately 400 persons sought treatment during December 1997–March 1999.[106,154] In an HIV prevention trial of 4,295 MSM in 6 U.S. cities during 1999–2003, a total of 2,037 (47%) had heard of nPEP at baseline and 315 (7%) reported using nPEP on ≥1 occasion.[14] Predictors of nPEP use included having multiple partners, engagement in condomless sex with a known HIV-infected partner or with a partner of unknown HIV status, and use of illicit drugs. Among 1,427 MSM in a community cohort of HIV-negative men in Sydney, Australia, during 2001–2007, knowledge of nPEP increased from 78.5% at baseline to 97.4% by the fifth annual interview, and nPEP use increased from 2.9/100 person-years in 2002 to 7.1/100 person-years in 2007.[110] During 2006–2009, knowledge of nPEP among MSM from urban areas in the Netherlands increased from 46% to 73%.[108] Also, the annual number of PEP prescriptions to MSM in Amsterdam increased 3-fold, from 19 in 2000 to 69 in 2007.[15]



In a study of 227 pediatric and adolescent patients aged 9 months–18 years who were evaluated for sexual assault in Atlanta, Georgia, 40% of patients were examined ≤ 72 hours after the sexual assault, of whom 81% reported a history of genital or anal trauma.[41] In that study, patients aged 13–18 years and those who reported sexual assault by a stranger were more likely to present to the ED ≤ 72 hours after the sexual assault. Health care providers in the hospital's ED where this nPEP study was conducted expressed reluctance to prescribe nPEP to pre-pubertal children. For example, of 87 children and adolescents seen in the ED ≤ 72 hours after the assault, 23 had anogenital trauma or bleeding, and 5 were offered nPEP.

VII. Patient Management Guidelines

VII-A. Initial Evaluation of Persons Seeking Care After Potential Nonoccupational Exposure to HIV

Effective delivery of nPEP after exposures that carry a substantial risk for HIV infection requires prompt evaluation of patients and consideration of biomedical and behavioral interventions to address current and ongoing health risks. The initial evaluation provides the information necessary for determining if nPEP is indicated (Figure 1).

Procedures at the evaluation visit include determining the HIV infection status of the potentially exposed person and the source person (if available), the timing and characteristics of the exposure for which care is being sought, and the frequency of possible HIV exposures. Additionally, to determine whether other treatment or prophylaxis is indicated, health care providers should assess the likelihood of STIs, infections efficiently transmitted by injection practices or needlesticks (e.g., hepatitis B or hepatitis C virus), and pregnancy for women.

VII-A1. HIV Status of the Potentially Exposed Person

nPEP is only indicated for potentially exposed persons without HIV infection. Because potentially exposed persons might have acquired HIV infection already and be unaware of it, routine HIV antibody testing should be performed on all persons seeking evaluation for potential nonoccupational HIV exposure. If possible, this should be done with an FDA-approved rapid antibody or Ag/Ab blood test kit with results available within an hour. If HIV blood test results will be unavailable during the initial evaluation visit, a decision whether nPEP is indicated should be made based on the initial assumption that the potentially exposed patient is not infected. If medication of HIV prophylaxis is indicated by the initial evaluation and started, it can be discontinued if the patient is later determined to already have HIV infection.

VII-A2. Timing and Frequency of Exposure

Available data from animal studies indicate that nPEP is most effective when initiated as soon as possible after HIV exposure; it is unlikely to be effective when instituted > 72 hours after exposure.[83] Therefore, persons should seek nPEP as soon as possible after an exposure that might confer substantial risk and health care providers should evaluate such patients rapidly and initiate nPEP promptly when indicated.

nPEP should be provided only for infrequent exposures. Persons who engage in behaviors that result in frequent, recurrent exposures that would require sequential or near-continuous courses of antiretroviral medications (e.g., HIV-discordant sex partners who inconsistently use condoms or PWID who often share injection equipment) should not be prescribed frequent, repeated courses of nPEP. Instead, health care providers should provide persons with repeated HIV exposure events (or coordinate referrals for) intensive sexual or injection risk-reduction interventions, and consider the prescription of daily oral doses of the fixed-dose combination of TDF and FTC (Truvada, Gilead Sciences, Inc., Foster City, California) for PrEP.[11] However, if the most recent recurring exposure is within the 72 hours prior to an evaluation, nPEP may be indicated with transition of the patient to PrEP after completion of 28 days of nPEP medication.

In the special case of children with evidence of chronic sexual abuse who come to the attention of a health care provider ≤ 72 hours after their most recent exposure, nPEP can be considered on a case-by-case basis. In addition, child protective services should be engaged for consideration of removal of the child from exposure to the perpetrator of the sexual abuse.

VII-A3. HIV Acquisition Risk from the Exposure

In addition to determining when the potential exposure occurred, determining whether nPEP is indicated requires assessing if the reported sexual, injection drug use, or other nonoccupational exposure presents a substantial risk for HIV acquisition. Health care providers should consider 3 main factors in making that determination: (1) whether the exposure source is known to have HIV infection, (2) to which potentially infected body fluid(s) the patient was exposed, and (3) the exposure site or surface.

The highest level of risk is associated with exposure of susceptible tissues to potentially infected body fluid(s) from persons known to have HIV infection, particularly those who are not on antiretroviral treatment. Persons with exposures to potentially infectious fluids from persons of unknown HIV status are at unknown risk for acquiring HIV infection. When the source of exposure is known to be from a group with a high prevalence of HIV infection (e.g., a man who has sex with men or a PWID who shares needles or other injection equipment), the risk for unrecognized HIV infection in the source is increased.

The estimated per-act transmission risk, when exposed to infectious fluid(s) from a person with HIV infection, varies considerably by exposure route (Table 1).[155] The highest estimated per-act risks for HIV transmission are associated with blood transfusion, needle sharing during injection drug use, receptive anal intercourse, and percutaneous needlestick injuries. Insertive anal intercourse, insertive penile-vaginal intercourse, and oral sex represent substantially lower per-act transmission risk.

Table 1. Estimated per-act risk for acquiring human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) from an infected source, by exposure act[a]

Exposure type	Rate for HIV acquisition per 10,000 exposures
Parenteral
Blood transfusion	9,250
Needle sharing during injection drug use	63
Percutaneous (needlestick)	23
Sexual
Receptive anal intercourse	138
Receptive penile-vaginal intercourse	8
Insertive anal intercourse	11
Insertive penile-vaginal intercourse	4
Receptive oral intercourse	Low
Insertive oral intercourse	Low
Other[b]
Biting	Negligible
Spitting	Negligible

Sharing sex toys	Negligible

Source: http://www.cdc.gov/hiv/policies/law/risk.html

[a] Factors that may increase the risk of HIV transmission include sexually transmitted diseases, acute and late-stage HIV infection, and high viral load. Factors that may decrease the risk include condom use, male circumcision, antiretroviral treatment, and preexposure prophylaxis. None of these factors are accounted for in the estimates presented in the table.

[b] HIV transmission through these exposure routes is technically possible but unlikely and not well documented.

A history should be taken of the specific sexual, injection drug use, or other exposure events that can lead to acquiring HIV infection. Eliciting a complete description of the exposure and information about the HIV status of the partner(s) can substantially lower (e.g., if the patient was exclusively the insertive partner or a condom was used) or increase (e.g., if the partner is known to be HIV-positive) the estimate of risk for HIV transmission resulting from a specific exposure.

Percutaneous injuries from needles discarded in public settings (e.g., parks and buses) sometimes result in requests for nPEP. Although no HIV infections from such injuries have been documented, concern exists that syringes discarded by PWID might pose a substantial risk. However, such injuries typically involve small-bore needles that contain only limited amounts of blood, and the infectiousness of any virus present might be low.[156,157] Saliva that is not contaminated with blood contains HIV in much lower titers and constitutes a negligible exposure risk,[158] but saliva that is contaminated with HIV-infected blood poses a substantial exposure risk. HIV transmission by this route has been reported in ≥ 4 cases.[159-162]

VII-A4. HIV Status of the Exposure Source

When the exposure source's HIV status is unknown, that person's availability for HIV testing should be determined. When the source person is available and consents to HIV testing, a clinical evaluation visit should be arranged that includes HIV testing by using a fourth-generation combined Ag/Ab test. The risk for transmission might be especially great if the source person has been infected recently because the viral burden in blood and semen might be particularly high.[163,164] However, ascertaining this in the short time available for the initial nPEP evaluation might not be possible. If the risk associated with the exposure is high, starting nPEP and then making a decision whether to continue nPEP after the source's HIV status is determined is recommended.

If the exposure source is known to have HIV infection at the time of the nPEP evaluation visit and consents, the health care provider should attempt to interview that person or that source person's health care provider to determine the history of antiretroviral use and most recent viral load. That information might help guide the choice of nPEP medications to avoid prescribing antiretroviral medications to which the source-virus is likely to be resistant. If the person with HIV infection is willing, the clinician might consider drawing blood for viral load and resistance testing, the results of which might be useful in modifying the initial nPEP medications if the results can be obtained promptly.[165]

VII-B. Laboratory Testing

Laboratory testing is required to (1) document the HIV infection status of the person presenting for nPEP evaluation (and the exposure source when available and consent has been granted), (2) identify and clinically manage any other conditions potentially resulting from sexual- or injection-related exposure to potentially infected body fluids, (3) identify any conditions that would affect the nPEP medication regimen, and (4) monitor for safety or toxicities related to the regimen prescribed (Table 2).

VII-B1. HIV Testing

All patients initiating nPEP after potential HIV exposure should be tested for the presence of HIV-1 and HIV-2 antigens and antibodies in a blood specimen at baseline (before nPEP initiation), preferably using a rapid test. Patients with baseline rapid tests indicating existing HIV infection should not be started on nPEP. Patients for whom baseline HIV rapid test results indicate no HIV infection or rapid HIV test results are not available should be offered nPEP. There should be no delay in initiation of nPEP while awaiting baseline HIV test results. Repeat HIV testing should occur at 4–6 weeks and 3 months after exposure to determine if HIV infection has occurred. See http://www.cdc.gov/hiv/testing/laboratorytests.html regarding information on approved HIV tests. Oral HIV tests are not recommended for use among persons being evaluated for nPEP.

Additionally, persons whose sexual or injection-related exposures results in concurrent acquisition of HCV and HIV infection might have delayed HIV seroconversion. This has been documented among MSM with sexual exposure[13] and health care personnel receiving oPEP for needlestick exposures.[166,167] Therefore, for any person whose HCV antibody test is negative at baseline but positive at 4–6 weeks after the exposure, HIV antibody tests should be conducted at 3 and 6 months to rule out delayed seroconversion (see Table 2).

VII-B2. Recognizing Acute HIV Infection at Time of HIV Seroconversion

Persons initiating nPEP, if it fails, may experience signs and symptoms of acute HIV infection while on nPEP. At the initial visit, patients should be instructed about the signs and symptoms associated with acute (primary) HIV infection (Table 3), especially fever and rash,[168] and asked to return for evaluation if these occur during the 28 days of prophylaxis or anytime within a month after nPEP concludes.

Table 3. Clinical signs and symptoms of acute (primary) human immunodeficiency virus infection[169,170]

Acute HIV infection is associated with high viral load. However, health care providers should be aware that available assays might yield low viral-load results (e.g., <3,000 copies/ml) among persons without HIV infection (i.e., false-positives). Without confirmatory tests, such false-positive results can lead to misdiagnoses of HIV infection.[171] Transient, low-grade viremia has been observed among persons exposed to HIV who were administered antiretroviral nPEP[172] and did not become infected. In certain cases, this outcome might represent aborted infection rather than false-positive test results, but this can be determined only through further testing.

All patients who have begun taking nPEP and for whom laboratory evidence later confirms acute HIV infection at baseline or whose follow-up antibody testing indicates HIV infection, should be transferred rapidly to the care of an HIV treatment specialist (if nPEP was provided by another type of health care provider). If the patient is taking a 3-drug antiretroviral regimen for nPEP at the time of HIV infection diagnosis, the 3-drug regimen should not be discontinued by the nPEP provider until the patient has been evaluated and a treatment plan initiated by an experienced HIV care provider.[173]

VII-B3. STI Testing

Any sexual exposure that presents a risk for HIV infection might also place a person at risk for acquiring other STIs.[174] For all persons evaluated for nPEP because of exposure during sexual encounters, STI-specific nucleic acid amplification (NAAT) testing is recommended for gonorrhea and chlamydia,[174] by testing first-catch urine or with swabs collected from each mucosal site exposed to potentially infected body fluids (oral, vaginal, cervical, urethral, rectal).[174,175] Additionally, blood tests for syphilis should be conducted for all persons evaluated for nPEP.

VII-B4. HBV Testing

HBV infection is of specific concern when considering nPEP for 2 reasons. First, multiple medications used for nPEP, including 2 in the preferred regimen (TDF and FTC) are active against HBV infection. For safety reasons, health care providers need to know if a patient has active HBV infection (positive hepatitis B surface antigen [HBsAg]) so that the patient can be closely monitored for reactivation "flare ups" when nPEP is stopped, and treatment for HBV infection is discontinued. Although this is rare, it can result in substantial hepatic dysfunction if not detected and treated early. Additionally, obtaining hepatitis serology (HBsAg, hepatitis B surface antibody [anti-HBs], and hepatitis B core antibody [anti-HBc]) will identify nonimmune persons who should be provided hepatitis B vaccination Table 4).[176]

Table 4. Hepatitis B virus screening serology[177]

VII-B5. Pregnancy Testing

nPEP is not contraindicated for pregnant women. Moreover, because pregnancy has been demonstrated to increase susceptibility to sexual HIV acquisition,[178] nPEP can be especially important for women who are pregnant at the time of sexual HIV exposure.

For women of reproductive capacity who have had genital exposure to semen and a negative pregnancy test when evaluated for possible nPEP, current contraception use should be assessed, and if a risk for pregnancy exists, emergency contraception should be discussed with the patient.

VII-B6. Baseline and Follow-up Testing to Assess Safety of Antiretroviral Use for nPEP

All patients who will be prescribed nPEP should have serum creatinine measured and an estimated creatinine clearance calculated at baseline to guide selection of a safe and appropriate antiretroviral regimen for nPEP. Also, health care providers treating patients with nPEP should monitor liver function, renal function, and hematologic parameters when indicated by the prescribing information for the antiretrovirals prescribed. Drug-specific recommendations are available at the online AIDS*Info* Drugs Database at: http://aidsinfo.nih.gov/drugs or the antiretroviral treatment guidelines.[114,173,179]

Unusual or severe toxicities from antiretroviral drugs should be reported to the manufacturer or FDA (http://www.accessdata.fda.gov/scripts/medwatch/medwatch-online.htm, or 1-800-FDA-1088 [1-800-332-1088]).

If nPEP is prescribed to a woman who is pregnant at the time of exposure or becomes pregnant while on nPEP, health care providers should enter the patient's information (anonymously) into the Antiretroviral Pregnancy Registry (http://www.apregistry.com).

VII-C. Recommended Antiretroviral nPEP Regimens

A 28-day course of nPEP is recommended for HIV-uninfected persons who seek care ≤ 72 hours after a nonoccupational exposure to blood, genital secretions, or other potentially infected body fluids of persons known to be HIV infected or of unknown HIV status when that exposure represents a substantial risk for HIV acquisition. Since adherence is critical for nPEP efficacy, it is preferable to select regimens that minimize side effects, number of doses per day and the number of pills per dose.

No strong evidence exists, based on randomized clinical trials, that any specific combination of antiretroviral medication is optimal for nPEP use. Although a limited number of studies have evaluated the penetration of antiretroviral medications into genital tract secretions and tissues,[180-182] evidence is insufficient for recommending a specific antiretroviral medication as most effective for nPEP for sexual exposures. Therefore, the recommended regimens for nPEP in these guidelines are based on expert opinion from the accumulated experience with antiretroviral combinations that effectively suppress viral replication among HIV-infected persons for the purpose of HIV treatment and mainly observational studies of the medication tolerance and adherence when these same drugs are taken for nPEP.

The recommendation for a 3-drug antiretroviral regimen is based on extrapolation of data demonstrating that the maximal suppression of viral replication occurs among persons with HIV infection when combination antiretroviral therapy with ≥3 drugs is provided. Also, the likelihood of protection against acquiring resistant virus would be greater with a 3-drug regimen compared with a 2-drug regimen. Recommending a 3-drug regimen for all patients who receive nPEP will increase the likelihood of successful prophylaxis in light of potential exposure to virus with resistance mutation(s) and will provide consistency across PEP guidelines for both nPEP and oPEP.[2] Additionally, if infection occurs despite nPEP, a 3-drug regimen will more likely limit emergence of resistance than a 2-drug regimen.

Health care providers might consider using antiretroviral regimens for nPEP other than those listed as preferred or alternative because of patient-specific information (e.g., an HIV-infected exposure source with known drug-resistance or contraindications to ≥1 of the antiretrovirals in a preferred regimen). In those cases, health care providers are encouraged to seek consultation with other health care providers knowledgeable in using antiretroviral medications for similar patients (e.g., children, pregnant women, those with comorbid conditions) (Appendix 4).

> Providers should be aware that abacavir sulfate (Ziagen, ViiV Healthcare, Brentford, Middlesex, United Kingdom) should not be prescribed in any nPEP regimen. Prompt initiation of nPEP does not allow time for determining if a patient has the *HLA-B*5701* allele, the presence of which is strongly associated with a hypersensitivity syndrome that can be fatal.[183]

Health care providers and patients who are concerned about potential adherence and toxicity or the additional cost associated with a 3-drug antiretroviral regimen might consider using a 2-drug regimen (i.e., a combination of 2 NRTIs or a combination of a PI and a NNRTI). However, this DHHS guideline recommends a 3-drug regimen in all cases when nPEP is indicated.

VII-D. Prophylaxis for STIs and Hepatitis

All adults and adolescents with exposures by sexual assault should be provided with prophylaxis routinely for STIs and HBV,[174] as follows:

- For gonorrhea, (male and female adults and adolescents),
  - ceftriaxone 250 mg intermuscular, single dose;
  - plus azithromycin, 1 g, orally, single dose;
- For chlamydia (male and female adults and adolescents),
  - azithromycin, 1 g, orally, single dose
  - or doxycycline, 100 mg, orally, twice a day for 7 days.
- For trichomonas (female adults and adolescents),
  - metronidazole, 2 g, orally, single dose
  - or tinidazole, 2 g, orally, single dose

All persons not known to be previously vaccinated against HBV, should receive hepatitis B vaccination (without hepatitis B immune globulin),[174] with the first dose administered during the initial examination. If the exposure source is available for testing and is HBsAg-positive, unvaccinated nPEP patients should receive both hepatitis B vaccine and hepatitis B immune globulin during the initial evaluation. Follow-up vaccine doses should be administered during 1–2 months and at 4–6 months after the first nPEP dose. Previously vaccinated sexually assaulted persons who did not receive postvaccination testing should receive a single vaccine booster dose.

HPV vaccination is recommended for female survivors aged 9–26 years and male survivors aged 9–21 years. For MSM with who have not received HPV vaccine or who have been incompletely vaccinated, vaccine can be administered through age 26 years. The vaccine should be administered to sexual assault survivors at the time of the initial examination, and follow-up dose administered at 1–2 months and 6 months after the first dose.[174]

Routine use of STI prophylaxis is not recommended for sexually abused or assaulted children.[174]

VII-E. Considerations for All Patients Treated with Antiretroviral nPEP

The patient prescribed nPEP should be counseled regarding potential associated side effects and adverse events specific to the regimen prescribed. Any side effects or adverse events requiring immediate medical attention should be emphasized.

VII-E1. Provision of nPEP Starter Packs or a 28-day Supply at Initiation

Patients might be under considerable emotional stress when seeking care after a potential HIV exposure and might not be attentive to, or remember, all the information presented to them before making a decision regarding nPEP. Health care providers should consider giving an initial prescription for 3–7 days of medication (i.e., a starter pack) or an entire 28-day course and scheduling an early follow-up visit. Provision of the entire 28-day nPEP medication supply at the initial visit rather than a starter pack of 3–7 days has been reported to increase likelihood of adherence, especially when patients find returning for multiple follow-up visits difficult.[96,184] Routinely providing starter packs or the entire 28-day course requires that health care providers stock nPEP drugs in their practice setting or have an established agreement with a pharmacy to stock, package and urgently dispense nPEP drugs with required administration instructions. At the patient's second visit, health care providers can discuss the results of baseline HIV blood testing (if rapid tests were not used), provide additional counseling and support, assess medication side effects and adherence, or provide an altered nPEP medication regimen if indicated by side effects or laboratory test results. nPEP starter packs or 28-day supplies might also include such medications as antiemetics to alleviate recognized side effects of the specific medications prescribed, if they occur. Health care providers should counsel patients regarding which side effects might occur (Table 6), how to manage them, and when to contact the provider if they do not resolve.[173]

VII-E2. Expert Consultation

When health care providers are inexperienced with prescribing or managing patients on antiretroviral medications or when information from persons who were the exposure source indicates the possibility of antiretroviral resistance, consultation with infectious disease or other HIV-care specialists, if available immediately, is warranted before prescribing nPEP to determine the correct regimen. Similarly, consulting with specialists with experience using antiretroviral drugs is advisable when considering prescribing nPEP for certain persons—pregnant women (infectious disease specialist or obstetrician), children (pediatrician), or persons with renal dysfunction (infectious disease specialist or nephrologist). However, if such consultation is not available immediately, nPEP should be initiated promptly and, if necessary, revised after consultation is obtained. Expert consultation can be obtained by calling the PEPline at the National Clinician's Consultation Center at 888-448-4911 (additional information is available at http://nccc.ucsf.edu/clinician-consultation/pep-post-exposure-prophylaxis/).

VII-E3. Facilitating Adherence

Observational studies have reported that adherence to nPEP regimens is often inadequate and has been especially so among sexual assault survivors. Medication adherence can be facilitated by (1) prescribing medications with fewer side effects, fewer doses per day, and fewer pills per dose; (2) educating the patient regarding potential side effects of the specific medications prescribed and providing medications to assist if side effects occur (e.g., antiemetics); (3) recommending medication adherence aids (e.g., pill boxes); (4) helping patients incorporate doses into their daily schedules; and (5) providing a flexible and proactive means for patient–health care provider contact during the nPEP period.[185,186] Also, establishing a trusting relationship and maintaining good communication about adherence can help to improve completion of the nPEP course. Adherence to the nPEP medications prescribed to children will depend on the involvement of and support provided to parents and guardians.

VII-E4. HIV Prevention Counseling

The majority of persons who seek care after a possible HIV exposure do so because of failure to initiate or maintain effective risk-reduction behaviors. Notable exceptions are sexual assault survivors and persons with community-acquired needlestick injuries.

Although nPEP can reduce the risk for HIV infection, it is not always effective. Therefore, patients should practice protective behaviors with sex partners (e.g., consistent condom use) or drug-use partners (e.g., avoidance of shared injection equipment) throughout the nPEP course to avoid transmission to others if they become infected and after nPEP to avoid future HIV exposures.

At follow-up visits, when indicated, health care providers should assess their patients' needs for behavioral intervention, education, and services. This assessment should include frank, nonjudgmental questions about sexual behaviors, alcohol use, and illicit drug use. Health care providers should help patients identify ongoing risk concerns and develop plans for improving their use of protective behaviors.[187]

To help patients obtain indicated interventions and services, health care providers should be aware of local resources for high-quality HIV education and ongoing behavioral risk reduction, counseling and support, inpatient and outpatient alcohol and drug-treatment services, family and mental health counseling services, and support programs for HIV-infected persons. Information regarding publicly funded HIV prevention programs can be obtained from state or local health departments.

VII-E5. Providing PrEP After nPEP Course Completion

Persons who engage in behaviors that result in frequent, recurrent exposures that would require sequential or near-continuous courses of nPEP should be offered PrEP[11] at the conclusion of their 28-day nPEP medication course. Because no evidence exists that prophylactic antiretroviral use delays seroconversion and nPEP is highly effective when taken as prescribed, a gap is unnecessary between ending nPEP and beginning PrEP. Upon documenting HIV-negative status, preferably by using an Ag/Ab test, daily use of the fixed dose combination of TDF (300mg) and FTC (200 mg) can begin immediately for patients for whom PrEP is indicated. Clinicians with questions about prescribing PrEP, are encouraged to call the PrEPline 855-448-7737 at the National Clinician Consultation Center or go to their website (http://nccc.ucsf.edu/clinician-consultation/prep-pre-exposure-prophylaxis/).

VII.E6. Providing nPEP in the Context of PrEP

Patients fully adhering to a daily PrEP regimen as recommended by their health care practitioner are not in need of nPEP if they experience a potential HIV exposure while on PrEP. PrEP is highly effective when taken daily or near daily.[11,188] For patients who report that they take their PrEP medication sporadically and those who did not take it within the week before the recent exposure, initiating a 28-day course of nPEP might be indicated. In that instance, all nPEP baseline and follow-up laboratory evaluations should be conducted. After the 28-day nPEP regimen is completed, if confirmed to be HIV uninfected, the daily PrEP regimen can be reinitiated.

VII-E7. Management of Source Persons with HIV Infection

When persons who were the exposure source are present during the course of evaluating a patient for potential HIV exposure, health care providers should also assess that person's access to relevant medical care, behavioral intervention, and social support services. If needed care cannot be provided directly, health care providers should help HIV-infected source persons obtain care in the community (http://locator.aids.gov/).

VII-F. Additional Considerations

VII-F1. Reporting and Confidentiality

As with all clinical care, health care providers should handle nPEP evaluations with confidentiality. Confidential reporting of STIs and newly diagnosed HIV infections to health departments should occur as indicated by that jurisdiction's local laws and regulations.

For cases of sexual assault, health care providers should document their findings and assist patients with notifying local authorities.[174] How health care providers should document and report their findings is beyond the scope of these guidelines. Laws in all 50 states strictly limit the evidentiary use of a survivor's previous sexual history, including evidence of previously acquired STIs, to avoid efforts to undermine the credibility of the survivor's testimony. Evidentiary privilege against revealing any aspect of the survivor's examination or medical treatment also is enforced in the majority of most states.

Certain states and localities have special programs that provide reimbursement for medical therapy, including antiretroviral medication after sexual assault, and those areas might have specific reporting requirements. In all states, sexually assaulted persons are eligible for reimbursement of medical expenses through the U.S. Department of Justice Victim's Compensation Program in cases where the sexual assault is reported to the police (http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ovc/map.html).When the sexual abuse of a child is suspected or documented, the clinician should report it in compliance with that jurisdiction's laws and regulations.

VII-F2. Special Populations

VII-F2a. Sexually Assaulted Persons

Eighteen percent of a national sample of adult women in the United States reported having ever been raped, and approximately 1 in 10 women (9.4%) has been raped by an intimate partner during her lifetime.[189] Sexual assault also occurs among men. Approximately 1 in 71 men (1.4%) in the United States has been raped at some time in his life.[189] In 1 series from an ED, 5% of reported rapes involved men sexually assaulted by men.[190]

Sexual assault typically has multiple characteristics that increase the risk for HIV transmission if the assailant is infected. In 1 prospective study of 1,076 sexually assaulted person, 20% had been attacked by multiple assailants, 39% had been assaulted by strangers, 17% had had anal penetration, and 83% of females had been penetrated vaginally. Genital trauma was documented among 53% of those assaulted, and sperm or semen was detected in 48%.[191] Often, in both stranger and intimate-partner rape, condoms are not used[192,193] and STIs are frequently contracted.[194-197] In the largest study[198] examining prevalence of HIV infection among sexual assailants, 1% of men convicted of sexual assault in Rhode Island were HIV infected when they entered prison, compared with 3% of all prisoners and 0.3% of the general male population.

Persons provided nPEP after sexual assault or child sexual abuse should be examined and co-managed by professionals specifically trained in assessing and counseling patients and families during these circumstances (e.g., Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner [SANE] program staff). Local SANE programs can be located at http://www.sane-sart.com/. Patients who have been sexually assaulted will benefit from supportive services to improve adherence to nPEP if it is prescribed, and from crisis, advocacy, and counseling services provided by sexual assault crisis centers.

VII-F2b. Pregnant Women and Women with Childbearing Potential

Information is being collected regarding safe use of antiretroviral drugs for pregnant and breastfeeding women who do not have HIV infection, particularly those whose male partners have HIV infection and who use antiretrovirals as PrEP.[114] Because considerable experience has been gained in recent years in the safe and recommended use of antiretroviral medications during pregnancy and breastfeeding among women with HIV infection—either for the benefit of the HIV-infected woman's health or to prevent transmission to newborns—and because of the lack of similar experience in HIV-uninfected pregnant women, nPEP drug recommendations (Table 5) rely on those used for HIV-infected women during pregnancy and breastfeeding.

Health care providers should be aware that certain medications are contraindicated for use as nPEP among potentially or actually pregnant women as follows (Table 7):

- Efavirenz (EFV) is classified as FDA pregnancy Category D because of its potential teratogenicity when used during the first 5–6 weeks of pregnancy.[199] It should be avoided in nPEP regimens for HIV-uninfected women during the first trimester and should not be used for women of childbearing age who might become pregnant during an antiretroviral prophylaxis course. For all women with childbearing potential, pregnancy testing must be done before the EFV initiation, and women should be counseled regarding potential risks to the fetus and the importance of avoiding pregnancy while on an EFV-containing regimen.[114]
- Prolonged use of stavudine (d4T) in combination with didanosine (DDI) for HIV-infected pregnant women has been associated with maternal and fetal morbidity attributed to lactic acidosis; therefore, this combination is not recommended for use in an nPEP regimen during pregnancy.[123,124]
- Because using indinavir (IDV) is associated with increased risk for nephrolithiasis among pregnant women and its use without co-administration of a ritonavir as a boosting agent can result in substantially decreased plasma levels of IDV (the active agent) among pregnant women, IDV should not be used as nPEP for pregnant women.
- Severe hepatotoxicity has been observed among patients administered nevirapine (NVP)-containing nPEP regimens (regardless of pregnancy status); therefore, NVP is contraindicated for nPEP, including for pregnant women.[83]

Table 7. Antiretroviral medications that should not be used for nPEP among pregnant women

Antiretroviral	Risk in pregnancy	Concern
Efavirenz	Teratogenicity	Fetal safety
Nevirapine	Hepatotoxicity	Maternal safety
Stavudine and didanosine	Mitochondrial toxicity and lactic acidosis	Maternal safety
Indinavir (without co-administration with ritonavir) during second or third trimester	Substantially decreased plasma concentration; risk for nephrolithiasis	Efficacy and maternal safety
Abbreviation: nPEP, nonoccupational postexposure prophylaxis.

If nPEP is prescribed to a woman who is pregnant at the time of exposure or becomes pregnant while on nPEP, health care providers should enter the patient's information (anonymously) into the Antiretroviral Pregnancy Registry (http://www.apregistry.com).

VII-F2c. Incarcerated Persons

Approximately 2 million persons are incarcerated in jails and prisons and can be at risk for HIV infection acquisition during incarceration. Studies have indicated that the risk for becoming infected while incarcerated is probably less than the risk outside a facility[200-202]; nevertheless, correctional facilities should develop protocols for nPEP to help reduce the legal, emotional and medical problems associated with an exposure event for this vulnerable population. As foundation for nPEP provision when it is indicated, correctional facilities should provide HIV education, voluntary HIV testing, systems to assist in identifying potential HIV exposures without repercussion for inmates, and provision of nPEP evaluation and medication. Sexual assaults in particular can put inmates at risk for HIV acquisition and inmates may engage in behaviors that put them at risk for HIV acquisition both prior to being incarcerated and upon reentry into the community. A 15-minute interactive educational program designed to educate inmates about nPEP resulted in a 40% increase in knowledge compared to baseline regardless of inmate-related demographics or HIV-risk characteristics.[203]

The federal Bureau of Prisons has published a clinical practice guideline that integrates guidance for nonoccupational and occupational HIV-related exposures.[204] Those guidelines specific to nPEP represent an adaptation of the 2005 CDC nPEP guidelines and outline HIV postexposure management recommendations for the different exposure types. The federal Bureau of Prisons nPEP recommendations can be modified for use in correctional facilities of varying sizes and resources. The Bureau of Prisons guidelines provide practical materials for both correctional health care providers and inmates and include worksheets to assist health care providers in systematically documenting HIV exposures and nPEP therapy management, and sample patient consent forms. They recommend that each correctional facility develop its own postexposure management protocol. The CDC recommends that health care providers should make every effort to use of current CDC guidelines related to selection of nPEP antiretrovirals.

VII-F2d. PWID

A history of injection drug use should not deter health care providers from prescribing nPEP if the exposure provides an opportunity to reduce the immediate risk for acquisition of HIV infection. A survey of health care providers who treat PWID determined a high degree of willingness to provide nPEP after different types of potential HIV exposure.[202]

When evaluating whether exposures are isolated, episodic, or ongoing, health care providers should assess whether persons who continue to engage in injecting or sexual HIV risk behaviors are practicing risk reduction (e.g., not sharing syringes, using a new sterile syringe for each injection, and using condoms with every partner or client). For certain persons, a high-risk exposure might be an exceptional occurrence and merit nPEP despite their ongoing general risk behavior. For other persons, the risk exposures might be frequent enough to merit consideration of PrEP either instead of nPEP or after a 28-day nPEP course.

PWID should be assessed for their interest in substance abuse treatment and their knowledge and use of safe injecting and sexual practices. Patients desiring substance abuse treatment should be referred for such treatment. Persons who continue to inject or who are at risk for relapse to injection drug use should be instructed regarding use of a new sterile syringe for each injection and the importance of avoiding sharing injection equipment. In areas where programs are available, health care providers should refer such patients to sources of sterile injection equipment. When sexual practices can result in ongoing risk for HIV acquisition, referral for sexual risk-reduction interventions is recommended.

None of the preferred or alternative antiretroviral drugs recommended for nPEP in Table 5 have substantial interactions with methadone or buprenorphine. However, other antiretrovirals might decrease or increase methadone levels; therefore, health care providers electing to use antiretrovirals not specifically recommended for nPEP should check for interactions before prescribing to persons on opiate substitution therapy. For example, RTV-boosted DRV can decrease methadone levels marginally (within acceptable clinical range), and careful monitoring for signs and symptoms of withdrawal is advised.[205]

VII-F3. Special Legal and Regulatory Concerns

VII-F3a. HIV Testing of Exposure Source Patients

When approaching persons who were the exposure source for patients being considered for nPEP, health care providers should be aware of potential legal concerns related to requesting them to undergo HIV testing. During 2011, a total of 33 states had ≥ 1 HIV-specific criminal exposure laws.[206] These laws focus explicitly on persons living with HIV. HIV-specific criminal laws criminalize or impose additional penalties on certain behaviors (e.g., sexual activity or needle-sharing without disclosure of HIV-positive status) and sex offenses. In jurisdictions where consent to HIV testing might invoke legal repercussions (see http://www.cdc.gov/hiv/policies/law/states/), the exposure source person should be made aware of possible legal jeopardies. Health care providers can opt instead to make nPEP treatment decisions without HIV testing of the source.

VII-F3b. Adolescents and Clinical Preventive Care

Health care providers should be aware of local laws and regulations that govern which clinical services adolescent minors can access with or without prior parental consent. In certain jurisdictions, minors of particular ages can access contraceptive services, STI diagnosis and treatment, or HIV testing without parental or guardian consent. In fewer settings, minors can access clinical preventive care (e.g. vaccines, nPEP, or PrEP).[207] To provide and coordinate care when a minor presents for possible nPEP, health care providers should understand their local regulations and institutional policies guiding provision of clinical preventive care to adolescent minors.

VII-F4. Potential Sources of Financial Assistance for nPEP Medication

Antiretroviral medications are expensive, and certain patients are unable to cover the out-of-pocket costs. When public, privately purchased, or employer-based insurance coverage is unavailable, health care providers can assist patients with obtaining antiretroviral medications through the medication assistance programs of the pharmaceutical companies that manufacture the prescribed medications. Applications are available online that can be faxed to the company or certain companies can be called on an established phone line. Requests for assistance often can be handled urgently so that accessing medication is not delayed. Information for specific medications and manufacturers is available at http://www.pparx.org/en/prescription_assistance_programs/list_of_participating_programs.

Additionally, persons being prescribed nPEP after sexual assault can be reimbursed for medications and clinical care costs through state Crime Victim's Compensation Programs funded by the U.S. Department of Justice. Contact information for each state is available at http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ovc/map.html or http://www.nacvcb.org/index.asp?bid=16.

VIII. Conclusion

Accumulated data from human clinical and observational studies, supported by data from animal studies, indicate that using antiretroviral medication initiated as soon as possible ≤72 hours after sexual, injection drug use, or other substantial nonoccupational HIV exposure and continued for 28 days might reduce the likelihood of HIV acquisition. Because of these findings, DHHS recommends prompt initiation of nPEP with a combination of antiretroviral medications when persons seek care ≤72 hours after exposure, the source is known to be HIV infected, and the exposure event presents a substantial risk for HIV acquisition by an exposed, uninfected person. When the HIV status of the source is unknown and the patient seeks care ≤72 hours after exposure, DHHS does not recommend for or against nPEP, but encourages health care providers and patients to weigh the risks and benefits on a case-by-case basis. When the HIV acquisition risk is negligible or when patients seek care > 72 hours after a substantial exposure, nPEP is not recommended. A 3-drug nPEP regimen is recommended for all persons for whom nPEP is indicated. Providing a 28-day nPEP supply or a 3–7 day nPEP starter pack at initiation of nPEP might improve adherence. Providing medications to ameliorate specific side effects for the antiretrovirals prescribed might improve adherence to the nPEP regimen. Figure 2 includes a summary of key nPEP considerations.

Initial nPEP Evaluation

- Obtain history of potential exposure event
  - HIV and HBV status of exposed person and source person, if available
  - Timing of most recent potential exposure
  - Type of exposure event and risk for HIV acquisition
  - Make determination if nPEP is indicated
- If nPEP is indicated
  - Conduct laboratory testing
    - HIV blood test (rapid combined Ag/Ab test, if available)
    - STIs, HBV, HCV, pregnancy, and chemistries, as indicated
  - Prescribe 28-day nPEP course
    - Educate patient about potential regimen-specific side effects and adverse events
    - Counsel patient about medication adherence
    - Provide patient with nPEP prescription or full 28-day nPEP course or nPEP starter pack and prescription
  - When necessary, assist patients with obtaining nPEP medication through a medication assistance program for the prescribed regimen
- For all persons evaluated
  - Prescribe prophylaxis for STIs and HBV infection, if indicated
  - Provide counseling related to HIV prevention strategies, as appropriate
  - Document sexual assault findings and fulfill local reporting requirements
  - Conduct confidential reporting of newly diagnosed STIs and HIV infection to health department
  - Link HIV-infected persons to relevant medical and psychosocial support services

Follow-up evaluations for persons prescribed nPEP

- Conduct HIV and any other indicated laboratory testing
- Consider changing nPEP regimen if indicated by side effects or results of initial testing
- Provide additional counseling and support for medication adherence and HIV prevention, if indicated

Abbreviations: Ag/Ab, antigen/antibody combination test; HBV, hepatitis B virus; HCV, hepatitis C virus; HIV, human immunodeficiency virus; nPEP, nonoccupational postexposure prophylaxis; STI, sexually transmitted infection.

VIII-A. Plans for Updating These Guidelines

These guidelines are intended to assist U.S. health care providers in reducing the occurrence of new HIV infections through the effective delivery of nPEP to the patients most likely to benefit. As new medications and new information regarding nPEP become available, these guidelines will be revised and published.

Summary of Methods for nPEP Guidelines Development and Roles of Teams and Consultants

Topic	Comment
The guidelines' goal	Provide guidance for medical practitioners regarding nPEP use for persons in the United States.
nPEP Working Group	The nPEP Working Group is composed of 13 members from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) with expertise in nPEP or other subject areas pertinent to the guidelines (e.g., cost-effectiveness, sexual assault, or nPEP adherence), including certain members who were involved in the writing of the previous version(s) of the CDC nPEP guidelines.
nPEP Writing Group	The nPEP Writing Group is composed of 12 members from CDC with expertise in nPEP or other subject areas pertinent to the guidelines (e.g., cost-effectiveness, sexual assault, or nPEP adherence, etc.), including 1 member who was involved in the writing of the previous version of CDC's nPEP guidelines.
nPEP external consultants	External consultants were selected from government, academia, and the health care community by CDC to participate in 2 consultations by telephone conference call regarding nPEP on the basis of the member's area of subject matter expertise. Each consultation was chaired by 1 of the CDC nPEP co-chairs. The list of the external consultants is available in Appendix 2B.
Competing interests and management of conflicts of interest	All internal CDC staff and external consultants involved in developing the guidelines or who served in the external consultations submitted a written financial disclosure statement reporting any potential conflicts of interest related to questions discussed during the consultations or concerns involved in developing of the nPEP guidelines. A list of these disclosures and their last update is available in Appendix 2C. The nPEP co-chairs reviewed each reported association for potential competing interest and determined the appropriate action, as follows: disqualification from the panel, disqualification/recusal from topic review and discussion; or no disqualification needed. A competing interest is defined as any direct financial interest related to a product addressed in the section of the guideline to which a panel member contributes content. Financial interests include direct receipt by the panel member of payments, gratuities, consultancies, honoraria, employment, grants, support for travel or accommodation, or gifts from an entity having a commercial interest in that product. Financial interest also includes direct compensation for membership on an advisory board, data safety monitoring board, or speakers bureau. Compensation and support that filters through a panel member's university or institution (e.g., grants or research funding) is not considered a competing interest.

OMB Peer Review and OMB Public Engagement	As recommended by the Office of Management and Budget for scientific documents fitting the classification of Influential Scientific Information, during Oct. 2014–December 2015, the draft nPEP guidelines underwent peer review by independent scientific and technical experts. They were asked to review the scientific and technical evidence that provides the basis for the nPEP guidelines and to provide input on the draft guidelines before they were finalized. Peer reviewers were asked whether any recommendations are based on studies that were inappropriate as supporting evidence or were misinterpreted, whether there are significant oversights, omissions, or inconsistencies that are critical for the intended audience of clinicians, and whether the recommendations for the intended audience of health care providers are justified and appropriate. In addition, the recommendations from the draft nPEP guidelines were presented to the public through 2 public engagement webinars on November 14 and 17, 2014. Based on the responses from both peer review and public engagement, updates were made to the nPEP guidelines prior to their publication. CDC's responses to the comments were also posted on the CDC/ATSDR Peer Review Agenda website at http://www.cdc.gov/od/science/quality/support/peer-review.htm and the CDC Division of HIV/AIDS Prevention Program Planning Scientific Information Quality—Peer Review Agenda website at http://www.cdc.gov/hiv/policies/planning.html.

Studies Reviewed for the nPEP Guidelines

MSM Studies

Authors, year: Donnell et al, 2010[14]

Type of study: Randomized behavioral intervention trial to assess perceptions and nPEP use over a 4-year period

Location: 6 U.S. cities

Sample size: n=4,295 MSM

Risk: HIV uninfected men who reported unprotected anal sex in the past year

Intervention: Behavioral intervention vs. standard risk-reduction counseling (accompanying nPEP drug regimen not reported)

Drug regimen: Not reported

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported

Completion of nPEP: Not reported

HIV seroconversions: 3

Conclusion: Increased odds of nPEP use was observed in participants with multiple partners and participants who had unprotected anal sex with HIV infected and unknown status partners. The availability of nPEP did not lead to an increase in high-risk sex.

Authors, year: Foster et al, 2015[19]

Type of study: Open-label, single-arm nonrandomized trial at 2 public sexual health clinics and 2 hospital EDs during December 23, 2012–June 12, 2014.

Location: Melbourne, and Sydney, Australia

Sample size: n=100 MSM

Risk: Sexual 65% failed to use a condom after anal intercourse; 29% used a condom but it tore or slipped off; 6% source partner removed condom

Intervention: 3-drug single tablet once daily dose regimen

Drug regimen: RPV + FTC + TDF

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours; presentation for nPEP initiation at a mean=30 hours; nPEP initiated at a mean of 2 hours after presentation

Completion of nPEP: 92%

HIV seroconversions: 0 seroconversions occurred through week 12 after initiation of nPEP. Adherence was 98.6% by pill count and 98.5% by self–report; 88% tested had plasma TDF levels suggesting full adherence. 88% experienced ≥1 clinical adverse events. Adverse events included mainly fatigue (34%) and nausea (23%); one participant developed acute abdominal pain and vomiting and grade 4 laboratory evidence of acute pancreatitis ≤1 week of completing nPEP.

Conclusion: A triple ARV regimen of RPV, FTC, and TDF administered once daily as a single combination tablet was well tolerated as nPEP with high levels of adherence and regimen completion.

Authors, year: Jain et al, 2015[18]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review in a large community health center during July1997–August 2013

Location: Boston, Massachusetts

Sample size: n=788 MSM; median age=32.9 years; 21.2% presented for nPEP 2 or more times (range, 1–15 times)

Risk: Consensual unprotected sex most common n=726 (62.2%); n=425 (58.5%) receptive anal; n=277 (38.2%) insertive anal; n=157 (21.6%) receptive oral intercourse; n=351 (31.1%) condom failure or removal; (35.6%) HIV-positive partner

Intervention: nPEP (number of drugs not reported in this study, however, previous studies from this site have reported 2 or 3 drugs)

Drug regimen: Not reported

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported but assume 72 hours based on previously published studies from this site

Completion of nPEP: Not reported

HIV seroconversions: 39 seroconversions occurred at >90 days after initially presenting for nPEP; 4 occurred at <180 days: 91, 133, 160, 168 days; 3 of 4 reported completing 28-day regimen; adherence or ongoing sexual risk behavior not reported; 35 (89.7%) seroconversions occurred at ≥180 days after nPEP initiation; seroconversion associated with younger age and/or being African American or Latino; almost 90% of post-nPEP infections were probably due to subsequent risk-taking and not a failure of the initial nPEP regimen

Conclusion: Younger age, being Latino and/or being African American, but not repeated nPEP use, were associated with incident HIV infection. Younger MSM of color who are nPEP users may benefit from early HIV risk reduction and PrEP.

Authors, year: McAllister et al, 2014[17]

Type of study: Nonrandomized, open-label, prospective cohort study at two urban hospital centers

Location: Sydney, Australia

Sample size: n=125 MSM enrolled; n=91 prescribed 3-drug regimen; n=34 prescribed 2-drug regimen; mean age 32–34 years

Risk: Sexual

Intervention: 2-drug or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: TDF + FTC or RAL+ TDF + FTC; Mean Adherence to each arm: TDF + FTC (90%); RAL-FTC-TDF (89%); 8 patients reported myalgia on the 3-drug regimen vs. none on the 2-drug regimen; Grade 4 creatinine kinase elevations occurred in 5 subjects on the 3-drug regimen vs. none on the 2-drug regimen. All Grade 4 creatinine kinase elevations resolved to ≤grade 2 after desisting from exercise and increasing oral fluids intake

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported

Completion of nPEP: 86/91 (95%) participants prescribed a 3-drug regimen met criteria to stay on nPEP; 79/86 (92%) completed 28-day 3-drug regimen; 31/34 (91%) participants prescribed 2-drug regimen completed 28-day 2-drug regimen; overall 110/120 (91.7%) who met criteria to stay on nPEP completed 28-day regimen; overall 110/125 (88%) who were prescribed nPEP, completed the 28-day regimen

HIV seroconversions: 0

Conclusion: Although the 3-drug and 2-drug arms had similar percentages of patients completing their 28-day regimens, 9% of the 3-drug arm experienced grade 4 creatinine kinase elevations which subsequently resolved with increased fluid intake and desisting exercise. If a RAL-TDF-FTC regimen is used, a preferred nPEP regimen, authors recommend (1) asking patients about concomitant medications associated with rhabdomyolysis (i.e. statins); (2) patient education about possible association between RAL-containing nPEP, exercise, and rhabdomyolysis and the need to report myalgia; (3) laboratory monitoring of serum creatinine kinase at baseline; if myalgia or weakness develops, conduct additional during treatment and clinical examination for proximal muscle weakness. Completion rates were higher for this study compared to those in other studies, including similar nPEP regimens. This may have been due to a high level of support provided by the study team including an experienced nPEP nurse, 24-hour contact with the nurse consultant, text reminders of appointments, proactive recall after missed appointments and frequent adherence education.

Authors, year: Schechter et al, 2004[16]

Type of study:

Location: Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

Sample size: n=200 participants; median age, 28 years; n=68 received nPEP

Risk: Sexual exposure (gay or bisexual)

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤48 hours

Completion of nPEP: 11 (1 among nPEP users, 10 among patients not using nPEP)

HIV seroconversions:

Conclusion: nPEP was safely tolerated and did not appear to be associated with either increases in reported high-risk behavior or HIV transmission; such findings may limit its impact as a public health intervention

Authors, year: Sonder et al, 2010[15]

Type of study: Observational study comparing 2 nPEP regimens

Location: Amsterdam

Sample size: n=309 MSM

Risk: Sexual exposure

Intervention: One 4-drug regimen and one 3-drug regimen; 2- or 3-pill burden

Drug regimen: Single-dose NVP + ZDV+ 3TC+ NFV or ZDV + 3TC + ATV

Time from exposure to nPEP: Seroconverters presented between 5–36 hours post exposure

Completion of nPEP: 237/261 (91%)

HIV seroconversions: 5 (likely due to ongoing risk behavior)

Conclusion: Common side effects were fatigue, nausea, and diarrhea (worse in regimen 1). There was no significant difference in completion rates of the two regimens. Strategies are needed to prevent subsequent HIV exposures in nPEP-treated individuals

Authors, year: Terzi et al, 2007[13]

Type of study: Case report

Location: Italy

3260

Sample size: n=1 MSM
Risk: Receptive anal intercourse with HIV + male
Intervention: 3-drug regimen; 2-pill burden
Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC (Combivir) + IDV
Time from exposure to nPEP: 30 hours
Completion of nPEP: Complete adherence
HIV seroconversions:
Conclusion: Sexual exposures to HIV and HCV require prolonged follow-up due to the risk of late seroconversion.

Sexual Assault Studies—Adults, Adolescents, and Children (combined)

Authors, year: Chacko et al, 2012[20]
Type of study: Systematic review of nPEP adherence among victims of sexual assault
Location: U.S. and International
Sample size: n=24 studies of adults, adolescents, and children
Risk: Sexual assault
Intervention: Various 2- and 3-drug regimens
Drug regimen: Most regimens included ZDV
Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported
Completion of nPEP: 40%
HIV seroconversions: Not reported
Conclusion: Overall adherence was poor but was higher in developing countries compared to developed countries. Common side effects were: nausea and vomiting, diarrhea, and fatigue. More interventions are needed to improve adherence. Standard methods of conducting and reporting nPEP programs are needed.

Authors, year: Draughon and Sheridan, 2011[21]
Type of study: Systematic review spanning 10 years
Location: Sub-Saharan Africa (Kenya, Malawi, and South Africa)
Sample size: n=studies of adults, adolescents, and children
Risk: Sexual assault
Intervention: Not reported
Drug regimen: Not reported
Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported
Completion of nPEP: 0%–65% (most studies reported >35%)

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: Overall adherence was low, but was higher in locations where the full 28-day PEP regimen was given up front.

Authors, year: Draughon and Sheridan, 2012[22]

Type of study: Systematic review

Location: Low HIV prevalence countries

Sample size: n=34 studies of adults, adolescents, and children

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: nPEP (number of drugs not reported by reviewers)

Drug regimen: Not reported

Time from exposure to nPEP: 24–96 hours

Completion of nPEP: 0%–63%

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: There was wide variation in the provision, acceptance, and adherence to nPEP programs. Anywhere from 5%–100% of eligible patients received nPEP across studies. Further research is needed to understand the experience of sexual assault survivors with the health care system and nPEP following an attack

Authors, year: Loutfy et al, 2008[23]

Type of study: Prospective cohort study

Location: Ontario, Canada

Sample size: n=798 sexual assault survivors presented to sexual assault treatment centers and offered nPEP; females (n=775 [97.1%]), age 4–17 years (n=190 [23.8%]), age 18–80 years (n=608 [77.2%]); 347 accepted nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 3-drug regimen; 2-pill burden

Drug regimen: Combivir + Kaletra

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 111/347 (31.9%) completed nPEP including (11/46 [23.9%]) of participants at high risk completed therapy and (100/301 [33.2%]) of unknown risk participants completed therapy

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: The PEP program for sexual assault survivors in Ontario proved to be feasible and acceptable among participants. The most common side effects were fatigue, nausea, and diarrhea. Further research is needed to improve loss to follow-up and completion rates of nPEP.

Sexual Assault Studies—Adults and/or Adolescents

Authors, year: Carrieri et al, 2006[33]

Type of study: Retrospective survey of nPEP consultations

Location: Southeastern France

Sample size: n=94 persons, aged 18 years or older, presented to AIDS centers for nonoccupational HIV exposure (female n=88 [93.6%], male n=6 [6.4%]); nPEP prescribed to 86 persons

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2 and 3 drug regimens

Drug regimen: Not reported

Time from exposure to nPEP: 72% (n=77) ≤48 hours

Completion of nPEP: 25% (n=23) >3 months follow-up

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: Half of all participants were lost to follow-up after the first consultation. During the study period there were 600 additional sexual assaults that were reported to police but did not receive nPEP consultation. Prompt HIV medical assessment is needed for sexual assault survivors as well as strategies to improve nPEP adherence.

Authors, year: Griffith et al, 2010[31]

Type of study: Retrospective chart review in an urban county hospital from June 2007–June 2008

Location: Dallas, TX

Sample size: n=151 adolescent and adult women (151 prescribed nPEP, 62 received follow-up of which 58 self-reported taking nPEP); aged 13–17 years, n=43 (28%); 18–61 years, n=108 (72%)

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 3-drug regimen; 2-pill burden

Drug regimen: Kaletra + Truvada or Combivir

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 62/151 (41%) of women presented for a follow-up visit. 37 of the 62 (60%) took nPEP for ≥21 days or completed prescribed course of therapy

HIV seroconversions: 0 (36 of 58 women who reported taking nPEP at follow-up were HIV screened at week 12 or 24 of follow-up)

Conclusion: Full medication compliance and follow-up counseling remain challenges for sexual assault survivors and providers. A detailed nPEP protocol and continuity of care promotes quality patient management.

Authors, year: Krause et al, 2014[34]

Type of study: Retrospective cohort study of medical records from a level 1 trauma center participating in the Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE) Program

Location: Northeastern, United States

Sample size: n=179 cases of sexual assault among 171 unique female patients, aged ≥16 years (median: 26 years); nPEP offered to 138 patients for whom PEP was appropriate within the 72-hour window period; an additional 5 patients outside the 72-hour window period were offered PEP; 86% or 124/143 cases who were offered PEP, accepted PEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2-drug or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Either FTC/TDF and LPV/r) (n=85, 59.4%) or FTC/TDF alone (n=32, 22.4%)

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours (for most cases; 5 cases were given nPEP outside the 72-hour window)

Completion of nPEP: 34 of 124 (27.4%) cases who followed up with an infectious disease specialist completed nPEP

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: All 138 sexual assault case patients who were eligible for nPEP were offered nPEP. Only a minority of those who were documented to have followed up with an infectious disease specialist completed nPEP. There is a need for a better system for post-assault follow-up.

Authors, year: Linden et al, 2005[30]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of female sexual assault survivors presenting to an urban ED during 10/1/99–9/30/2002

Location: Boston, MA

Sample size: n=292 charts reviewed; n=181 in final sample size; mean age 29.1 years (range, 18–82); n=89 patients offered nPEP; n=85 patients accepted

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2-drug or 3-drug regimen; 1- or 2-pill burden

Drug regimen: Initiated in ED, ZDV + 3TC (Combivir) (n=78); Combivir + NFV (n=4); Initiated in referral clinic: 2-drugs (unspecified) (n=2); 3-drugs (unspecified) (n=1)

Time from exposure to nPEP: Median time from assault to presentation in ED (10.1 hours; range, 0–24 hours)

Completion of nPEP: Overall 18 of 85 (21%), including 15 of 82 (18%) of those initiated on nPEP in ED and 3 of 3 initiated on nPEP after being referred to another clinical care site

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions during follow-up period in 38 patients with at least 1 follow-up visit

Conclusion: A minority of sexual assault survivors were offered nPEP and few completed full nPEP course.

Authors, year: Olshen et al, 2006[32]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of adolescents presenting to urban pediatric EDs ≤72 hours of penetrating sexual assault in 2 academic medical centers during July 1, 2001 to June 30, 2003

Location: Boston, MA

Sample size: n=177 adolescents aged 12–22 years; n=145 adolescents with adequate documentation; n=129 eligible for nPEP; n=110 accepted nPEP; n=85 initiated nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2-drug or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: 3TC + ZDV (94%); 3TC +ZDV + NFV (3%); 3TC + ZDV + IDV (2%)

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 13/85 (15%) who initiated nPEP completed 28-day course; 37 returned for first follow-up visit

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 23 tested for HIV

Conclusion: Poor rates of nPEP completion among adolescent sexual assault survivors. May be due to uncertainties regarding exposure, high rates of psychiatric comorbidity, and low rates of return for follow-up care.

Sexual Assault Studies Including Children and/or Adolescents

Authors, year: Chesshyre et al, 2009[43]

Type of study: Retrospective review of medical records from January 2005–February 2007

Location: Blantyre, Malawi

Sample size: n=217 children and adolescents presented with history of sexual abuse; ages: n=62 (29%)<5 years; n=113 (52%) 5–10 years; n=42 (19%) 11–16 years; n=92 children were eligible for and received nPEP; n=153 children were not offered nPEP because they presented >72 hours or had chronic history of abuse

Risk: Child sexual abuse

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: Not reported

HIV seroconversions: No HIV seroconversions in any of the 92 children initiated on nPEP; 7/153 (5%) children who were not offered nPEP tested HIV+

Conclusion: The initiation of an nPEP program for child victims of sexual abuse led to increased numbers of such children presenting for nPEP services and is likely to have resulted in decreased HIV acquisition in this population.

Authors, year: Collings et al, 2008[42]

Type of study: Prospective observational cohort of 200 consecutive cases of child rape referred for assessment to a state hospital, Oct–Dec 2004

Location: KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa

Sample size: n=200 children and adolescents presenting with history of child rape; mean age 10.6 years (range, 1–17 years); 120 children eligible and offered nPEP; n=64 children not eligible due to presentation >72 hours; n=113 followed by hospital; n=7 referred to another nPEP provider

Risk: Child sexual abuse

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 40/113 (35.5%) followed by hospital completed 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 13/40 children returning for 3-month follow-up and 4/40 children returning at 6-month follow-up.

Conclusion: Poor nPEP adherence and return for follow-up existed; further research is needed to identify reasons for such nonadherence and identify interventions to improve adherence.

Authors, year: Du Mont et al, 2008[44]

Type of study: Retrospective analysis of data on female adolescent sexual assault survivors from the HIV PEP Project, an implementation and evaluation of a program of universal offering of nPEP to sexual assault victims of all ages in 18 hospital-based sexual treatment centers

Location: Ontario, Canada

Sample size: n=386 sexually assaulted female adolescents; mean age 16.7 years (range, 12–19 years); n=325 eligible for nPEP; 307 offered nPEP; n=131 accepted nPEP; the most common reason for declining nPEP was lack of concern about acquiring HIV; students, survivors with marked anxiety, and those encouraged by a health professional were more likely to accept PEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 3-drug regimen; 2-pill burden

Drug regimen: Combivir and Kaletra

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 34% (44/131) completed 28-day course nPEP; 47% (61/131) adhered to day 14; the most common side effects were nausea, fatigue, vomiting, and diarrhea; survivors who were white and had known their assailant<24 hours were more likely to complete nPEP; most common reasons for stopping nPEP early: ARV side effects (73%), including most often nausea and fatigue

HIV seroconversions: Permission not obtained to provide results of HIV testing

Conclusion: Stronger health care provider recommendations needed for nPEP; need for training of health care providers to consistently offer and recommend nPEP to all those meeting established risk criteria.

Authors, year: Ellis et al, 2005[37]

Type of study: Prospective study of children presenting to hospital with history of child sexual abuse during January, 1 2004 through December 31, 2004

Location: Blantyre, Malawi

Sample size: n=64 children presented with history of sexual assault; median age 83 months (range, 22–180 months); n=17 children eligible for, offered, and accepted nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: AZT+3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 11/17 (65%) accepting nPEP completed 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: Among nPEP users, no seroconversions among 11 who returned after 1 month, 7 who returned after 3 months, and 2 who returned at 6 months; 1 of 4 children who did not receive nPEP was screened for HIV and was HIV+

Conclusion: The study found nPEP to be safe, acceptable, and feasible. The authors recommend routine offering of nPEP to all eligible children.

Authors, year: Fajman et al, 2006[41]

Type of study: Retrospective study of medical records of children presenting with child sexual abuse to inner-city pediatric ED in 2002

Location: Atlanta, GA

Sample size: n=227 sexually assaulted children and adolescents with adequate data; age range, 9 months–18 years; n=87 presented ≤72 hours of assault; n=5 sexually assault adolescent survivors were prescribed nPEP; being assaulted by a stranger associated with receiving nPEP (PR=11.9, 95% CI=1.4, 100.2, P=0.02).

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 3-drug regimen; 2-pill burden

Drug regimen: Combivir (ZDV + 3TC) + nelfinavir

Time from exposure to nPEP: Within 72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 0 completed 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions reported among the 3 nPEP recipients who were tested, or among the 82 patients who presented within 72 hours but did not receive nPEP

Conclusion: nPEP for pediatric HIV exposures was underutilized in a hospital in a large urban center with high HIV prevalence and underscores the need for physician education about nPEP for children.

Authors, year: Girardet et al, 2009[35]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of children and adolescents presenting at a sexual abuse clinic during a 38-month period (January 2001–March 2004)

Location: Houston, Texas

Sample size: Of 4,234 cases of child or adolescent sexual assault, 1,750 (41%) were tested for HIV; n=879 aged<13 years, n=871 adolescents; n=303 were nPEP eligible; 16/303 (5%) were offered nPEP (aged 3–17 years); n=15 accepted nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2- or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC (14 cases); ZDV + 3TC +LPV/r (1 case of acute genital trauma)

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤96 hours

Completion of nPEP: Inconsistent reporting; none of the children completed follow-up; no reported significant side effects among the 9 patients reporting for at least 1 follow-up visit

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 9 children who returned for ≥1 follow-up visit

Conclusion: Only 5% of those children or adolescents who were eligible for nPEP were offered nPEP. Adherence was difficult to document based on limited adherence to follow-up visits. Need for research to better define nPEP efficacy in children and adolescents.

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of female adolescents presenting at an urban pediatric ED (January 1999 to December 2000)

Location: New York, New York

Sample size: n=25 adolescent females aged 12–19 years presenting with history of sexual assault; n=15 eligible for and offered nPEP; n=14 accepted nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 1- or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: 1 received ZDV in 1999; 13 received 3-drug regimen, ZDV + 3TC + 3rd drug (n=12); d4T + 3TC + 3rd drug (n=1); (3rd drug was NFV [n=9] or IDV [n=4])

Completion of nPEP: No patients completed 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: Not reported (efficacy not studied in this study)

Conclusion: There was a significant delay in ordering nPEP and administering nPEP in the emergency room. Highlights importance of expediting nPEP in that setting.

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of children presenting for evaluation of suspected sexual abuse who were provided nPEP during February 1999–March 2001.

Location: Kansas City, Missouri

Sample size: n=2,865 evaluated for suspected sexual abuse; n=34 children and adolescents received nPEP (aged 12 weeks to 18 years, mean age 13 years); nPEP use associated with stranger assault

Risk: Sexual abuse

Intervention: 1-, 2-, and 3-drug regimens

Authors, year: Speight et al, 2006[40]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of children presenting with suspected childhood rape to a sexual assault care center during July 2003–March 2004

Location: Thika, Kenya

Sample size: n=48 children aged<18 years (96.8% female) presenting with suspected rape; n=33 eligible for, offered, and accepted nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 15/33 (45%) completed 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 3 patients tested for HIV; 3 seroconversions among 15 who were not eligible for nPEP

Conclusion: Majority (86%) of children presented within the 72-hour window period. Providing post-rape care is feasible and acceptable but requires special training for counselors, and providers, including training related to pediatric dosing.

Pediatric and Adolescent Community-acquired Needlestick Injury (CA-NSI) Studies

Authors, year: de Waal et al, 2006[66]

Type of study: Case report of nPEP use among children involved in a mass needlestick injury (1999)

Location: Tygerberg, South Africa

Sample size: n=54 children involved in mass needlestick exposure from discarded needles on a soccer field; n=44 were administered nPEP

Risk: CA-NSI

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: ARV adherence declined from 64% at week 3 to 52% at week 4; 7 patients on nPEP experienced nausea at 3 weeks

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions to HIV, HBV, or HCV were noted in 44 children tested at 6 months

Conclusion: Follow-up of patients after mass exposure was difficult and adherence to nPEP was poor. Fewer follow-up visits are probably adequate in a non-mobile community (might consider eliminating the 3-month follow-up visit).

Authors, year: Papenburg et al, 2008[65]

Type of study: Combination of prospective and retrospective case series describing community acquired needle stick injuries in children at 2 pediatric tertiary care teaching hospitals (1988–2006 for one hospital and 1995–2000 at another hospital)

Location: Montreal, Canada

Sample size: n=274 pediatric patients with community acquired needlestick injuries; 73% of patients sought care on day of injury; n=210 injuries occurred during an era when nPEP was available; n=87 patients offered nPEP; n=82 patients accepted nPEP

Risk: CA-NSI; blood reported on needle or syringe in 36 injuries; n=71 reported an injury that bled

Intervention: 2-drug or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC (n=74); ZDV + 3TC + NFV (n=4); ZDV + 3TC + IDV (n=3); ZDV + 3TC + RTV (n=1)

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not specified

Completion of nPEP: 10/82 (12%) patients discontinued nPEP; unclear from report if remaining 72 completed the full 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: 0 HIV seroconversions occurred at 6 month follow-up visit among 189/274 (nPEP and non-nPEP) patients tested for HIV

Conclusion: There were no seroconversions for HIV, HBV, or HCV among the 274 pediatric, community-acquired needlestick injuries, adding evidence that suggests the risk of transmission of bloodborne viruses in these exposures is low.

Authors, year: Russell et al, 2002[67]

Type of study: Prospective study of children with community-acquired needlestick injuries (published 2002)

Location: Melbourne, Australia

Drug regimen: Not applicable

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not applicable

Completion of nPEP: Not applicable

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 36 children tested for HIV, HBC, HBC

Conclusion: No seroconversions to HIV, HBV, or HCV occurred among 50 cases of CA-NSI; HBV prophylaxis and vaccination was administered and no nPEP for HIV was administered.

Authors, year: Thomas et al, 2006[64]

Type of study: Case report of CA-NSIs sustained by 21 children on primary school playground, including an HIV-infected source patient

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC + NVP

Time from exposure to nPEP: Within 72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 10/20 (50%)

HIV seroconversions: None

Conclusion: Was logistically difficult to provide nPEP under such circumstances, however, it seemed to be effective.

Mixed Populations Studies

Authors, year: Babl et al, 2000[58]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of children and adolescents presenting with CA-NSI in to the pediatric emergency room of an urban hospital during June 1997–June 1998

Location: Boston, Massachusetts

Sample size: n=10 pediatric and adolescent patients offered nPEP; n=8 started on nPEP

Risk: Sexual assault (n=6); CA-NSI (n=4)

Intervention: 3-drug regimens

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC+ Indinavir (n=7); ZDV + 3TC+ NFV (n=1)

Time from exposure to nPEP:

Completion of nPEP: 2/8 (25%) completed 28-day course; financial concerns, side effects, additional psychiatric and substance abuse issues, degree of parental involvement influenced adherence to nPEP and follow-up

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 5 tested at 4 to 28 weeks.

Conclusion: HIV nPEP presented medical and management challenges and requires coordinated effort. Need for written protocol, coordinated approach, and national guidelines.

Authors, year: Beymer et al, 2014[61]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review of clients receiving PEP services at LGBT community-based clinic (May 2011–December 2012)

Location: Los Angeles

Sample size: n=649 nPEP clients (n=529 [81.5%] first PEP use, n=120 [18.5%] PEP use 1–5 times previous to current nPEP initiation); whites, Hispanics, and blacks made up 42.5%, 35.4%, and 8.8% of nPEP users, and 30.4%, 42.4%, and 16.7% of HIV-infected persons, respectively

Risk: Gay/homosexual 75.5%, bisexual 11.9%, heterosexual 10.6%, other 1.9%

Drug regimen: TDF/FTC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours; mean time from exposure to first PEP medication dose 38.5 hours (SD=19 h)

Completion of nPEP: 93% self-reported taking all 4 pills in the previous 4-day medication recall period at 2 weeks after nPEP initiation

HIV seroconversions: 7 seroconversions occurred during the 6-month study period after nPEP initiation (including the 5 months after completing nPEP; exact timing not described)

Conclusion: 18.5% repeat nPEP users may benefit from PrEP; racial/ethnic inequities found in nPEP use compared with corresponding HIV prevalence deserves attention.

Authors, year: Bogoch et al, 2014[59]

Type of study: Prospective longitudinal study of referrals to nPEP programs in 2 emergency rooms and 2 academic medical centers

Location: Boston, MA

Sample size: n=180 persons referred for nPEP; median age 28 years (interquartile range, 23–35 years); 65.6% women; n=98 (54.4%) attended first nPEP visit

Risk: Sexual (57.2%), 72% nonconsensual, 1% MSM; nonsexual (42.8%), 17.8% injecting-drug use, 40% accidental needlestick injuries, 42.2% accidental mucous membrane or non-needle percutaneous exposures

Intervention: 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: First line regimen: co-formulated TDF and FTC (Truvada) and LPV/r (Kaletra); RAL was substituted for LPV/r with drug interactions or side effects preventing adherence

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported

Completion of nPEP: 43/177 (46%) patients had documented completion of a 28-day course of nPEP; women were less likely to complete a 28-day course of nPEP

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: There were significant attrition rates between the emergency department and nPEP follow-up clinic. Older patients and persons without insurance were significantly less likely to attend initial clinic for nPEP care after presenting to the emergency department. Individuals with exposure to a known HIV-positive source individual were more likely to attend their initial clinic appointment. Women accounted for the majority of nonconsensual sexual exposures and were less likely to have documented completion of their 28-day nPEP regimen.

Authors, year: Chan et al, 2013[52]

Type of study: Retrospective cohort study with medical record review at large urban hospital emergency room, January 1, 2008–December 31, 2010

Location: Toronto, Canada

Sample size: n=241 patients

Risk: All were sexual exposures; MSM 76.8%, heterosexual 23.2%, non-consensual 5.0% of 236 with documentation about whether sex was consensual; HIV-positive source n=102

Intervention: 2-drug regimen (for lower risk exposures), 3-drug regimen (for higher risk exposures)

Drug regimen: Not specified

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours; among 205 with known timing of exposure: <24 hr, 70 (34.1%); 24–48 hr, 68 (33.2%); 48–72 hr, 28 (13.7%); >72 hr, 7 (3.4%); not documented, 32 (15.6%)

Completion of nPEP: Of 205 patients given nPEP, n=71 (34.6%) completed a 28-day course; n=20 (9.8%) stopped medications early due to patient preference, cost, low HIV risk, source patient tested HIV negative; n=114 (55.6%) unknown completion status; n=55 with adverse effects, diarrhea (n=20), nonspecific gastrointestinal upset (n=14), nausea (n=13)

HIV seroconversions: Two patients who initially tested HIV negative at baseline subsequently tested HIV-positive at 3-month and 6-month visits; data regarding ongoing sexual exposure was incomplete

Conclusion: While it was encouraging that 92.6% of patients presented within the 72-hour window period, only 34.6% were known to have completed the full 28-day course. It is unclear whether the 2 HIV seroconversions that occurred during the 3-month and 6-month follow-up visits were nPEP failures as sexual histories were incomplete during follow-up.

Authors, year: Diaz-Brito et al, 2012[53]

Type of study: Open label randomized multicenter clinical trial comparing 2 nPEP regimens in patients presenting to emergency rooms in 6 urban hospitals

Location: Barcelona, Spain

Sample size: n=255 patients presenting for nPEP evaluation randomized into ZDV/3TC + LPV/r twice daily arm (n=131) or ZDV/3TC + atazanavir (n=124)

Risk: n=200; nonoccupational n=170 (85%); sexual n=156 (78%); occupational n=30 (1%)

Intervention: 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: ZDV/3TC + LPV/r or ZDV/3TC + atazanavir

Time from exposure to nPEP: Median interval between exposure and presentation=18h (IQR 5–32); nonoccupational (median=20 hours); occupational (median=5 hours)

Completion of nPEP: 64% completed 28-day course in both arms; 92% of patients reported taking >90% of scheduled doses (without difference between arms); adverse events reported in 46% of patients (49% LPV/r arm and 43% atazanavir arm); gastrointestinal problems more common in LPV/r arm

HIV seroconversions: 0

Conclusion: Rate of completion was similar for both arms; almost 50% of patients of both arms suffered side effects. Strategies to improve adherence are needed.

Authors, year: Fletcher et al, 2013[63]

Location: Los Angeles, California

Sample size: n=35 patients; gay n=30; not gay=5; mean age=34.1 years (SD 7.4)

Risk: Not clearly defined; however, participants reported mean of 11.9 (SD 26.5) episodes of unprotected anal intercourse in past 6 months

Intervention: 2-drug regimen

Drug regimen: TDF + FTC (Truvada)

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 25/35 (71.4%) completed the 28-day course; 48.6% took all 28 doses; 14.3% took >90% of doses; at baseline, higher number of lifetime STDs and recent episodes of unprotected anal intercourse were associated with reductions in medication adherence

HIV seroconversions: 1 (participant reported nonadherence to nPEP and multiple subsequent sexual exposures)

Conclusion: There was a significant indirect association between sexual risk taking and nPEP adherence. Interventions to reduce sexual risk taking will reduce risk for HIV acquisition and may play a role in improving nPEP adherence.

Authors, year: Gulholm et al, 2013[54]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record review at urban hospital sexual health clinic (1/2008–12/2011)

Location: Sydney, Australia

Sample size: n=282 patients on 319 occasions presented for nPEP; n=262 (94.3%) male

Risk: n=260 (99.2%) participants had homosexual exposure; of 319 presentations, 203 (63.6%) receptive unprotected anal intercourse, 87 (27.4%) insertive anal intercourse, 12 (3.8%) receptive vaginal intercourse, 5 (1.6%) penile-vaginal sexual assault, 5 (1.6%) receptive fellatio, 5 (1.6%) needlestick injuries, 4 (1.3%) needle-sharing episodes

Intervention: 2-drug or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Mainly TDF/FTC-containing regimens; TDF + FTC (n=136 [42.6%]), TDF + FTC + d4T (n=149 [46.7%])

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours; <4 hours (16 [5.1%]), 4–12 hours (59 [19.0%]), 12–24 hours (82 [26.5%]), 24–48 hours (96 [31.0%]), 48–72 hours (57 [18.4%])

Completion of nPEP: 228/319 (71/%) completed nPEP; completion associated with reporting AEs and changing the nPEP regimen; adverse events associated with being prescribed a regimen other than TDF/FTC, younger age, earlier year of nPEP prescription, and changing the nPEP regimen

HIV seroconversions: 2 seroconversions more than 6 months after NPEP due to ongoing high-risk behavior

Conclusion: nPEP was appropriately targeted to highest risk patients. HIV seroconversions due to ongoing high-risk sexual behavior highlight importance of integrating counseling regarding safer sexual behaviors as an integral component of nPEP care.

Authors, year: Jain et al, 2015[60]

Type of study: Retrospective longitudinal study of electronic medical records of nPEP users (1999–2013)

Location: Boston, Massachusetts

Sample size: n=894 patients; n=1,244 nPEP courses; mean age at PEP enrollment=33.9 years

Risk: MSM=788; heterosexual=91; sexual assault=66; transgender=15; injection drug use=14; sexual exposure (non-assault)=1,152

Intervention: n=927 TDF-based treatment regimen; N=592 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Either an AZT/3TC or TDF/FTC backbone with or without a third drug.

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: 85.7% completion rate overall (463 of 540 with documented completion status); reasons for discontinuing: medication intolerance (48.1%) due to nausea (43.2%), diarrhea (13.5%), rash (13.5%), HIV negative partner (9.1%); increased completion rates associated with having HIV-infected partner or fewer drugs in regimen (2 vs.3)

HIV seroconversions: Not reported

Conclusion: nPEP use increased over time. nPEP users demonstrated recurrent high-risk behavior. A defined group of nPEP users may benefit from earlier, targeted HIV risk-reduction and PrEP counseling.

HIV seroconversions: In TDF arms, n=0 seroconversions; in AZT arms, n=3 (during or shortly after their course of nPEP); Note: Level of adherence in seroconverters not described.

Conclusion: Participants taking TDF-containing regimens for nPEP demonstrated greater adherence and tolerability, with milder side effects than those taking ZDV-containing regimens.

Authors, year: Mayer et al, 2012[57]

Type of study: Evaluation of a novel 3-drug nPEP regimen

Location: Boston, MA

Sample size: TDF-FTC-RAL arm (n=100); control arms: TDF/FTV arm, n=44; AZT/3TC +3rd drug arm, n=119; overall age range, 18–61 years; males (73.9%–100%—all arms); MSM/bisexual (70.5%–71.5% in TDF arms)

HIV seroconversions: 0

Conclusion: Tolerability to the 3-drug regimen, with integrase inhibitor, RAL, was high. The most common side effects were nausea and vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal discomfort, headache, and fatigue.

Authors, year: McDougal et al, 2014[62]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record abstraction of patients attending a publicly funded HIV clinic between 2000 and 2010

Location: Seattle, Washington

Sample size: 360 evaluated for nPEP; 324 prescribed nPEP; median age 30 years (range, 14 years–68 years)

Risk: Among patients evaluated for nPEP: sexual exposures (928%), MSM (59%), sexual assault (22%)

Intervention: 66% (n=214) 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen:

Time from exposure to nPEP: 334/260 (93%) initiated ≤72 hours, 177/360 (49%) within 24 hours

Completion of nPEP: 287/324 (89%) completed nPEP

HIV seroconversions: n=4; 2 tested positive at 2 and 5 months; 1 tested negative at baseline and 11 days and positive at 5 months; 1 tested positive at 12 months after nPEP initiation; adherence to nPEP and history of ongoing sexual exposures not described Conclusion: Must increase education and promotion of HIV prevention, including nPEP for populations who would benefit most. Established nPEP service sites may have added benefit of also serving as locations for HIV case-finding and PrEP referrals.

Authors, year: Olowookere et al, 2010[51]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record abstraction of clients presenting for HIV nPEP at an antiretroviral therapy clinic during January 2005–December 2006

Location: Ibadan, Nigeria

Sample size: n=48 clients received nPEP; mean age 27.9 years ± 12.3 years (n=6, <15 years); about 1/3 were children and adolescents

Risk: Nonoccupational exposures: sexual assault (50%); occupational exposures: needlesticks (25%), blood splash into mucous membranes (25%)

Intervention: 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Either ZDV + 3TC + 3rd drug or D4T + 3TC + 3rd drug; 3rd drug=EFV, IDV or LPV/r

Time from exposure to nPEP: Not reported

Completion of nPEP: 38/48 (79%) completed therapy

HIV seroconversions: No seroconversions among 40 clients at 6 months of follow-up

Conclusion: 24% of clients receiving nPEP could not complete therapy due to side effects.

Authors, year: Pierce et al, 2011[45]

Type of study: Data linkage study using an nPEP service database and an HIV surveillance registry

Location: Australia

Sample size: n=1,420 male nPEP recipients; age range, 14–78 years; median=34.5 years

Risk: Indirect data suggest most participants presenting for NPEP are MSM, but risk behaviors were not collected for these participants Intervention: Number of drugs in nPEP regimen not reported.

Drug regimen: Not reported

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: Not reported

HIV seroconversions: n=3 nPEP related failures; n=34 additional seroconversions >6 months after nPEP initiation and deemed related to ongoing risk behavior

Conclusion: Frequency of nPEP use was not associated with risk of HIV seroconversion. Note: Data on nPEP adherence and completion were not available, but may have provided an explanation for drug failure.

Authors, year: Rey et al, 2008[46]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record abstraction of all consultations for nPEP in three consultation centers January 2001–December 2002

Location: Southeastern France

Sample size: n=910 exposures; age range, 15–18 yr (5.9%), 19–35 yr (68.6%), 36–50 yr (21.4%), >50 yr (4.1%); men=60.4%; female=39.2%; transsexual=0.3%; n=800 given initial nPEP prescription; n=776 accepted nPEP; n=527 received remaining nPEP prescription to complete 28-day course

Risk: n=910 sexual exposures, including 108 sexual assaults, 220 homosexual contacts among men

Intervention: 2- or 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Not reported

Time from exposure to nPEP: nPEP given before and after the 72 hour window period

Completion of nPEP: 355/776 (44%) who accepted nPEP completed 28-day course

HIV seroconversions: 1 seroconversion occurred in a patient after completing nPEP but who presented >72 hours after a high-risk exposure (not considered an nPEP failure)

Conclusion: Follow-up rates were poor; strategies need to improve follow-up, including a tracking process and psychosocial support for youngest patients and survivors of sexual assault.

Authors, year: Shoptaw et al, 2008[55]

Type of study: Biobehavioral HIV prevention intervention

Location: Los Angeles

Sample size: n=100 enrollees

Risk: High-risk sexual or drug-related exposure; n=45 drug use, n=1 injection drug use, n=63 MSM, n=9 bisexual, n=9 heterosexual; mean age 31.8 years

Intervention: 2-drug regimen; 1-pill burden

Drug regimen: ZDV + 3TC

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤72 hours

Completion of nPEP: n=84 individuals received the full 28-day supply of study drug; 63/84 (75%) completed nPEP

HIV seroconversions: 0

Conclusion: nPEP provision for persons at high risk for HIV is feasible and safe at the community level. The most common adverse events were fatigue, nausea, headache, and gastrointestinal complaints.

Authors, year: Siika et al, 2009[47]

Type of study: Retrospective cohort study of electronic medical records of patients enrolled for HIV nonoccupational and occupational PEP during November 2001–December 2006 (Note: Only results for nPEP patients summarized in this table)

Location: Eldoret, Kenya

Sample size: n=355 nPEP exposures among children, adolescents, and adults; 100% accepted nPEP; n=296 advised to continue nPEP after testing HIV negative at baseline

Risk: Sexual assault (n=292 [82%]; female adult [n=189], female child [n=91], male child [n=15]); unprotected consensual sex, condom malfunction, human bites, exposure to body fluids of individuals suspected to be HIV infected, and barber cuts (n=63 [18%])

Intervention: 3-drug regimen; 2- or 3-pill burden

Drug regimen: D4T + 3TC + NVP; ZDV + 3TC + LPV/r (Note: Authors do not distinguish between ARVs used for nPEP or oPEP)

Time from exposure to nPEP: Median time=19 hours (range, 1–672 hours; 86% <72 hours)

Completion of nPEP: 104/296 (35%) completed nPEP. No statistically significant difference in reported side effects between NVP arm (21%) and LPR/r arm (14%) (P=0.44). No difference in completion rates for two arms (P=0.91). 1 death related to ARV-associated acute hepatitis associated with NVP arm.

HIV seroconversions: 1 HIV seroconversion at 6 weeks after nPEP initiation using RNA PCR test among 129 patients; seroconversion occurred in sexually assaulted child who presented ≤4 hours of assault and completed nPEP. HIV ELISA tests were negative in 87 patients; however, child who seroconverted did not undergo ELISA testing as well.

Conclusion: It is feasible to provide nPEP and oPEP in resource-constrained settings. Lack of HIV testing, delayed presentation, ARV discontinuation, and loss to follow-up are challenges in Western Kenya. Centralization of PEP services may improve coordination and supervision.

Authors, year: Tissot et al, 2010[48]

Type of study: Retrospective medical record abstraction of nPEP administrations during 1998–2007

Location: Lausanne, Switzerland

Sample size: n=1,233 consultations for potential HIV exposure; n=910 exposures among 867 persons included in final analysis; n=830 individuals requested nPEP at least once; n=710 initiated nPEP; 64% male, median age 30 years (range, 14–87 years)

Risk: 58%=heterosexual; 15%=homosexual; 6%=sexual assault; 20%=nonsexual (mainly CA-NSI or sharing of injection drug equipment)

Intervention: 3-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Mainly ZDV + 3TC + NFV (n=548, 77%) or ZDV + 3TC + LPV/r (n=108, 15%)

Time from exposure to nPEP: 60% sought care ≤24 hours after exposure and 82% sought care ≤48 hours

Completion of nPEP: 423/710 (60%) completed 28-day course; 396/620 (64%) for which data were available, reported side effects (mainly gastrointestinal disturbance and fatigue)

HIV seroconversions: 2 seroconversions occurred during follow-up, not attributable to nPEP failures

Conclusion: HIV testing in source persons avoided nPEP in 31% of exposures.

Authors, year: Tosini et al, 2010[49]

Type of study: Multi-site prospective study to evaluate the tolerability of nPEP with TDF/FTC +LPV/r

Location: France

Sample size: n=249 men and women; mean age 31.5 years; n=166 completed 28 days of PEP (tolerability good in 58%)

Risk: Nonoccupational exposures: sexual intercourse n=204 (82%), other n=5 (2%); occupational exposures (n=40)

Intervention: One 3-drug regimen; 2-pill burden

Drug regimen: TDF + FTC + LPV/r vs. historical controls taking ZDV containing regimens or TDF + ATV

Time from exposure to nPEP: ≤48 hours

Completion of nPEP: 166/188 (88%)

HIV seroconversions: No HIV seroconversions were recorded during the study

Conclusion: The TDF/FTC + LPV/r regimen proved easy to use, well-tolerated, and had less participants to discontinue medications secondary to adverse effects when compared with historical controls. The authors recommend this regimen as standard of care for HIV nPEP. Among those with ≥1 side effect, 78% diarrhea, 78% asthenia, 59% nausea and/or vomiting.

Authors, year: Wong et al, 2010[50]

Location: Alberta, Canada

Sample size: n=174 persons received nPEP (135 females, 39 males); median age 24 years (range 4–69 years)

Risk: Sexual assault (68%, n=118), percutaneous (21%, n=36), consensual sex (7%, n=12), mucosal (3%, n=5), other (0.6%, n=1), not documented (1%, n=2)

Intervention: Primarily 2 and 3-drug regimens, one 4-drug regimen

Drug regimen: Not explicitly reported; most regimens included ZDV

Time from exposure to nPEP: 86% of cases ≤48 hours

Completion of nPEP: 86/174 (49%)

HIV seroconversions: 0 of 143

Conclusion: The majority of nPEP cases were sexual assaults in young women. No seroconversions were observed, however, lack of follow-up and early discontinuation of medication were problematic. NPEP programs need to better address adherence and follow-up.

Blood Transfusion Study

Authors, year: Al-Hajjar et al, 2014[71]

Type of study: Case report of nPEP use following inadvertent HIV-infected blood transfusion

Location: Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

Sample size: One 12 year old girl with sickle cell disease

Risk: Child was inadvertently transfused with large volume of HIV-infected packed red blood cells

Intervention: 4-drug regimen

Drug regimen: TDF, FTC, DRV/r and RAL (DRV/r subsequently changed to LPV)

Time from exposure to nPEP: At 24 hours after transfusion

Completion of nPEP: Completed 13 weeks of ARV PEP

HIV seroconversions: Patient did not seroconvert (negative for HIV-1 DNA and plasma HIV-1 RNA by PCR through 8 months following exposure)

Conclusion: Authors report successful use of combination ART nPEP after a large volume transfusion of HIV-contaminated blood despite detection initially of HIV antibodies immediately after the transfusion. The fact that antibodies disappeared after nPEP initiation cautions against not starting or stopping nPEP in patients with detectable antibodies immediately after a contaminated blood transfusion.
