The goal of first generation ADCs is to deliver cytotoxic therapy specifically to neoplastic cells while sparing normal tissue. An ADC consists of three components: the antibody, the cytotoxic payload, and a linker to join the two. The antibody portion of the ADC achieves specific targeting by binding to an antigen that ideally has high expression on the surface of the tumor cells, and low expression in healthy tissues. Once the antibody binds to the target, the ADC enters the cell, and the payload is typically released killing the cell.

The payload, the drug-to-antibody ratio, or DAR, the linker, and conjugation site of the linker with the antibody all can influence the overall efficacy and tolerability of ADCs. There has been limited innovation in these ADC components since the development of first-generation ADC platforms. We believe optimizing an ADC requires developing payload(s) with optimal properties, varying DAR for a specific target, and optimizing the conjugation site, all of which can contribute to the overall drug-like properties. We believe that our proprietary platforms improve upon first-generation ADC approaches in these aspects and have the potential to advance the field and improve patient outcomes.

Our Technologies and Platforms

The development of ADCs is not a one-size-fits-all approach. In fact, a number of diverse factors impact the properties of an ADC, including payload, DAR, site of conjugation and homogeneity. For each target antigen, there may be an optimal combination of these factors. Our novel and highly differentiated platforms are designed to allow us to optimize these properties for a given target and develop ADCs that are designed to best address patient needs.

DolaLock Payload

We refer to the cytotoxic payload we use with our Dolaflexin and Dolasynthen platforms as our DolaLock payload. Our DolaLock payload is a proprietary auristatin cytotoxic drug and is a highly potent anti-tubulin agent selectively toxic to rapidly dividing cells. The DolaLock payload has been shown in in vitro and in vivo preclinical studies to control the bystander effect by locking the cytotoxic drug inside cells after allowing a short period of antigen-independent diffusion throughout the tumor. As the drug diffuses through neighboring cells, the DolaLock payload is metabolized to a form that is still highly potent but is designed to no longer be able to cross the cell membrane, thereby controlling the bystander effect for a potentially safer and more effective cancer therapy.

A common mechanism of resistance in cancer is the up-regulation of multi-drug resistance, or MDR, pumps, such as P-glycoproteins, or PgPs, which actively pump drugs out of cancer cells to help them survive. Once metabolized, our DolaLock payload is not a substrate for PgPs, thereby avoiding this resistance mechanism. Our DolaLock payload, with its controlled bystander effect, is designed to enable the creation of ADCs that have the potential of being highly potent, well-tolerated and specifically-targeted cancer therapies.

In addition, our proprietary auristatin payload has also been shown in preclinical studies to cause immunogenic cell death and to stimulate the immune system through dendritic cell activation. Because of this, we have observed synergy with immuno-oncology agents such as PD-1 inhibitors in preclinical models.

Dolaflexin Platform

The Dolaflexin platform was designed to increase the efficacy, safety and tolerability of ADCs. Dolaflexin utilizes our proprietary Fleximer polymer, a biodegradable, highly biocompatible, water-soluble polymer that is able to carry multiple payloads. Instead of direct conjugation to an antibody, payloads are attached through an optimized, cleavable linker to the Fleximer scaffold, which is then conjugated to the antibody through a non-cleavable linker. Our Fleximer polymer has demonstrated dramatically improved drug solubility, pharmacokinetics and immunogenicity, and an increased number of payloads carried by each ADC as compared to other ADC therapies.

As a result, we believe Dolaflexin has the potential to offer the following benefits relative to first generation ADCs:

- Proprietary DolaLock Payload: Dolaflexin is loaded with our proprietary auristatin cytotoxic drug, which is a highly potent anti-tubulin agent and that is selectively toxic to rapidly dividing cells and has a controlled bystander effect.

- Higher Drug-to-Antibody Ratio: Historically, ADCs have been limited to a DAR of 3-4. The Dolaflexin platform can deliver ADCs with DAR of approximately 10, which has enabled ADCs created using this platform to demonstrate greater preclinical efficacy while also maintaining pharmacokinetics and drug-like properties.

- Expanded Range of Addressable Tumor Targets: The higher DAR enabled by Dolaflexin results in a higher amount of cytotoxic drug released into the tumor cell for every ADC that is internalized. As a result, we believe that Dolaflexin ADCs may demonstrate efficacy against tumor targets with lower levels of antigen expression where traditional ADCs have not been effective.

We believe these advantageous characteristics of our Dolaflexin platform provide a substantial opportunity to develop clinically meaningful ADC therapies with potential to address a broader range of cancers than first generation ADC-based approaches.

Our lead clinical candidate, UpRi, is a Dolaflexin ADC that targets NaPi2b. We are currently evaluating UpRi in the UPLIFT and UPGRADE trials and expect to initiate the UP-NEXT trial in the second quarter of 2022.

Dolasynthen Platform

The Dolasynthen platform enables an iterative approach to designing customized ADCs for a given target while retaining the properties of Dolaflexin, including the use of our proprietary DolaLock payload for a controlled bystander effect. Dolasynthen ADCs consist of a proprietary synthetic scaffold carrying an exact number of DolaLock payloads for precise control of DAR. The Dolasynthen scaffold is then bioconjugated to the antibody in a site-specific manner. The Dolasynthen scaffold has been precisely designed to provide optimal water solubility, charge balance, linker stability and DAR which together offer an opportunity for our ADCs to have superior physicochemical and pharmacokinetic properties.

Illustrated by our preclinical data, we believe Dolasynthen ADCs have broad therapeutic potential as cancer therapies. Our preclinical data demonstrate the ability of the Dolasynthen platform to generate and identify the optimal ADC for a given target and antibody.

We believe that Dolasynthen offers the benefits of Dolaflexin, including the proprietary DolaLock payload, and has the potential to offer the following additional benefits relative to traditional ADCs:

- Precise Control of DAR: The optimal DAR may vary between different targets and antibodies. Dolasynthen uses a proprietary scaffold that allows for precise DARs between 2-24, enabling optimization of the DAR for specific antigens and antibodies.
- Site-Specific Bioconjugation: The site of scaffold bioconjugation to an antibody impacts the overall properties of that ADC. Dolasynthen enables site-specific bioconjugation allowing further ADC optimization.
- Homogenous ADC Development: The DAR and antibody bioconjugation is consistent throughout ADCs developed with the Dolasynthen platform allowing for consistent and precise drug delivery to targeted cancer cells.
- Increased Hydrophilicity: The precise optimization of the hydrophilic moiety on Dolasynthen ADCs allows for increased aqueous solubility and enhanced pharmacokinetic properties.

Our second clinical candidate, XMT-1592, is a Dolasynthen ADC targeting NaPi2b-expressing tumor cells. We are conducting a Phase 1 dose exploration trial of XMT-1592 in patients with ovarian cancer and non-small cell lung cancer, NSCLC, adenocarcinoma which we expect to complete in 2022. XMT-1660, our B7-H4-targeted Dolasynthen ADC is currently in investigational new drug, or IND, -enabling studies.

ImmunoLock Payload

We refer to the STING agonist that is used as the payload with our Immunosynthen platform as our ImmunoLock Payload. It was designed to have very low cell permeability in order to control delivery and localization of its innate immune-activating effect. STING is a well-studied innate immune pathway capable of inducing anti-tumor immune activity. Our preclinical data show that the anti-tumor activity of Immunosynthen ADCs carrying the ImmunoLock payload is driven by the targeted activation of the STING pathway in tumor-resident immune cells and in tumor cells, in a target dependent manner. STING pathway activation in both cell types within the tumor provides the potential for enhanced anti-tumor activity with a STING-agonist ADC compared to other innate immune approaches that activate only the immune cells and are not capable of activating the tumor cells.

Immunosynthen Platform

Immunosynthen is our novel immunostimulatory ADC platform designed to take ADCs beyond the delivery of traditional cytotoxic payloads and into targeted stimulation of the innate immune system. Through the tumor-targeted delivery of a novel STING agonist, ADCs created with our Immunosynthen platform have the potential to address the challenges of efficacy, delivery and tolerability posed by the intratumoral or intravenous injection of free (unconjugated) STING agonists. We have generated preclinical data across multiple, diverse targets by creating Immunosynthen ADCs based on a variety of antibodies directed to those targets and evaluating them in a range of tumor models. In each case we have demonstrated significant anti-tumor activity *in vivo (*including complete tumor regressions) after a single low, well-tolerated dose. Additional characterization has demonstrated increased cytokine expression and immune cell infiltration in the tumor microenvironment, as well as the induction of immunological memory. We have demonstrated tolerability and characterized the favorable pharmacokinetic profile of Immunosynthen ADCs in non-human primates, after multiple intravenous doses and at exposures significantly higher than those required for robust efficacy in mice.

Immunosynthen ADCs have been designed to overcome the limitations of free STING agonists and to offer a highly differentiated approach from other innate immune activators due to the following:

- Non-Cell Permeable STING Agonist ImmunoLock Payload: Our novel and proprietary payload has very low cell permeability, remaining in the cell to which it is delivered by the antibody, where it can exert its effect.

- Enhanced Pharmacokinetic Properties: The prolonged pharmacokinetics of ADCs and active transport into tumor cells and tumor-resident immune cells can overcome pharmacokinetic and permeability issues of the free agonists, resulting in more robust and sustained activation of the innate immune response in the tumor.

- Immunosynthen STING ADCs Provide Targeted Activation in Two Cell Types: Because STING, unlike other innate immune pathways, can be activated in tumor cells and tumor-resident immune cells, target-dependent delivery can result in innate immune activation of both cell types, providing potent and robust anti-tumor responses and the induction of immunological memory.

Together these features have the potential to improve therapeutic index by selectively activating the innate immune system in the tumor environment and minimizing activation in other tissues. We are building a pipeline of Immunosynthen ADC candidates applicable to a broad range of clinical indications. Our first Immunosynthen ADC development candidate, XMT-2056 targets a novel epitope of HER2 and we expect to initiate a Phase 1 clinical trial in mid-2022.

Our product candidates

We are leveraging our platforms to develop a robust pipeline of product candidates with the potential of becoming clinically meaningful cancer therapies. Our pipeline strategy focuses on targets that have been biologically validated (either through ADCs or other modalities), where the advantages of our platforms may lead to clinically superior therapeutic benefits, where we have the potential to achieve first-in-class status, or where fast-to-market opportunities are available. Our lead product candidate, UpRi, is currently being evaluated in the UPLIFT and UPGRADE trials and we expect to initiate the UP-NEXT trial in 2022. Our next product candidate, XMT-1592, is being evaluated in a dose exploration trial. We are also advancing XMT-1660, a B7-H4-targeted Dolasynthen ADC, and XMT-2056, our first Immunosynthen ADC targeting a novel epitope of HER2, both of which are currently in IND-enabling studies. In addition, our partners have multiple ADC product candidates leveraging our Dolaflexin technology in various stages of development.

Upifitamab rilsodotin (UpRi): our NaPi2b-targeted Dolaflexin ADC

UpRi, a first-in-class ADC targeting the sodium-dependent phosphate transport protein NaPi2b, utilizes the Dolaflexin platform to deliver about 10 DolaLock payload molecules per antibody. We believe the NaPi2b antigen is broadly expressed in ovarian cancer and other cancers with limited expression in normal tissue. NaPi2b is a member of the SLC34 family of sodium-dependent transporters and plays an important role in maintaining phosphate homeostasis. We initiated a Phase 1/2 clinical trial of UpRi in December 2017 with the primary objectives of determining the recommended phase 2 dose and characterizing the efficacy, safety and tolerability and the secondary objective of assessing the correlation of the NaPi2b biomarker expression and efficacy. The dose escalation portion of the trial established 43 mg/m2 up to a maximum of approximately 80 mg as the maximum tolerated dose. The expansion portion of the trial evaluated two doses, 36 mg/m2 and 43 mg/m2, up to a maximum of 80 mg.

There are currently no tests approved by the FDA to measure NaPi2b expression on tumor cells. Our initial clinical trials have not prospectively identified patients with NaPi2b-expressing tumors, but our development plan for UpRi includes the development of a proprietary immunohistochemistry assay to measure NaPi2b expression in tumors. Based on our retrospective evaluation of tumors collected in the dose escalation and expansion portions of our initial UpRi Phase 1 trial, we believe that high NaPi2b expression is present in approximately two-thirds of ovarian cancer patients. We intend to continue developing our assay in order to confirm the broad prevalence of NaPi2b expression in our target patient populations while correlating those expression levels with the efficacy observed in such patients. We are currently collaborating with a third party to create and obtain regulatory approval for our assay as a commercial companion or complementary diagnostic. We expect to use the assay to evaluate Tumor Proportion Score of greater than or equal to 75% (TPS75) to identify patients with high NaPi2b tumor expression and to help us enrich our data analyses based on biomarker expression.

Over the course of 2020, we presented early Phase 1 UpRi clinical data, including presentations at the American Society of Clinical Oncology and the European Society for Medical Oncology and at company presentations to investors. These data were from the dose escalation and expansion portions of our UpRi Phase 1 trial, and they demonstrated encouraging clinical activity in heavily-pretreated patients with a safety profile differentiated from those of first generation ADCs. In August 2020, the FDA granted Fast Track Designation for UpRi for the treatment of patients with platinum-resistant high-grade serous ovarian cancer who have received up to three prior lines of systemic therapy or patients who have received four prior lines of systemic therapy regardless of platinum status. In January 2021 and in September 2021, we provided interim clinical data updates from our expansion cohort. The interim data presented in September 2021 was based on approximately 100 ovarian patients for efficacy analysis and an overall group of approximately 200 patients for safety evaluation. All of the data from these patients were from our ongoing Phase 1/2 clinical trial. These data supported UpRi's clinically meaningful activity in heavily-pretreated ovarian cancer patients with an objective response rate, or ORR, of approximately 34%, including complete responses, in evaluable patients with high NaPi2b tumor expression. The data also showed that UpRi was generally well tolerated without the severe toxicities commonly seen with other ADCs such as neutropenia, ocular toxicities, or peripheral neuropathy. The most common grade 3 or higher adverse events reported in this heavily pretreated trial population included fatigue and transiently increased aspartate aminotransferase. Other adverse events of clinical interest included infrequent, generally low-grade pneumonitis that generally resolves with dose reduction, delay, discontinuation and treatment with steroids. Based on these safety and efficacy data and our population pharmacokinetics analyses of the overall group of approximately 200 patients administered UpRi as of the data cut off, we determined that the phase 2 recommended dose of UpRi is 36 mg/m2 up to a total dose of approximately 80mg. This is the dose that we are currently evaluating in UPLIFT. In November 2021, we announced that we had completed enrollment of a Phase 1/2 dose escalation cohort of NSCLC adenocarcinoma patients. Based on the data collected from that cohort, we deprioritized further monotherapy development in NSCLC, instead focusing on developing UpRi in ovarian cancer.

In April 2021, we initiated UPLIFT which is enrolling patients with platinum-resistant ovarian cancer and with one to four prior lines of therapy, without regard to NaPi2b expression; however, we are confirming the potentially predictive role of the biomarker retrospectively using a novel diagnostic assay to identify patients with high NaPi2b expression. Patients with three to four prior lines of therapy may enroll without prior bevacizumab treatment, accommodating differences in bevacizumab use in early disease. The primary endpoint is ORR in the high NaPi2b patient population and the secondary endpoints are ORR in the overall population, as well as duration of response and safety. UPLIFT is ongoing with sites in the United States, Europe and Australia, and we expect to complete enrollment of approximately 100 patients with NaPi2b high expression and up to 180 patients overall in the third quarter of 2022. If we achieve positive results from UPLIFT, we believe that the trial may enable us to submit a Biologics Licensing Application, or BLA, for UpRi for the treatment of patients with platinum-resistant ovarian cancer with one to four prior lines of therapy, under the FDA's accelerated approval pathway.

In July 2021, we also initiated UPGRADE and began the umbrella trial with an initial evaluation of UpRi combined with carboplatin, a standard platinum chemotherapy used to treat patients with platinum-sensitive ovarian cancer, followed by UpRi monotherapy. The dose escalation portion of UPGRADE is intended to determine the recommended Phase 2 dose of UpRi in combination with carboplatin, and the dose exploration portion of this trial is intended to provide proof of concept for the combination. We expect to report interim data from UPGRADE in the second half of 2022. We believe data from UPGRADE will inform further development of UpRi in combination with other therapies used in platinum-sensitive ovarian cancer.

We expect to initiate UP-NEXT in the second quarter of 2022. The design of UP-NEXT was informed by discussions with the FDA and the Committee for Medicinal Products for Human Use, or CHMP. UP-NEXT could serve as a post-approval confirmatory trial, supporting the expansion of UpRi into earlier lines of therapy. We expect UP-NEXT to enroll platinum-sensitive ovarian cancer patients who have achieved a response or stable disease after platinum therapy. Eligible patients with BRCA mutation must have received prior treatment with poly adenosine diphosphate ribose polymerase, or PARP, inhibitor therapy. Additionally, eligible patients must have high NaPi2b tumor expression. In recognition of the unmet medical need and the lack of a standard of care for these patients, the trial will be randomized against placebo.

XMT-1592: our NaPi2b targeted Dolasynthen ADC

XMT-1592 was created using our Dolasynthen platform and also targets tumors that express NaPi2b. XMT-1592 comprises the same proprietary NaPi2b antibody and potent auristatin DolaLock payload with controlled bystander effect as in UpRi, with the additional features that our Dolasynthen platform offers, including homogeneity, site-specific bioconjugation and precise DAR. Preclinically, XMT-1592 has shown a differentiated profile particularly in a NSCLC adenocarcinoma model, where data suggested it was four times more efficacious than UpRi, consistent with higher payload delivery to the tumor. Based on these preclinical data, we are exploring XMT-1592 as a potential opportunity in NSCLC adenocarcinoma. XMT-1592 is currently being evaluated in Phase 1 dose exploration trial in patients with ovarian cancer and NSCLC adenocarcinoma. We expect to complete dose exploration in the second half of 2022.

XMT-1660: our B7-H4-targeted Dolasynthen ADC candidate

XMT-1660 is our B7-H4-targeted ADC created with our Dolasynthen platform. We believe the expression profile of B7-H4, a cell surface antigen, is well suited for our unique DolaLock payload. B7-H4 can be expressed on tumor cells and on immunosuppressive tumor associated macrophages, or TAMs, which may lead to additional processing of the ADC and more payload in the tumor environment. We believe DolaLock's direct cytotoxic effect as well as its immunostimulatory effect through dendritic cell activation and immunogenic cell death are well suited to the biology of the B7-H4 target. We have generated favorable preclinical efficacy data and non-human primate tolerability data with Dolasynthen ADCs targeting B7-H4 with precise DARs of 2 and 6. We selected the DAR6 variant based on this preclinical data. We believe that targeting B7-H4 with XMT-1660 provides significant opportunities for development in areas of high unmet need such as breast cancer, endometrial and ovarian cancer. XMT-1660 is currently in IND-enabling studies, and we expect to initiate Phase 1 dose escalation for XMT-1660 in patients with solid tumors in mid-2022.

XMT-2056: our First Immunosynthen ADC candidate

XMT-2056 is our first Immunosynthen STING-agonist ADC. As described above, the therapeutic rationale of an Immunosynthen ADC is to selectively deliver the STING agonist to tumor cells and tumor-resident immune cells in a target-dependent manner, while avoiding delivery to healthy tissues. XMT-2056 is designed to offer a differentiated and complementary therapeutic approach to the treatment of HER2-expressing tumors. XMT-2056 targets a novel HER2 epitope that is distinct from the epitopes targeted by trastuzumab or pertuzumab, providing an opportunity for development as a monotherapy as well as in combination with well-established or investigational anti-HER2 agents. In preclinical studies, XMT-2056 was generally well-tolerated in non-human primate studies with no clinical signs and no adverse findings in clinical pathology or histopathology after single and repeat intravenous doses. XMT-2056 is currently in IND-enabling studies, and we expect to initiate Phase 1 dose escalation for XMT-2056 in patients with solid tumors in mid-2022.

Ovarian cancer unmet need and epidemiology

Worldwide, ovarian cancer had incidence of approximately 314,000 and caused an estimated 207,000 deaths in 2020. With a U.S. incidence of approximately 21,000 and mortality of 14,000 in 2021 according to the National Cancer Institute Surveillance, Epidemiology and End Results Program, ovarian cancer was the second most common gynecologic malignancy and the most common cause of gynecologic cancer death in the United States. Diagnosis is made histologically, and evaluation is commonly performed following surgical removal of an ovary or fallopian tube or biopsies of the peritoneum. The ovarian cancer standard of care is characterized by initial surgery followed by platinum-containing chemotherapy followed by periods of either observation or maintenance. Nearly 85% of ovarian cancer patients typically relapse following initial treatment. Subsequent treatment depends on the depth and duration of response to initial platinum treatment. Ovarian cancer patients who progress within six months of completion of platinum-based therapy are considered to have platinum-resistant disease. Unmet medical need is significant for patients with platinum-resistant ovarian cancer as treatment options are mainly limited to single agent chemotherapies such as pegylated liposomal doxorubicin, topotecan and paclitaxel. Multiple Phase 3 trials of single agent chemotherapies in patients with platinum-resistant disease and one to three prior therapies have exhibited an overall response rate of 4-12% and median progression-free survival of 3-4 months.

With targeted agents approved in platinum-resistant disease increasingly being prescribed in earlier lines of therapy, the unmet need is expected to remain severe. Bevacizumab in combination with chemotherapy is indicated to treat a subset of platinum-resistant ovarian cancer patients with no more than two prior therapies but it is not always well-tolerated and has shown no overall survival benefit. Use of bevacizumab in combination with platinum-containing chemotherapy in the frontline and platinum-sensitive recurrent settings mean an increasing number of platinum-resistant patients are pre-treated with bevacizumab and are not candidates for additional bevacizumab combination treatment. More recently, PARP inhibitors have been approved for heavily-pretreated ovarian cancer including platinum-resistant disease. However, they are predominantly used in a subset of patients with cancers harboring BRCA1 and BRCA2 mutations. Similarly, use of PARP inhibitors in earlier lines of recurrent platinum-sensitive maintenance and more recently frontline maintenance therapy following platinum-based chemotherapy means an increasing number of platinum-resistant patients are pre-treated with PARP inhibitors and are not candidates for additional PARP inhibitor therapy.

NSCLC unmet need and epidemiology

Worldwide, lung cancer had an incidence of approximately 2.2 million and caused an estimated 1.8 million deaths in 2020. With a U.S. incidence of approximately 236,000 new cases and over 130,000 deaths in 2021, lung cancer was the deadliest form of cancer in the United States. The five year survival rate is less than 20% on average. Approximately 95% of all lung cancers are classified as either small cell lung cancer or NSCLC. NSCLC can be further divided into squamous or non-squamous. The majority of non-squamous NSCLC is classified as adenocarcinoma. These histological distinctions are important for proper staging, treatment and prognosis. For patients with NSCLC, initial treatment is largely determined by the stage of disease. Surgical resection offers the best opportunity for long-term survival and cure in patients with resectable early-stage NSCLC. Locally-advanced NSCLC is treated by combinations of radiotherapy, immunotherapy, chemotherapy and surgery. The majority of patients present with inoperable disease. Metastatic NSCLC is managed with systemic chemotherapy and immunotherapy.

The standard of care is evolving for NSCLC with the introduction of immunotherapies for patients without oncogenic driver mutations and new targeted therapies for patients with EGFR, ALK, ROS-1, NTRK or BRAF mutations. For patients with metastatic disease without oncogenic driver mutations, frontline platinum-based chemotherapy is combined with or, depending on PD-L1 expression status, replaced by, immunotherapy using anti-PD-1 or anti-PD-L1 monoclonal antibodies. For patients with metastatic disease harboring oncogenic driver mutations, several generations of targeted agents are available with different resistance profiles. Frontline therapy is often followed by relapse and recurrence and treatment options for these patients are substantially more limited. The standard of care of docetaxel alone or in combination with targeted agents has an overall response rate of 14-23%, median progression-free survival of 3-4 months and median overall survival of 9-12 months.

With PD-1 and PD-L1 inhibitors and next generation targeted therapies moving into frontline, the unmet need in recurrent lung cancer is expected to remain severe.

Breast cancer unmet need and epidemiology

Worldwide, breast cancer was the most common cancer with an incidence of approximately 2.3 million and estimated 685,000 deaths in 2020. The U.S. incidence was approximately 282,000 new cases with over 43,600 deaths in 2021. While patients with localized disease typically have a relatively good prognosis, the 5-year survival of patients with distant metastasis is only 29%. There are four main female breast cancer subtypes, which are, in order of prevalence: Hormone Receptor positive (HR+)/ Human Epidermal Growth Factor Receptor 2 negative (HER2-) ("Luminal A"), HR-/HER2- ("Triple Negative"), HR+/HER2+ ("Luminal B"), and HR-/HER2+ ("HER2-enriched"). Treatment choice is driven by both subtype and stage of disease. Surgical resection offers the best opportunity for long-term survival and cure in patients with resectable early-stage disease. Some patients receive radiation therapy and/or systemic therapy post-surgery, with treatment choice driven by cancer subtype.

Systemic therapy is the mainstay of treatment for metastatic breast cancer. Once again, the treatment choice is determined by cancer subtype and by what treatments patients have received previously. The primary treatment option for patients who are HR+ is endocrine therapy, including aromatase inhibitors. Patients who are HER2+ are usually treated with HER2 targeting agents such as trastuzumab and pertuzumab, among others. Other targeted agents that are used in metastatic breast cancer include CDK4/6 inhibitors, mTOR inhibitors, PARP inhibitors, PIK3CA inhibitor, immunotherapy and ADCs. Patients can also receive chemotherapies, alone or in combination with other agents. In addition, a number of new therapeutic options are under clinical investigation. Despite the availability of these treatment options, outcomes in metastatic breast cancer continue to be poor, and new treatments that improve survival and quality of life are urgently needed.

Strategic partnerships

Strategic partnerships with leading biopharmaceutical companies to advance Dolasynthen and Dolaflexin ADC product candidates

We believe that our ADC platforms have broad applicability across a number of targets. In February 2022, we entered into a research collaboration and license agreement with Janssen Biotech, Inc., or Janssen, to collaborate on the discovery of Dolasynthen ADCs for up to three antigen targets utilizing Janssen's antibodies, with Janssen leading development, manufacturing and commercialization worldwide. We refer to this as the Janssen Collaboration. Our primary objective in entering into the Janssen Collaboration was to collaborate with a leading global pharmaceutical company to further validate the potential of our Dolasynthen platform, to enable novel ADC product candidates, to provide near-term funding and to drive significant long-term value. We have also used strategic partnering to accelerate bringing Dolaflexin ADCs to patients. In 2014, we entered into a collaboration with Merck KGaA for the development and commercialization of ADC product candidates utilizing Dolaflexin for up to six target antigens; we refer to this as the Merck KGaA Collaboration. In entering into the Merck KGaA Collaboration, our primary objectives were to collaborate with leading pharmaceutical company to further validate the potential of ADC product candidates utilizing Dolaflexin, as well as to provide near-term funding and to drive significant long-term value. Under these collaboration agreements, we own the rights to any improvements to our ADC platform(s). The details of our material existing strategic partnerships are as follows:

Janssen Collaboration

In February 2022, we entered into the Janssen Collaboration pursuant to which we granted Janssen an exclusive license to use our proprietary Dolasynthen platform and other technology to develop, manufacture and commercialize antibody-drug conjugates directed to up to three targets selected by Janssen. Our responsibilities are to perform bioconjugation activities to create ADCs for Janssen based on antibodies provided by Janssen. We will also perform certain chemistry, manufacturing and controls development and early stage manufacturing activities for ADCs that Janssen progresses through development, up to and including the manufacturing of clinical drug substance, at Janssen's cost. Except with respect to this limited manufacturing, Janssen will be responsible for the further development, manufacturing and commercialization of the ADCs developed under the Janssen Collaboration, including obtaining any necessary regulatory approvals, at Janssen's cost.

Under the terms of the Janssen Collaboration, we received an upfront payment of $40 million. Certain development and regulatory milestones will also be payable by Janssen for the research programs, including upon certain discovery milestones, initiation of certain clinical trials, and regulatory approval of certain licensed products in certain geographies, with an aggregate total of up to $501 million in the event ADCs directed to all three targets are advanced by Janssen. In the event the ADCs developed by Janssen are commercialized, we are eligible to receive certain commercial milestones for each program upon the achievement of specified aggregate sales thresholds based on all ADCs for an applicable target, with an aggregate total of up to approximately $530 million in the event ADCs directed to all three targets are commercialized by Janssen. In addition, we are eligible to receive tiered royalties at percentages ranging from the mid-single digits to the low-double digits on future net sales of ADCs.

The Janssen Collaboration will remain in effect, unless earlier terminated, until the expiration of the last-to-expire royalty term for the last ADC. Royalty term means on an ADC-by-ADC and country-by-country basis, the period commencing upon the first commercial sale of an ADC in such country and ending upon the latest to occur of: (a) the date of expiration of the last royalty-bearing patent claim with respect to such ADC in such country; (b) the expiration of regulatory exclusivity for such ADC in such country, if any; and (c) the tenth (10th) anniversary of the first commercial sale of such ADC in such country. Upon the expiration of the royalty term with respect to an ADC in a country, Janssen's license becomes a perpetual, irrevocable, non-exclusive, fully-paid and royalty-free right and license, with the right to grant sublicenses, under the relevant platform technology and our interest in any joint technology to develop, manufacture, commercialize and otherwise exploit such ADC in such country.

Merck KGaA Collaboration

In June 2014, we entered into the Merck KGaA Collaboration under which we formed a strategic partnership with Merck KGaA because of their expertise in oncology drug development. Under this agreement, we are responsible for generating ADC product candidates against Merck KGaA-selected target antigens. Merck KGaA received rights to select up to six target antigens, of which it has selected all six. Merck KGaA is responsible for generating antibodies against the target antigens, and we are responsible for generating Dolaflexin and conjugating this to such antibodies to create the ADC product candidates. With respect to each target antigen selected by Merck KGaA, we granted Merck KGaA an exclusive, worldwide license under certain of our Fleximer ADC-related patents and know-how to develop, manufacture and commercialize ADC product candidates directed to such target antigen. Merck KGaA is then responsible for the further development and commercialization of these ADC product candidates. In addition, if Merck KGaA advances candidates, we are responsible for manufacturing these ADC product candidates for good laboratory practices toxicology studies and Phase 1 clinical trials at Merck KGaA's expense and Merck KGaA is responsible for all further manufacture of these ADC product candidates. Merck KGaA is required to pay its own costs in the development, commercialization and manufacture of these ADC product candidates and to reimburse us for our costs incurred in performing our research activities under this agreement.

Through December 31, 2021, we have received an upfront payment of $12 million and milestone payments of $3 million under the Merck KGaA Collaboration. If products are successfully developed and commercialized against all six target antigens, we would be entitled to receive future development, regulatory and commercial milestones of up to $777 million. We are entitled to receive tiered royalties in the low- to mid-single digit percentages on net sales of products targeting Merck KGaA's target antigens during the applicable royalty term if products are successfully developed and commercialized by Merck KGaA under the Merck KGaA Collaboration.

Unless earlier terminated, the Merck KGaA Collaboration will expire upon the expiration of the last royalty term for a product under the agreement in all countries or, if Merck KGaA does not designate any ADC product candidates produced by us under the agreement as preclinical development candidates, upon the expiration of the last-to-expire research program. The royalty term means, on a product-by-product and country-by-country basis, the period commencing upon the first commercial sale of a product and ending upon the later to occur of: (i) the expiration of the last Mersana patent right that covers or claims the exploitation of such product in such country, or (ii) 10 years from the date of first commercial sale of such product in such country. Upon the expiration of each royalty term for each product on a country-by-country basis, Merck KGaA's exclusive license will convert to a perpetual, non-exclusive, royalty-free license with respect to such product in such country. Merck KGaA may terminate the Merck KGaA Collaboration in its entirety or with respect to any target antigen for convenience upon 60 days' prior written notice. Each party may terminate the Merck KGaA Collaboration in its entirety upon an uncured material breach of the agreement by the other party.

Asana Biosciences collaboration agreement

In March 2012, we entered to a collaboration agreement with Asana Biosciences, or Asana (by assignment from Endo Pharmaceuticals Inc.). Pursuant to the terms of this agreement, we used Asana's novel antibodies to develop novel ADCs using our fleximer technology. Asana is responsible for product development, manufacturing and commercialization of any ADC products.

Strategic partnerships to access antibodies and develop new platforms to progress our proprietary pipeline

Our focus is to progress our proprietary pipeline of ADCs. For this reason, we have partnered with biotechnology companies that have the capability to generate high quality antibodies or that have existing antibodies that we can license for inclusion in our ADCs. We have also entered into license agreements with biotechnology companies that own certain patent rights and related know-how that enable us to develop new ADC platforms. These strategic partnerships have facilitated the acceleration of our proprietary pipeline.

Recepta license for the NaPi2b antibody

In July 2015, we entered into a license agreement with Recepta Biopharma S.A., or Recepta, a Brazilian biopharmaceutical company, licensing Recepta's NaPi2b antibody for use in UpRi and XMT-1592 and granting Recepta the exclusive right to commercialize UpRi and XMT-1592 in Brazil, which was amended in September 2021. We refer to this as the Recepta License. Under the Recepta License, Recepta granted us an exclusive license and sub-license with respect to certain patents licensed by Recepta from Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research and technology owned by Recepta to develop and exploit products containing Recepta's NaPi2b antibody, including UpRi and XMT-1592, worldwide for the diagnosis, prophylaxis and treatment of human cancer. We granted Recepta an exclusive license under our rights in such patents and technology and certain of our ADC-related patents and technology to commercialize any such products developed by us, including UpRi and XMT-1592, in Brazil. We are responsible for using commercially reasonable efforts to develop and commercialize products under the Recepta License globally, with at least one trial site in our Phase 3 clinical trials, and at our own expense in certain major markets. Recepta may conduct development activities in Brazil at its own expense after providing us the opportunity to first conduct such activities at Recepta's expense. If a product is successfully developed and commercialized by Recepta in Brazil, we will use diligent efforts to enter into an agreement for the supply of such products to Recepta for sale in Brazil.

Under the Recepta License, we paid Recepta an upfront payment of $1 million during the year ended December 31, 2015 and are obligated to pay Recepta up to $65.5 million in development, regulatory and commercial milestones and tiered royalties in the low-single digit percentages on net sales of products outside of Brazil until the expiration of the royalty term if products are successfully developed and commercialized. Through December 31, 2021, we have incurred $4.0 million and paid $2.8 million in development milestone payments. We are entitled to receive tiered royalties in the low- to mid-single digit percentages on net sales of products in Brazil until the expiration of the royalty term if products are successfully developed and commercialized. The royalty term means, on a product-by-product and country-by-country basis, the period ending upon the later of (i) with respect to products commercialized by Mersana, the expiration of the last-to-expire Recepta patent that covers the product in such country (including the term of any applicable supplementary protection certificate) or with respect to products commercialized by Recepta, the expiration of the last-to-expire Mersana patent that covers the product in Brazil (including the term of any applicable supplementary protection certificate) or (ii) 10 years from the date of first commercial sale of such product in such country. Upon the expiration of each royalty term in each country for each applicable product, the exclusive licenses granted to each party under the agreement will become fully-paid up and royalty-free. The Recepta License will remain in effect until otherwise terminated as set forth below. We may terminate the Recepta License for convenience in its entirety or on a country-by-country basis (except with respect to Brazil) or product-by-product basis upon 180 days' prior written notice for a termination in its entirety or upon 45 days' prior written notice for a termination in part. Each party may terminate the Recepta License in its entirety upon bankruptcy or similar proceedings of the other party, upon a patent challenge by the other party or upon an uncured material breach of the agreement by the other party. However, if such breach only relates to one country, the Recepta License may only be terminated with respect to such country.

Synaffix commercial license agreement

In January 2019, we entered into a commercial license agreement with Synaffix B.V., or Synaffix, which we amended and restated in November 2021 to expand our relationship with Synaffix. We refer to the amended and restated agreement as the Synaffix License. Under the Synaffix License, we have the right to develop, manufacture and commercialize ADCs directed to targets using Synaffix's proprietary site-specific conjugation technology for up to twelve targets. Through December 31, 2021, we have licensed two targets from Synaffix in connection with our development of XMT-1592 and XMT-1660, for which we have paid $1.5 million in license fees, and $0.8 million in milestone payments. We are required to make milestone payments to Synaffix of up to an aggregate of $28.0 million in development and regulatory milestones and up to $20.0 million in one-time sales milestones based on the achievement of annual sales objectives for each of these two targets. Additionally, we paid upfront fees of $2.5 million at the time of amending and restating the Synaffix License in November 2021, which may be applied to reservation and license fees associated with our selection of the next three targets. Upon licensing any future targets, we will be obligated to pay in the range of $48.0 million to $117.0 million for issuance, development, regulatory and one-time sales milestones. We further amended the Synaffix License in February 2022 in connection with the Janssen Collaboration and agreed to pay Synaffix an additional fee of $1.5 million which may be applied to future reservation and license fees, as well as certain portions of potential future development milestones.

Upon commencement of commercial sales of any ADC product directed to a licensed target, if any, we are required to pay to Synaffix tiered royalties in the low-single digit percentages on net sales of the respective products. The Synaffix License remains in effect on a country-by-country and licensed product-by-licensed product basis until the expiration of the last-to-expire valid claim in a patent licensed under the Synaffix License covering such product in such country. Upon the expiration of the Synaffix License for each licensed product in each country, the licenses granted to us for such product in such country will become fully paid-up and perpetual. We may terminate the Synaffix License in its entirety or on a licensed product-by-licensed product basis at any time. Either party may terminate the Synaffix License, subject to a specified notice and cure period, for a breach by the other party of a material provision of the agreement or upon an insolvency-related event experienced by the other party.

Manufacturing

We do not own or operate and currently have no plans to establish any current good manufacturing practices, or cGMP, compliant manufacturing facilities. We currently rely, and expect to continue to rely, on external Contract Manufacturing Organizations, or CMOs, for the manufacture of product to support our activities through regulatory approval and commercial manufacturing. We have personnel with pharmaceutical development and manufacturing experience who are responsible for the relationships with our CMOs. In the future, we expect to use these CMOs to manufacture commercial supply of our products, which will require these CMOs to increase scale of production. We do not currently have qualified alternate suppliers in the event the current CMOs that we utilize are unable to scale production for commercial manufacturing. The Dolaflexin, Dolasynthen and Immunosynthen manufacturing processes involve readily available starting materials and use unit operations that are well-precedented in the field of chemical/pharmaceutical production. The current UpRi supply chain utilizes the same vendors that we could use for commercialization. The current XMT-1592 supply chain utilizes the same vendors that we could use for commercialization with the exception of components necessary for the Synaffix bioconjugation technology, where the identification of a commercially capable vendor is ongoing. The current supply chains for XMT-1660 and XMT-2056 have several vendors in common, and based on what we know today, we believe we could use these vendors for commercialization purposes.

Government regulation

The research, development, testing, manufacture, quality control, packaging, labeling, storage, record-keeping, distribution, import, export, promotion, advertising, marketing, sale, pricing and reimbursement of drug and biologic products are extensively regulated by governmental authorities in the United States and other countries. The processes for obtaining regulatory approvals in the United States and in foreign countries and jurisdictions, along with compliance with applicable statutes and regulations and other regulatory requirements, both pre-approval and post-approval, require the expenditure of substantial time and financial resources. The regulatory requirements applicable to biological product development, approval and marketing are subject to change, and regulations and administrative guidance often are revised or reinterpreted by the agencies in ways that may have a significant impact on our business.

U.S. government regulation of biological products

In the United States, the FDA licenses biological products, or biologics, under the Public Health Service Act, or the PHSA, and regulates such products under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, or FDCA. A company, institution, or organization which takes responsibility for the initiation and management of a clinical development program for such products, and for their regulatory approval, is typically referred to as a sponsor. A sponsor seeking approval to market and distribute a new biologic in the United States must satisfactorily complete each of the following steps:

- completion of preclinical laboratory tests, animal studies and formulation studies according to good laboratory practices, or GLP, regulations or other applicable regulations;
- design of a clinical protocol and submission to the FDA of an IND, which must become effective before human clinical trials may begin and must be updated when certain changes are made;
- approval by an independent institutional review board, or IRB, or ethics committee representing each clinical trial site before each clinical trial may be initiated;
- performance of adequate and well-controlled human clinical trials in accordance with applicable IND regulations, good clinical practices, or GCPs, and other clinical-trial related regulations to evaluate the safety and efficacy of the investigational product for each proposed indication;
- preparation and submission to the FDA of a BLA requesting marketing approval for one or more proposed indications, including payment of application user fees;
- review of the BLA by an FDA advisory committee, where applicable;
- satisfactory completion of one or more FDA inspections of the manufacturing facility or facilities at which the biologic is produced to assess compliance with cGMP requirements to assure that the facilities, methods and controls are adequate to preserve the product's identity, strength, quality and purity;
- satisfactory completion of any FDA audits of clinical trial sites to assure compliance with GCPs and the integrity of the clinical data submitted in support of the BLA; and
- FDA review and approval of the BLA, which may be subject to additional post- approval requirements, including the potential requirement to implement a Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy, or REMS, and any post- approval clinical trials required by the FDA.

Preclinical studies

Before a sponsor begins testing a product candidate with potential therapeutic value in humans, the product candidate enters the preclinical testing stage. Preclinical tests include laboratory evaluations of product chemistry, formulation and stability, as well as other studies to evaluate, among other things, the toxicity of the product candidate. The conduct of the preclinical tests and formulation of the compounds for testing must comply with federal regulations and requirements, including GLP regulations and standards and the United States Department of Agriculture's Animal Welfare Act, if applicable. The results of the preclinical tests, together with manufacturing information and analytical data, are submitted to the FDA as part of an IND.

Some long-term preclinical testing, such as animal tests of reproductive adverse events and carcinogenicity, and long-term toxicity studies, may continue after the IND is submitted.

The IND and IRB processes

An IND is an exemption from the FDCA that allows an unapproved product candidate to be shipped in interstate commerce for use in an investigational clinical trial and a request for FDA authorization to administer such investigational product to humans. An IND must be secured prior to interstate shipment and administration of any product candidate that is not the subject of an approved BLA. In support of a request for an IND, sponsors must submit a protocol for each clinical trial and any subsequent protocol amendments must be submitted to the FDA as part of the IND. An IND automatically becomes effective 30 days after receipt by the FDA, unless before that time the FDA raises concerns or questions related to one or more proposed clinical trials and places the trial on a clinical hold. In such a case, the IND sponsor and the FDA must resolve any outstanding concerns before the clinical trial may proceed. As a result, submission of an IND may not result in the FDA allowing clinical trials to commence.

Following commencement of a clinical trial under an IND, the FDA may also place a clinical hold or partial clinical hold on that trial. A clinical hold is an order issued by the FDA to the sponsor to delay a proposed clinical investigation or to suspend an ongoing investigation. A partial clinical hold is a delay or suspension of only part of the clinical work requested under the IND. For example, a partial clinical hold might state that a specific protocol or part of a protocol may not proceed, while other parts of a protocol or other protocols may do so. No more than 30 days after the imposition of a clinical hold or partial clinical hold, the FDA will provide the sponsor a written explanation of the basis for the hold. Following the issuance of a clinical hold or partial clinical hold, a clinical investigation may only resume once the FDA has notified the sponsor that the investigation may proceed. The FDA will base that determination on information provided by the sponsor correcting the deficiencies previously cited or otherwise satisfying the FDA that the investigation can proceed or recommence. Occasionally, clinical holds are imposed due to manufacturing issues that may present safety issues for the clinical trial subjects.

A sponsor may choose, but is not required, to conduct a foreign clinical trial under an IND. When a foreign clinical trial is conducted under an IND, all IND requirements must be met unless waived by the FDA. When a foreign clinical trial is not conducted under an IND, the sponsor must ensure that the trial complies with certain regulatory requirements of the FDA in order to use the trial data as support for an IND or application for marketing approval. Specifically, the trials must be conducted in accordance with GCP, including undergoing review and receiving approval by an independent ethics committee, or IEC, and seeking and receiving informed consent from subjects. GCP requirements encompass both ethical and data integrity standards for clinical trials. The FDA's regulations are intended to help ensure the protection of human subjects enrolled in non-IND foreign clinical trials, as well as the quality and integrity of the resulting data.

In addition to the foregoing IND requirements, an IRB representing each institution participating in the clinical trial must review and approve the plan for any clinical trial before it commences at that institution, and the IRB must conduct continuing review and re-approve the trial at least annually. The IRB, which must operate in compliance with FDA regulations, must review and approve, among other things, the clinical trial protocol and informed consent information to be provided to trial subjects and must monitor the trial until completed. An IRB can suspend or terminate approval of a clinical trial at its institution, or an institution it represents, if the clinical trial is not being conducted in accordance with the IRB's requirements or if the product candidate has been associated with unexpected serious harm to patients.

Additionally, some trials are overseen by an independent group of qualified experts organized by the trial sponsor, known as a data safety monitoring board, or DSMB. This group provides authorization as to whether or not a trial may move forward at designated checkpoints based on review of available data from the trial, to which only the DSMB maintains access. Suspension or termination of development during any phase of a clinical trial can occur if the DSMB determines that the participants or patients are being exposed to an unacceptable health risk.

Expanded access

Expanded access, sometimes called "compassionate use," is the use of investigational new products outside of clinical trials to treat patients with serious or immediately life-threatening diseases or conditions when there are no comparable or satisfactory alternative treatment options. The rules and regulations related to expanded access are intended to improve access to investigational products for patients who may benefit from investigational therapies. FDA regulations allow access to investigational products under an IND by the company or the treating physician for treatment purposes on a case-by-case basis for: individual patients (single-patient IND applications for treatment in emergency settings and non-emergency settings); intermediate-size patient populations; and larger populations for use of the investigational product under a treatment protocol or Treatment IND Application.

When considering an IND application for expanded access to an investigational product with the purpose of treating a patient or a group of patients, the sponsor and treating physicians or investigators will determine suitability when all of the following criteria apply: patient(s) have a serious or immediately life-threatening disease or condition, and there is no comparable or satisfactory alternative therapy to diagnose, monitor, or treat the disease or condition; the potential patient benefit justifies the potential risks of the treatment and the potential risks are not unreasonable in the context or condition to be treated; and the expanded use of the investigational product for the requested treatment will not interfere with the initiation, conduct or completion of clinical investigations that could support marketing approval of the product or otherwise compromise the potential development of the product.

There is no obligation for a sponsor to make its investigational products available for expanded access; however, as required by amendments to the FDCA included in the 21st Century Cures Act, or the Cures Act, passed in 2016, if a sponsor has a policy regarding how it responds to expanded access requests with respect to product candidates in development to treat serious diseases or conditions, it must make that policy publicly available. Sponsors are required to make such policies publicly available upon the earlier of initiation of a Phase 2 or Phase 3 trial for a covered investigational product; or 15 days after the investigational product receives designation from the FDA as a breakthrough therapy, fast track product, or regenerative medicine advanced therapy.

In addition, on May 30, 2018, the Right to Try Act was signed into law. The law, among other things, provides a federal framework for certain patients to access certain investigational new products that have completed a Phase 1 clinical trial and that are undergoing investigation for FDA approval. Under certain circumstances, eligible patients can seek treatment without enrolling in clinical trials and without obtaining FDA permission under the FDA expanded access program. There is no obligation for a manufacturer to make its products available to eligible patients as a result of the Right to Try Act, but the manufacturer must develop an internal policy and respond to patient requests according to that policy.

Human clinical trials

Clinical trials involve the administration of the investigational product candidate to human subjects under the supervision of a qualified investigator in accordance with GCP requirements which include, among other things, the requirement that all research subjects provide their informed consent in writing before they participate in any clinical trial. Clinical trials are conducted under written clinical trial protocols detailing, among other things, the objectives of the trial, inclusion and exclusion criteria, the parameters to be used in monitoring safety and the effectiveness criteria to be evaluated. Each protocol, and any subsequent material amendment to the protocol, must be submitted to the FDA as part of the IND, and progress reports detailing the status of the clinical trials must be submitted to the FDA annually. The FDA has issued regulations authorizing a sponsor to transfer certain responsibilities for the conduct of a clinical trial to a contract research organization, or CRO.

Human clinical trials are typically conducted in three sequential phases, but the phases may overlap or be combined. Additional trials may also be required after approval.

Phase 1 clinical trials are initially conducted in a limited population, which may be healthy volunteers or subjects with the target disease, to test the product candidate for safety, including adverse effects, dose tolerance, absorption, metabolism, distribution, excretion and pharmacodynamics in healthy humans or in patients. During Phase 1 clinical trials, information about the product candidate's pharmacokinetics and pharmacological effects may be obtained to permit the design of well-controlled and scientifically valid Phase 2 clinical trials.

Phase 2 clinical trials are generally conducted in a limited patient population to identify possible adverse effects and safety risks, evaluate the efficacy of the product candidate for specific targeted indications and determine dose tolerance and optimal dosage. Multiple Phase 2 clinical trials may be conducted by the sponsor to obtain information prior to beginning larger and more costly Phase 3 clinical trials. Phase 2 clinical trials are typically well-controlled and closely monitored.

Phase 3 clinical trials proceed if the Phase 2 clinical trials demonstrate that a dose range of the product candidate is potentially effective and has an acceptable safety profile. Phase 3 clinical trials are undertaken using a larger patient population to further evaluate dosage, provide substantial evidence of clinical efficacy and further test for safety in an expanded and diverse patient population at multiple geographically dispersed clinical trial sites. A well-controlled, statistically robust Phase 3 clinical trial may be designed to deliver the data that regulatory authorities will use to decide whether or not to approve, and, if approved, how to appropriately label a new biologic product. Such Phase 3 clinical trials are referred to as "pivotal" trials.

A clinical trial may combine the elements of more than one phase and the FDA often requires more than one Phase 3 trial to support marketing approval of a product candidate. A company's designation of a clinical trial as being of a particular phase is not necessarily indicative that the trial will be sufficient to satisfy the FDA requirements of that phase because this determination cannot be made until the protocol and data have been submitted to and reviewed by the FDA. Moreover, as noted above, a pivotal trial is a clinical trial that is believed to satisfy FDA requirements for the evaluation of a product candidate's safety and efficacy such that it can be used, alone or with other pivotal or non-pivotal trials, to support regulatory approval. Generally, pivotal trials are Phase 3 trials, but they may be Phase 2 trials if the design provides a well-controlled and reliable assessment of clinical benefit, particularly in an area of unmet medical need.

In some cases, the FDA may approve a BLA for a product candidate but require the sponsor to conduct additional clinical trials to further assess the product candidate's safety and effectiveness after approval. Such post-approval trials, typically referred to as Phase 4 clinical trials, may be conducted after initial marketing approval. These trials are used to gain additional experience from the treatment of a larger number of patients in the intended treatment group. In certain instances, the FDA may mandate the performance of Phase 4 clinical trials, such as to verify clinical benefit in the case of products approved under accelerated approval regulations. Failure to exhibit due diligence with regard to conducting mandatory Phase 4 clinical trials could result in withdrawal of FDA approval for products.

In August 2018, the FDA released a draft guidance entitled "Expansion Cohorts: Use in First-In-Human Clinical Trials to Expedite Development of Oncology Drugs and Biologics," which outlines how developers can utilize an adaptive trial design commonly referred to as a seamless trial design in early stages of oncology biological product development (i.e., the first-in-human clinical trial) to compress the traditional three phases of trials into one continuous trial called an expansion cohort trial. Information to support the design of individual expansion cohorts are included in IND applications and assessed by FDA. Expansion cohort trials can potentially bring efficiency to product development and reduce developmental costs and time.

Finally, sponsors of clinical trials are required to register and disclose certain clinical trial information on a public registry (clinicaltrials.gov) maintained by the U.S. National Institutes of Health, or NIH. In particular, information related to the product, patient population, phase of investigation, clinical trial sites and investigators and other aspects of the clinical trial is made public as part of the registration of the clinical trial. The NIH's Final Rule on registration and reporting requirements for clinical trials became effective in 2017, and both NIH and the FDA have recently signaled the government's willingness to begin enforcing those requirements against non-compliant clinical trial sponsors.

Interactions with FDA during the clinical development program

Following the clearance of an IND and the commencement of clinical trials, the sponsor will continue to have interactions with the FDA. Progress reports detailing the results of clinical trials must be submitted annually within 60 days of the anniversary dates that the IND went into effect and more frequently if serious adverse events occur. These reports must include a development safety update report, or DSUR. In addition, IND safety reports must be submitted to the FDA for any of the following: serious and unexpected suspected adverse reactions; findings from other trials or animal or in vitro testing that suggest a significant risk in humans exposed to the product; and any clinically important increase in the occurrence of a serious suspected adverse reaction over that listed in the protocol or investigator brochure. Phase 1, Phase 2 and Phase 3 clinical trials may not be completed successfully within any specified period, or at all. The FDA will typically inspect one or more clinical sites to assure compliance with GCP and the integrity of the clinical data submitted.

In addition, sponsors are given opportunities to meet with the FDA at certain points in the clinical development program. Specifically, sponsors may meet with the FDA prior to the submission of an IND (Pre-IND meeting), at the end of Phase 2 clinical trial (EOP2 meeting) and before a BLA is submitted (Pre-BLA meeting). Meetings at other times may also be requested. There are three types of meetings that occur between sponsors and the FDA. Type A meetings are those that are necessary for an otherwise stalled product development program to proceed or to address an important safety issue. Type B meetings include pre-IND and pre-BLA meetings, as well as end of phase meetings such as EOP2 meetings. A Type C meeting is any meeting other than a Type A or Type B meeting regarding the development and review of a product, including for example meetings to facilitate early consultations on the use of a biomarker as a new surrogate endpoint that has never been previously used as the primary basis for product approval in the proposed context of use.

Manufacturing and other regulatory requirements

Concurrent with clinical trials, sponsors usually complete additional animal safety studies, develop additional information about the chemistry and physical characteristics of the product candidate and finalize a process for manufacturing commercial quantities of the product candidate in accordance with cGMP requirements. The manufacturing process must be capable of consistently producing quality batches of the product candidate and, among other criteria, the sponsor must develop methods for testing the identity, strength, quality, and purity of the finished product. Additionally, appropriate packaging must be selected and tested, and stability studies must be conducted to demonstrate that the product candidate does not undergo unacceptable deterioration over its shelf life.

Specifically, the FDA's regulations require that pharmaceutical products be manufactured in specific approved facilities and in accordance with cGMPs. The cGMP regulations include requirements relating to organization of personnel, buildings and facilities, equipment, control of components and product containers and closures, production and process controls, packaging and labeling controls, holding and distribution, laboratory controls, records and reports and returned or salvaged products. Manufacturers and other entities involved in the manufacture and distribution of approved pharmaceuticals are required to register their establishments with the FDA and some state agencies, and they are subject to periodic unannounced inspections by the FDA for compliance with cGMPs and other requirements. Inspections must follow a "risk-based schedule" that may result in certain establishments being inspected more frequently. Manufacturers may also have to provide, on request, electronic or physical records regarding their establishments. Delaying, denying, limiting, or refusing inspection by the FDA may lead to a product being deemed to be adulterated. Changes to the manufacturing process, specifications or container closure system for an approved product are strictly regulated and often require prior FDA approval before being implemented. The FDA's regulations also require, among other things, the investigation and correction of any deviations from cGMP and the imposition of reporting and documentation requirements upon the sponsor and any third-party manufacturers involved in producing the approved product.

Pediatric trials

Under the Pediatric Research Equity Act, or PREA, applications and certain types of supplements to applications must contain data that are adequate to assess the safety and effectiveness of the product for the claimed indications in all relevant pediatric subpopulations, and to support dosing and administration for each pediatric subpopulation for which the product is safe and effective. The sponsor must submit an initial Pediatric Study Plan, or PSP, within 60 days of an end-of-phase 2 meeting or as may be agreed between the sponsor and the FDA. Those plans must contain an outline of the proposed pediatric clinical trial or trials that the sponsor plans to conduct, including trial objectives and design, age groups, relevant endpoints and statistical approach, or a justification for not including such detailed information, and any request for a deferral of pediatric assessments or a full or partial waiver of the requirement to provide data from pediatric trials along with supporting information. The sponsor and the FDA must reach agreement on a final plan. A sponsor can submit amendments to an agreed-upon initial PSP at any time if changes to the pediatric plan need to be considered based on data collected from nonclinical studies, early phase clinical trials, and/or other clinical development programs.

For investigational products intended to treat a serious or life-threatening disease or condition, the FDA must, upon the request of a sponsor, meet to discuss preparation of the initial PSP or to discuss deferral or waiver of pediatric assessments. In addition, the FDA will meet early in the development process to discuss pediatric study plans with sponsors, and the FDA must meet with sponsors by no later than the end-of-phase 1 meeting for serious or life-threatening diseases and by no later than ninety days after the FDA's receipt of the PSP.

The FDA may, on its own initiative or at the request of the sponsor, grant deferrals for submission of some or all pediatric data until after approval of the product for use in adults, or full or partial waivers from the pediatric data requirements. A deferral may be granted for several reasons, including a finding that the product or therapeutic candidate is ready for approval for use in adults before pediatric trials are complete or that additional safety or effectiveness data needs to be collected before the pediatric trials begin. The law now requires the FDA to send a PREA Non-Compliance letter to sponsors who have failed to submit their pediatric assessments required under PREA, have failed to seek or obtain a deferral or deferral extension or have failed to request approval for a required pediatric formulation. Unless otherwise required by regulation, the pediatric data requirements do not apply to products with orphan designation, although FDA has recently taken steps to limit what it considers abuse of this statutory exemption in PREA. The FDA also maintains a list of diseases that are exempt from PREA requirements due to low prevalence of disease in the pediatric population.

Expedited review programs

The FDA is authorized to expedite the review of applications in several ways. Under the Fast Track program, the sponsor of a product candidate may request the FDA to designate the product for a specific indication as a Fast Track product concurrent with or after the filing of the IND. Candidate products are eligible for Fast Track designation if they are intended to treat a serious or life-threatening condition and demonstrate the potential to address unmet medical needs for the condition. Fast Track designation applies to the combination of the product candidate and the specific indication for which it is being studied. In addition to other benefits, such as the ability to have greater interactions with the FDA, the FDA may initiate review of sections of a Fast Track application before the application is complete, a process known as rolling review.

Any product candidate submitted to the FDA for marketing, including under a Fast Track program, may be eligible for other types of FDA programs intended to expedite development and review, such as breakthrough therapy designation, priority review and accelerated approval.

- Breakthrough therapy designation. To qualify for the breakthrough therapy program, product candidates must be intended to treat a serious or life-threatening disease or condition and preliminary clinical evidence must indicate that such product candidates may demonstrate substantial improvement on one or more clinically significant endpoints over existing therapies. The FDA will seek to ensure the sponsor of a breakthrough therapy product candidate receives intensive guidance on an efficient development program, intensive involvement of senior managers and experienced staff on a proactive, collaborative and cross-disciplinary review and rolling review.

- Priority review. A product candidate is eligible for priority review if it treats a serious condition and, if approved, it would be a significant improvement in the safety or effectiveness of the treatment, diagnosis or prevention compared to marketed products. FDA aims to complete its review of priority review applications within six months as opposed to 10 months for standard review.

- Accelerated approval. Biologic products studied for their safety and effectiveness in treating serious or life-threatening illnesses and that provide meaningful therapeutic benefit over existing treatments may receive accelerated approval. Accelerated approval means that a product candidate may be approved on the basis of adequate and well controlled clinical trials establishing that the product candidate has an effect on a surrogate endpoint that is reasonably likely to predict a clinical benefit, or on the basis of an effect on a clinical endpoint other than survival or irreversible morbidity or mortality or other clinical benefit, taking into account the severity, rarity and prevalence of the condition and the availability or lack of alternative treatments. As a condition of approval, the FDA may require that a sponsor of a biologic product candidate receiving accelerated approval perform adequate and well controlled post-marketing clinical trials. In addition, the FDA currently requires as a condition for accelerated approval pre-approval of promotional materials.

- Regenerative advanced therapy. With passage of the 21st Century Cures Act, or the Cures Act, in December 2016, Congress authorized the FDA to accelerate review and approval of products designated as regenerative advanced therapies. A product is eligible for this designation if it is a regenerative medicine therapy that is intended to treat, modify, reverse or cure a serious or life-threatening disease or condition and preliminary clinical evidence indicates that the product candidate has the potential to address unmet medical needs for such disease or condition. The benefits of a regenerative advanced therapy designation include early interactions with the FDA to expedite development and review, benefits available to breakthrough therapies, potential eligibility for priority review and accelerated approval based on surrogate or intermediate endpoints.

None of these expedited programs changes the standards for approval but each may help expedite the development or approval process governing product candidates.

Submission and filing of BLAs

Assuming successful completion of the required clinical testing, the results of the preclinical studies and clinical trials, along with information relating to the product's chemistry, manufacturing, controls, safety updates, patent information, abuse information and proposed labeling, are submitted to the FDA as part of an application requesting approval to market the product candidate for one or more indications. To support marketing approval, the data submitted must be sufficient in quality and quantity to establish the safety, potency and purity of the biological product to the satisfaction of the FDA. The fee required for the submission and review of an application under the Prescription Drug User Fee Act, or PDUFA, is substantial (for example, for FY2022 this application fee is approximately $3.1 million), and the sponsor of an approved application is also subject to an annual program fee, currently more than $369,000 per eligible prescription product. These fees are typically adjusted annually, and exemptions and waivers may be available under certain circumstances, including where the applicant is a small business submitting its first human therapeutic application for review.

The FDA conducts a preliminary review of all applications within 60 days of receipt and must inform the sponsor at that time or before whether an application is sufficiently complete to permit substantive review. In pertinent part, FDA's regulations state that an application "shall not be considered as filed until all pertinent information and data have been received" by the FDA. In the event that FDA determines that an application does not satisfy this standard, it will issue a Refuse to File, or RTF, determination to the applicant. Typically, an RTF will be based on administrative incompleteness, such as clear omission of information or sections of required information such that substantive and meaningful review is precluded. The FDA may request additional information rather than accept an application for filing. In this event, the application must be resubmitted with the additional information. The resubmitted application is also subject to review before the FDA accepts it for filing.

After the submission is accepted for filing, the FDA begins an in-depth substantive review of the application. The FDA reviews the application to determine, among other things, whether the proposed product is safe and effective for its intended use, whether it has an acceptable purity profile and whether the product is being manufactured in accordance with cGMP. Under the goals and policies agreed to by the FDA under PDUFA, the FDA has ten months from the filing date in which to complete its initial review of a standard application that is a new molecular entity, and six months from the filing date for an application with "priority review." The review process may be extended by the FDA for three additional months to consider new information or in the case of a clarification provided by the applicant to address an outstanding deficiency identified by the FDA following the original submission. Despite these review goals, it is not uncommon for FDA review of an application to extend beyond the PDUFA goal date.

In connection with its review of an application, the FDA will typically submit information requests to the applicant and set deadlines for responses thereto. The FDA will also conduct a pre-approval inspection of the manufacturing facilities for the new product to determine whether the manufacturing processes and facilities comply with cGMPs. The FDA will not approve the product unless it determines that the manufacturing processes and facilities are in compliance with cGMP requirements and are adequate to assure consistent production of the product within required specifications. The FDA also may inspect the sponsor and one or more clinical trial sites to assure compliance with IND and GCP requirements and the integrity of the clinical data submitted to the FDA.

Additionally, the FDA may refer an application, including applications for novel product candidates which present difficult questions of safety or efficacy, to an advisory committee for review, evaluation and recommendation as to whether the application should be approved and under what conditions. Typically, an advisory committee is a panel of independent experts, including clinicians and other scientific experts that reviews, evaluates and provides a recommendation as to whether the application should be approved and under what conditions. The FDA is not bound by the recommendation of an advisory committee, but it considers such recommendations when making final decisions on approval.

The FDA also may require submission of a REMS if it determines that a REMS is necessary to ensure that the benefits of the product outweigh its risks and to assure the safe use of the product. The REMS could include medication guides, physician communication plans, assessment plans and/or elements to assure safe use, such as restricted distribution methods, patient registries or other risk minimization tools. The FDA determines the requirement for a REMS, as well as the specific REMS provisions, on a case-by-case basis. If the FDA concludes a REMS is needed, the sponsor of the application must submit a proposed REMS and the FDA will not approve the application without a REMS.

Decisions on BLAs

After evaluating the application and all related information, including the advisory committee recommendations, if any, and inspection reports of manufacturing facilities and clinical trial sites, the FDA will issue either a Complete Response Letter, or CRL, or an approval letter. To reach this determination, the FDA must determine that the expected benefits of the proposed product outweigh its potential risks to patients. This assessment is informed by the severity of the underlying condition and how well patients' medical needs are addressed by currently available therapies; uncertainty about how the premarket clinical trial evidence will extrapolate to real-world use of the product in the post-market setting; and whether risk management tools are necessary to manage specific risks.

A CRL indicates that the review cycle of the application is complete, and the application will not be approved in its present form. A CRL generally outlines the deficiencies in the submission and may require substantial additional testing or information in order for the FDA to reconsider the application. The CRL may require additional clinical or other data, additional pivotal Phase 3 clinical trial(s) and/or other significant and time- consuming requirements related to clinical trials, preclinical studies or manufacturing. If a CRL is issued, the applicant will have one year to respond to the deficiencies identified by the FDA, at which time the FDA can deem the application withdrawn or, in its discretion, grant the applicant an additional six month extension to respond. The FDA has committed to reviewing resubmissions in response to an issued CRL in either two or six months depending on the type of information included. Even with the submission of this additional information, however, the FDA ultimately may decide that the application does not satisfy the regulatory criteria for approval.

An approval letter, on the other hand, authorizes commercial marketing of the product with specific prescribing information for specific indications. That is, the approval will be limited to the conditions of use (e.g., patient population, indication) described in the FDA-approved labeling. Further, depending on the specific risk(s) to be addressed, the FDA may require that contraindications, warnings or precautions be included in the product labeling, require that post-approval trials, including Phase 4 clinical trials, be conducted to further assess a product's safety after approval, require testing and surveillance programs to monitor the product after commercialization or impose other conditions, including distribution and use restrictions or other risk management mechanisms under a REMS which can materially affect the potential market and profitability of the product. The FDA may prevent or limit further marketing of a product based on the results of post-marketing trials or surveillance programs. After approval, some types of changes to the approved product, such as adding new indications, manufacturing changes and additional labeling claims, are subject to further testing requirements and FDA review and approval.

Post-approval requirements

Following approval of a new prescription product, the manufacturer, the approved product and the product's manufacturing locations are subject to pervasive and continuing regulation by the FDA, governing, among other things, monitoring and record-keeping activities, reporting of adverse experiences with the product and product problems to the FDA, product sampling and distribution, manufacturing and promotion and advertising. Although physicians may prescribe legally available products for unapproved uses or patient populations (i.e., "off-label uses"), manufacturers may not market or promote such uses. The FDA and other agencies actively enforce the laws and regulations prohibiting the promotion of off-label uses, and a company that is found to have improperly promoted off-label uses may be subject to significant liability. In September 2021, the FDA published final regulations which describe the types of evidence that the agency will consider in determining the intended use of a biologic.

If a company is found to have promoted off-label uses, it may become subject to administrative and judicial enforcement by the FDA, the Department of Justice, or the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services, as well as state authorities. This could subject a company to a range of penalties that could have a significant commercial impact, including civil and criminal fines and agreements that materially restrict the manner in which a company promotes or distributes products, as well as adverse public relations and reputational harm. The federal government has levied large civil and criminal fines against companies for alleged improper promotion, and has also requested that companies enter into consent decrees or permanent injunctions under which specified promotional conduct is changed or curtailed.

Further, if there are any modifications to the product, including changes in indications, labeling or manufacturing processes or facilities, the sponsor may be required to submit and obtain FDA approval of a new application or supplement, which may require the sponsor to develop additional data or conduct additional preclinical studies and clinical trials. Securing FDA approval for new indications is similar to the process for approval of the original indication and requires, among other things, submitting data from adequate and well-controlled clinical trials to demonstrate the product's safety and efficacy in the new indication. Even if such trials are conducted, the FDA may not approve any expansion of the labeled indications for use in a timely fashion, or at all. There also are continuing, annual user fee requirements that are now assessed as program fees for certain products.

In addition, the FDA may withdraw the approval if compliance with regulatory requirements and standards is not maintained or if problems occur after the product reaches the market. Later discovery of previously unknown problems with a product, including adverse events of unanticipated severity or frequency, or with manufacturing processes, or failure to comply with regulatory requirements, may result in mandatory revisions to the approved labeling to add new safety information, imposition of post-market clinical trials requirement to assess new safety risks or imposition of distribution or other restrictions under a REMS program.

Other potential consequences include, among other things:

- restrictions on the marketing or manufacturing of the product, complete withdrawal of the product from the market or product recalls;
- safety alerts, Dear Healthcare Provider letters, press releases or other communications containing warnings or other safety information about a product;
- mandated modification of promotional materials and labeling and issuance of corrective information;
- fines, warning letters, untitled letters or other enforcement-related letters or clinical holds on post-approval clinical trials;

- refusal of the FDA to approve pending applications or supplements to approved applications, or suspension or revocation of product approvals;
- product seizure or detention, or refusal to permit the import or export of products;
- injunctions or the imposition of civil or criminal penalties; and
- consent decrees, corporate integrity agreements, debarment, or exclusion from federal health care programs.

Regulatory exclusivity governing biologics

When a biological product is licensed for marketing by FDA with approval of a BLA, the product may be entitled to certain types of market and data exclusivity barring FDA from approving competing products for certain periods of time. In March 2010, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act was enacted in the United States and included the Biologics Price Competition and Innovation Act of 2009, or the BPCIA. The BPCIA amended the PHSA to create an abbreviated approval pathway for biological products that are biosimilar to or interchangeable with an FDA-licensed reference biological product. To date, the FDA has approved a number of biosimilars and the first interchangeable biosimilar product was approved on July 30, 2021 and a second product previously approved as a biosimilar was designated as interchangeable in October 2021.

Under the BPCIA, a manufacturer may submit an application for a product that is "biosimilar to" a previously approved biological product, which the statute refers to as a "reference product." In order for the FDA to approve a biosimilar product, it must find that there are no clinically meaningful differences between the reference product and the proposed biosimilar product in terms of safety, purity and potency. The biosimilar sponsor may demonstrate that its product is biosimilar to the reference product on the basis of data from analytical studies, animal studies and one or more clinical trials to demonstrate safety, purity and potency in one or more appropriate conditions of use for which the reference product is approved.

For the FDA to approve a biosimilar product as interchangeable with a reference product, the agency must find not only that the product is biosimilar to the reference product but also that it can be expected to produce the same clinical results as the reference product such that the two products may be switched without increasing safety risks or risks of diminished efficacy relative to exclusive use of the reference biologic. Upon licensure by the FDA, an interchangeable biosimilar may be substituted for the reference product without the intervention of the health care provider who prescribed the reference product. Following approval of the interchangeable biosimilar product, the FDA may not grant interchangeability status for any second biosimilar until one year after the first commercial marketing of the first interchangeable biosimilar product.

A reference biological product is granted 12 years of exclusivity from the time of first licensure of the product, and the FDA will not accept an application for a biosimilar or interchangeable product based on the reference biological product until four years after the date of first licensure of the reference product. Even if a product is considered to be a reference product eligible for exclusivity, however, another company could market a competing version of that product if the FDA approves a full BLA for such product containing the sponsor's own preclinical data and data from adequate and well-controlled clinical trials to demonstrate the safety, purity, and potency of their product. There have been recent government proposals to reduce the 12-year reference product exclusivity period, but none has been enacted to date. At the same time, since passage of the BPCIA, many states have passed laws or amendments to laws, which address pharmacy practices involving biosimilar products.

Orphan drug designation and exclusivity

Orphan drug designation in the United States is designed to encourage sponsors to develop products intended for treatment of rare diseases or conditions. In the United States, a rare disease or condition is statutorily defined as a condition that affects fewer than 200,000 individuals in the United States or that affects more than 200,000 individuals in the United States and for which there is no reasonable expectation that the cost of developing and making available the product for the disease or condition will be recovered from sales of the product in the United States.

Orphan drug designation qualifies a company for tax credits and potentially market exclusivity for seven years following the date of the product's approval if granted by the FDA. An application for designation as an orphan product can be made any time prior to the filing of an application for approval to market the product. A product becomes an orphan when it receives orphan drug designation from the Office of Orphan Products Development at the FDA based on acceptable confidential requests. The product must then go through the review and approval process like any other product.

A sponsor may request orphan drug designation of a previously unapproved product or new orphan indication for an already marketed product. In addition, a sponsor of a product that is otherwise the same product as an already approved orphan drug may seek and obtain orphan drug designation for the subsequent product for the same rare disease or condition if it can present a plausible hypothesis that its product may be clinically superior to the first approved product. More than one sponsor may receive orphan drug designation for the same product for the same rare disease or condition, but each sponsor seeking orphan drug designation must file a complete request for designation.

If a product with orphan designation receives the first FDA approval for the disease or condition for which it has such designation or for a select indication or use within the rare disease or condition for which it was designated, the product generally will receive orphan drug exclusivity. Orphan drug exclusivity means that the FDA may not approve another sponsor's marketing application for the same product for the same disease or condition for seven years, except in certain limited circumstances. If a product designated as an orphan drug ultimately receives marketing approval for an indication broader than what was designated in its orphan drug application, it may not be entitled to exclusivity.

The period of market exclusivity begins on the date that the marketing application is approved by the FDA and applies only to the disease or condition for which the product has been designated. Orphan drug exclusivity will not bar approval of another product under certain circumstances, including if the company with orphan drug exclusivity is not able to meet market demand or the subsequent product is shown to be clinically superior to the approved product on the basis of greater efficacy or safety, or providing a major contribution to patient care. Under Omnibus legislation signed by President Trump on December 27, 2020, the requirement for a product to show clinical superiority applies to drug products that received orphan drug designation before enactment of amendments to the FDCA in 2017 but have not yet been approved by FDA.

In September 2021, the Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit held that, for the purpose of determining the scope of market exclusivity, the term "same disease or condition" in the statute means the designated "rare disease or condition" and could not be interpreted by the FDA to mean the "indication or use." Thus, the court concluded, orphan drug exclusivity applies to the entire designated disease or condition rather than the "indication or use." It is unclear how this court decision will be implemented by the FDA.

Pediatric exclusivity

Pediatric exclusivity is a type of non-patent marketing exclusivity in the United States and, if granted, provides for the attachment of an additional six months of exclusivity. For biologic products, the six month period may be attached to any existing regulatory exclusivities but not to any patent terms. The conditions for pediatric exclusivity include the FDA's determination that information relating to the use of a new product in the pediatric population may produce health benefits in that population, the FDA making a written request for pediatric clinical trials, and the sponsor agreeing to perform, and reporting on, the requested clinical trials within the statutory timeframe. This six-month exclusivity may be granted if a sponsor submits pediatric data that fairly respond to a written request from the FDA for such data. The data do not need to show the product to be effective in the pediatric population studied. If reports of requested pediatric studies are submitted to and accepted by the FDA within the statutory time limits, whatever statutory or regulatory periods of exclusivity or patents that cover the product are extended by six months. Although this is not a patent term extension, it effectively extends the regulatory period during which the FDA cannot approve another application.

Patent term restoration and extension

In the United States, a patent claiming a new product, its method of use or its method of manufacture may be eligible for a limited patent term extension under the Hatch-Waxman Act, which permits a patent extension of up to five years for patent term lost during product development and FDA regulatory review. Assuming grant of the patent for which the extension is sought, the restoration period for a patent covering a product is typically one-half the time between the effective date of the IND involving human beings and the submission date of the BLA, plus the time between the submission date of the application and the ultimate approval date. Patent term restoration cannot be used to extend the remaining term of a patent past a total of 14 years from the product's approval date in the United States. Only one patent applicable to an approved product is eligible for the extension, and the application for the extension must be submitted prior to the expiration of the patent for which extension is sought. A patent that covers multiple products for which approval is sought can only be extended in connection with one of the approvals. The USPTO reviews and approves the application for any patent term extension in consultation with the FDA.

Companion diagnostics

In August 2014, the FDA issued final guidance clarifying the requirements that will apply to approval of therapeutic products and in vitro companion diagnostics. According to the guidance, for novel biologics, a companion diagnostic device and its corresponding therapeutic should be approved or cleared contemporaneously by the FDA for the use indicated in the therapeutic product's labeling. Approval or clearance of the companion diagnostic device will ensure that the device has been adequately evaluated and has adequate performance characteristics in the intended population. In July 2016, the FDA issued a draft guidance intended to assist sponsors of the therapeutic product and in vitro companion diagnostic device on issues related to co-development of the products.

The 2014 guidance also explains that a companion diagnostic device used to make treatment decisions in clinical trials of a biologic product candidate generally will be considered an investigational device, unless it is employed for an intended use for which the device is already approved or cleared. If used to make critical treatment decisions, such as patient selection, the diagnostic device generally will be considered a significant risk device under the FDA's Investigational Device Exemption, or IDE, regulations. Thus, the sponsor of the diagnostic device will be required to comply with the IDE regulations. According to the guidance, if a diagnostic device and a product are to be studied together to support their respective approvals, both products can be studied in the same investigational study, if the study meets both the requirements of the IDE regulations and the IND regulations. The guidance provides that depending on the details of the study plan and subjects, a sponsor may seek to submit an IND application alone, or both an IND- and IDE-application.

In April 2020, the FDA issued additional guidance which describes considerations for the development and labeling of companion diagnostic devices to support the indicated uses of multiple biological oncology products, when appropriate. This guidance builds upon existing policy regarding the labeling of companion diagnostics. In its 2014 guidance, the FDA stated that if evidence is sufficient to conclude that the companion diagnostic is appropriate for use with a specific group of therapeutic products, the companion diagnostic's intended use/indications for use should name the specific group of therapeutic products, rather than specific products. The 2020 guidance expands on the policy statement in the 2014 guidance by recommending that companion diagnostic developers consider a number of factors when determining whether their test could be developed, or the labeling for approved companion diagnostics could be revised through a supplement, to support a broader labeling claim such as use with a specific group of oncology therapeutic products (rather than listing an individual therapeutic product(s)).

Under the FDCA, in vitro diagnostics, including companion diagnostics, are regulated as medical devices. In the United States, the FDCA and its implementing regulations, and other federal and state statutes and regulations govern, among other things, medical device design and development, preclinical and clinical testing, premarket clearance or approval, registration and listing, manufacturing, labeling, storage, advertising and promotion, sales and distribution, export and import and post-market surveillance. Unless an exemption applies, diagnostic tests require pre-notification marketing clearance or approval from the FDA prior to commercial distribution.

The FDA previously has required in vitro companion diagnostics intended to select the patients who will respond to the product candidate to obtain pre-market approval, or PMA, simultaneously with approval of the therapeutic product candidate. The PMA process, including the gathering of clinical and preclinical data and the submission to and review by the FDA, can take several years or longer. It involves a rigorous premarket review during which the sponsor must prepare and provide the FDA with reasonable assurance of the device's safety and effectiveness and information about the device and its components regarding, among other things, device design, manufacturing and labeling. PMA applications are subject to an application fee.

Healthcare compliance

In the United States, biopharmaceutical manufacturers and their products are subject to extensive regulation at the federal and state level, such as laws intended to prevent fraud and abuse in the healthcare industry. Healthcare providers and third-party payors play a primary role in the recommendation and prescription of pharmaceutical products that are granted marketing approval. Arrangements with providers, consultants, third-party payors, and customers are subject to broadly applicable fraud and abuse, anti-kickback, false claims laws, reporting of payments to healthcare providers and patient privacy laws and regulations and other healthcare laws and regulations that may constrain our business and/or financial arrangements. Restrictions under applicable federal and state healthcare laws and regulations, including certain laws and regulations applicable only if we have marketed products, include the following:

- federal false claims, false statements and civil monetary penalties laws prohibiting, among other things, any person from knowingly presenting, or causing to be presented, a false claim for payment of government funds or knowingly making, or causing to be made, a false statement to get a false claim paid;

- federal healthcare program anti-kickback law, which prohibits, among other things, persons from offering, soliciting, receiving or providing remuneration, directly or indirectly, to induce either the referral of an individual for, or the purchasing or ordering of, a good or service for which payment may be made under federal healthcare programs such as Medicare and Medicaid;

- the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, or HIPAA, which, in addition to privacy protections applicable to healthcare providers and other entities, prohibits executing a scheme to defraud any healthcare benefit program or making false statements relating to healthcare matters;

- federal laws that require pharmaceutical manufacturers to report certain calculated product prices to the government or provide certain discounts or rebates to government authorities or private entities, often as a condition of reimbursement under government healthcare programs;

- federal Open Payments (or federal "sunshine" law), which requires pharmaceutical and medical device companies to monitor and report certain financial interactions with certain healthcare providers to the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Services, or CMS, within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, or HHS, for re-disclosure to the public, as well as ownership and investment interests held by certain healthcare providers and their immediate family members;

- federal consumer protection and unfair competition laws, which broadly regulate marketplace activities and activities that potentially harm consumers;

- analogous state laws and regulations, including: state anti-kickback and false claims laws; state laws requiring pharmaceutical companies to comply with specific compliance standards, restrict financial interactions between pharmaceutical companies and healthcare providers or require pharmaceutical companies to report information related to payments to health care providers or marketing expenditures; and state laws governing privacy, security and breaches of health information in certain circumstances, many of which differ from each other in significant ways and often are not preempted by HIPAA, thus complicating compliance efforts; and

- laws and regulations prohibiting bribery and corruption such as the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, which, among other things, prohibits U.S. companies and their employees and agents from authorizing, promising, offering, or providing, directly or indirectly, corrupt or improper payments or anything else of value to foreign government officials, employees of public international organizations or foreign government-owned or affiliated entities, candidates for foreign public office, and foreign political parties or officials thereof.

Violations of these laws are punishable by criminal and/or civil sanctions, including, in some instances, exclusion from participation in federal and state health care programs, such as Medicare and Medicaid. Ensuring compliance is time consuming and costly. Similar healthcare laws and regulations exist in the European Union and other jurisdictions, including reporting requirements detailing interactions with and payments to healthcare providers and laws governing the privacy and security of personal information.

Healthcare reform

A primary trend in the U.S. healthcare industry and elsewhere is cost containment. There have been a number of federal and state proposals during the last few years regarding the pricing of pharmaceutical products, limiting coverage and reimbursement for medical products and other changes to the healthcare system in the United States.

In March 2010, the United States Congress enacted the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, as amended by the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010, or collectively the PPACA, which, among other things, includes changes to the coverage and payment for pharmaceutical products under government healthcare programs. Other legislative changes have been proposed and adopted since the PPACA was enacted. In August 2011, the Budget Control Act of 2011, among other things, created measures for spending reductions by Congress. A Joint Select Committee on Deficit Reduction, tasked with recommending a targeted deficit reduction of at least $1.2 trillion for the years 2013 through 2021, was unable to reach required goals, thereby triggering the legislation's automatic reduction to several government programs. These changes included aggregate reductions to Medicare payments to providers of up to 2% per fiscal year, which went into effect in April 2013 and will remain in effect through 2031. These Medicare sequester reductions have been suspended through the end of March 2022. From April 2022 through June 2022, a 1% sequester cut will be in effect, with the full 2% cut resuming thereafter.

Since enactment of the PPACA, there have been, and continue to be, numerous legal challenges and Congressional actions to repeal and replace provisions of the law. For example, with enactment of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017, or the Tax Act, which was signed by President Trump on December 22, 2017, Congress repealed the "individual mandate." The repeal of this provision, which requires most Americans to carry a minimal level of health insurance, became effective in 2019. On December 14, 2018, a U.S. District Court judge in the Northern District of Texas ruled that the individual mandate portion of the PPACA is an essential and inseverable feature of the PPACA, and therefore because the mandate was repealed as part of the Tax Act, the remaining provisions of the PPACA are invalid as well. The U.S. Supreme Court heard this case on November 10, 2020 and, on June 17, 2021, dismissed this action after finding that the plaintiffs do not have standing to challenge the constitutionality of the ACA. Litigation and legislation over the PPACA are likely to continue, with unpredictable and uncertain results.

The Trump Administration also took executive actions to undermine or delay implementation of the PPACA, including directing federal agencies with authorities and responsibilities under the PPACA to waive, defer, grant exemptions from, or delay the implementation of any provision of the PPACA that would impose a fiscal or regulatory burden on states, individuals, healthcare providers, health insurers, or manufacturers of pharmaceuticals or medical devices. On January 28, 2021, however, President Biden rescinded those orders and issued a new executive order that directs federal agencies to reconsider rules and other policies that limit access to healthcare, and consider actions that will protect and strengthen that access. Under this order, federal agencies are directed to re-examine: policies that undermine protections for people with pre-existing conditions, including complications related to COVID-19; demonstrations and waivers under Medicaid and the PPACA that may reduce coverage or undermine the programs, including work requirements; policies that undermine the Health Insurance Marketplace or other markets for health insurance; policies that make it more difficult to enroll in Medicaid and under the PPACA; and policies that reduce affordability of coverage or financial assistance, including for dependents.

Pharmaceutical prices

The prices of prescription pharmaceuticals have also been the subject of considerable discussion in the United States. There have been several recent U.S. congressional inquiries, as well as proposed and enacted state and federal legislation designed to, among other things, bring more transparency to pharmaceutical pricing, review the relationship between pricing and manufacturer patient programs, and reduce the costs of pharmaceuticals under Medicare and Medicaid. In 2020, President Trump issued several executive orders intended to lower the costs of prescription products and certain provisions in these orders have been incorporated into regulations. These regulations include an interim final rule implementing a most favored nation model for prices that would tie Medicare Part B payments for certain physician-administered pharmaceuticals to the lowest price paid in other economically advanced countries, effective January 1, 2021. That rule, however, has been subject to a nationwide preliminary injunction and, on December 29, 2021, CMS issued a final rule to rescind it. With issuance of this rule, CMS stated that it will explore all options to incorporate value into payments for Medicare Part B pharmaceuticals and improve beneficiaries' access to evidence-based care.

In addition, in October 2020, the HHS and the FDA published a final rule allowing states and other entities to develop a Section 804 Importation Program, or SIP, to import certain prescription products from Canada into the United States. The final rule is currently the subject of ongoing litigation, but at least six states (Vermont, Colorado, Florida, Maine, New Mexico, and New Hampshire) have passed laws allowing for the importation of products from Canada with the intent of developing SIPs for review and approval by the FDA. Further, on November 20, 2020, HHS finalized a regulation removing safe harbor protection for price reductions from pharmaceutical manufacturers to plan sponsors under Part D, either directly or through pharmacy benefit managers, unless the price reduction is required by law. The implementation of the rule has been delayed by the Biden administration from January 1, 2022 to January 1, 2023 in response to ongoing litigation. The rule also creates a new safe harbor for price reductions reflected at the point-of-sale, as well as a new safe harbor for certain fixed fee arrangements between pharmacy benefit managers and manufacturers, the implementation of which have also been delayed by the Biden administration until January 1, 2023.

On July 9, 2021, President Biden signed Executive Order 14063, which focuses on, among other things, the price of pharmaceuticals. The Order directs the HHS to create a plan within 45 days to combat "excessive pricing of prescription pharmaceuticals and enhance domestic pharmaceutical supply chains, to reduce the prices paid by the federal government for such pharmaceuticals, and to address the recurrent problem of price gouging." On September 9, 2021, HHS released its plan to reduce pharmaceutical prices. The key features of that plan are to: (a) make pharmaceutical prices more affordable and equitable for all consumers and throughout the health care system by supporting pharmaceutical price negotiations with manufacturers; (b) improve and promote competition throughout the prescription pharmaceutical industry by supporting market changes that strengthen supply chains, promote biosimilars, and increase transparency; and (c) foster scientific innovation to promote better healthcare and improve health by supporting public and private research and making sure that market incentives promote discovery of valuable and accessible new treatments.

At the state level, individual states are increasingly aggressive in passing legislation and implementing regulations designed to control pharmaceutical and biological product pricing, including price or patient reimbursement constraints, discounts, restrictions on certain product access and marketing cost disclosure and transparency measures, and, in some cases, designed to encourage importation from other countries and bulk purchasing. A number of states, for example, require pharmaceutical manufacturers and other entities in the supply chain, including health carriers, pharmacy benefit managers, wholesale distributors, to disclose information about pricing of pharmaceuticals. In addition, regional healthcare organizations and individual hospitals are increasingly using bidding procedures to determine what pharmaceutical products and which suppliers will be included in their prescription pharmaceutical and other healthcare programs. These measures could reduce the ultimate demand for our products, once approved, or put pressure on our product pricing. We expect that additional state and federal healthcare reform measures will be adopted in the future, any of which could limit the amounts that federal and state governments will pay for healthcare products and services, which could result in reduced demand for our product candidates or additional pricing pressures.

Federal and state data privacy laws

There are multiple privacy and data security laws that may impact our business activities, in the United States and in other countries where we conduct trials or where we may do business in the future. These laws are evolving and may increase both our obligations and our regulatory risks in the future. In the health care industry generally, under HIPAA, the HHS has issued regulations to protect the privacy and security of protected health information, or PHI, used or disclosed by covered entities including certain healthcare providers, health plans and healthcare clearinghouses. HIPAA also regulates standardization of data content, codes and formats used in healthcare transactions and standardization of identifiers for health plans and providers. HIPAA also imposes certain obligations on the business associates of covered entities that obtain protected health information in providing services to or on behalf of covered entities. HIPAA may apply to us in certain circumstances and may also apply to our business partners in ways that may impact our relationships with them. Our clinical trials are regulated by the Common Rule, which also includes specific privacy-related provisions. In addition to federal privacy regulations, there are a number of state laws governing confidentiality and security of health information that may be applicable to our business. In addition to possible federal civil and criminal penalties for HIPAA violations, state attorneys general are authorized to file civil actions for damages or injunctions in federal courts to enforce HIPAA and seek attorney's fees and costs associated with pursuing federal civil actions. In addition, state attorneys general (along with private plaintiffs) have brought civil actions seeking injunctions and damages resulting from alleged violations of HIPAA's privacy and security rules. State attorneys general also have authority to enforce state privacy and security laws. New laws and regulations governing privacy and security may be adopted in the future as well.

At the state level, California has enacted legislation that has been dubbed the first "GDPR-like" law in the United States. Known as the California Consumer Privacy Act, or CCPA, it creates new individual privacy rights for consumers (as that word is broadly defined in the law) and places increased privacy and security obligations on entities handling personal data of consumers or households. The CCPA went into effect on January 1, 2020 and requires covered companies to provide new disclosures to California consumers, provide such consumers new ways to opt-out of certain sales of personal information, and allow for a new cause of action for data breaches. Additionally, effective starting on January 1, 2023, the California Privacy Rights Act, or CPRA, will significantly modify the CCPA, including by expanding consumers' rights with respect to certain sensitive personal information. The CPRA also creates a new state agency that will be vested with authority to implement and enforce the CCPA and the CPRA. The CCPA and CPRA could impact our business activities depending on how it is interpreted and exemplifies the vulnerability of our business to not only cyber threats but also the evolving regulatory environment related to personal data and individually identifiable health information. These provisions may apply to some of our business activities. In addition, other states, including Virginia and Colorado, already have passed state privacy laws and other states will likely be considering similar laws in the near future.

Because of the breadth of these laws and the narrowness of the statutory exceptions and regulatory safe harbors available under such laws, it is possible that some of our current or future business activities, including certain clinical research, sales and marketing practices and the provision of certain items and services to our customers, could be subject to challenge under one or more of such privacy and data security laws. The heightening compliance environment and the need to build and maintain robust and secure systems to comply with different privacy compliance and/or reporting requirements in multiple jurisdictions could increase the possibility that a healthcare company may fail to comply fully with one or more of these requirements. If our operations are found to be in violation of any of the privacy or data security laws or regulations described above that are applicable to us, or any other laws that apply to us, we may be subject to penalties, including potentially significant criminal, civil and administrative penalties, damages, fines, contractual damages, reputational harm, diminished profits and future earnings, additional reporting requirements and/or oversight if we become subject to a consent decree or similar agreement to resolve allegations of non-compliance with these laws, and the curtailment or restructuring of our operations, any of which could adversely affect our ability to operate our business and our results of operations. To the extent that any product candidates we may develop, once approved, are sold in a foreign country, we may be subject to similar foreign laws.

Approval and regulation of medical products in the European Union

In addition to regulations in the United States, we will be subject to a variety of foreign regulations governing clinical trials and commercial sales and distribution of our products outside of the United States. Whether or not we obtain FDA approval for a product candidate, we must obtain approval by the comparable regulatory authorities of foreign countries or economic areas, such as the 27-member European Union, before we may commence clinical trials or market products in those countries or areas. In the European Union, our product candidates also may be subject to extensive regulatory requirements. As in the United States, medicinal products can be marketed only if a marketing authorization from the competent regulatory agencies has been obtained. Similar to the United States, the various phases of preclinical and clinical research in the European Union are subject to significant regulatory controls.

With the exception of the European Union and European Economic Area, or EEA, applying the harmonized regulatory rules for medicinal products, the approval process and requirements governing the conduct of clinical trials, product licensing, pricing and reimbursement vary greatly between countries and jurisdictions and can involve additional testing and additional administrative review periods. The time required to obtain approval in other countries and jurisdictions might differ from and be longer than that required to obtain FDA approval. Regulatory approval in one country or jurisdiction does not ensure regulatory approval in another, but a failure or delay in obtaining regulatory approval in one country or jurisdiction may negatively impact the regulatory process in others.

Clinical trials

On January 31, 2022, the new Clinical Trials Regulation (EU) No 536/2014 became effective in the European Union and replaced the prior Clinical Trials Directive 2001/20/EC. The new regulation aims at simplifying and streamlining the authorization, conduct and transparency of clinical trials in the European Union. Under the new coordinated procedure for the approval of clinical trials, the sponsor of a clinical trial to be conducted in more than one Member State of the European Union, or EU Member State, will only be required to submit a single application for approval. The submission will be made through the Clinical Trials Information System, a new clinical trials portal overseen by the EMA and available to clinical trial sponsors, competent authorities of the EU Member States and the public.

The new regulation did not change the preexisting requirement that a sponsor must obtain prior approval from the competent national authority of the EU Member State in which the clinical trial is to be conducted. If the clinical trial is conducted in different EU Member States, the competent authorities in each of these EU Member States must provide their approval for the conduct of the clinical trial. Furthermore, the sponsor may only start a clinical trial at a specific clinical site after the applicable ethics committee has issued a favorable opinion.

Parties conducting certain clinical trials must, as in the United States, post clinical trial information in the European Union at the EudraCT website: https://eudract.ema.europa.eu.

Marketing authorization in the European Union

Marketing authorization applications, or MAAs, can be filed either under the so-called centralized or national authorization procedures, albeit through the mutual recognition or decentralized procedure for a product to be authorized in more than one EU Member State.

The centralized procedure provides for the grant of a single marketing authorization following a favorable opinion by the European Medicines Agency, or EMA, that is valid in all EU Member States, as well as Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway, which are part of the EEA. The centralized procedure is compulsory for medicines produced by specified biotechnological processes, products designated as orphan medicinal products, advanced-therapy medicines (such as gene-therapy, somatic cell-therapy or tissue-engineered medicines) and products with a new active substance indicated for the treatment of specified diseases, such as HIV/ AIDS, cancer, diabetes, neurodegenerative disorders or autoimmune diseases and other immune dysfunctions and viral diseases. The centralized procedure is optional for products that represent a significant therapeutic, scientific or technical innovation, or whose authorization would be in the interest of public health. Under the centralized procedure the maximum timeframe for the evaluation of an MAA by the EMA is 210 days, excluding clock stops, when additional written or oral information is to be provided by the sponsor in response to questions asked by the Committee for Medicinal Products for Human Use, or the CHMP. Accelerated assessment might be granted by the CHMP in exceptional cases, when a medicinal product is expected to be of a major public health interest, particularly from the point of view of therapeutic innovation. The timeframe for the evaluation of an MAA under the accelerated assessment procedure is of 150 days, excluding stop-clocks.

There are also two other possible routes to authorize medicinal products in several EU countries, which are available for investigational medicinal products that fall outside the scope of the centralized procedure:

- Decentralized procedure. Using the decentralized procedure, a sponsor may apply for simultaneous authorization in more than one EU country of medicinal products that have not yet been authorized in any EU country and that do not fall within the mandatory scope of the centralized procedure. The sponsor may choose a member state as the reference member State to lead the scientific evaluation of the application.

- Mutual recognition procedure. In the mutual recognition procedure, a medicine is first authorized in one EU Member State (which acts as the reference member state), in accordance with the national procedures of that country. Following this, further marketing authorizations can be progressively sought from other EU countries in a procedure whereby the countries concerned agree to recognize the validity of the original, national marketing authorization produced by the reference member state.

Under the above-described procedures, before granting the marketing authorization, the EMA or the competent authorities of the Member States of the EEA make an assessment of the risk-benefit balance of the product on the basis of scientific criteria concerning its quality, safety and efficacy.

Conditional approval

In particular circumstances, EU legislation (Article 14–a Regulation (EC) No 726/2004 (as amended by Regulation (EU) 2019/5 and Regulation (EC) No 507/2006 on Conditional Marketing Authorizations for Medicinal Products for Human Use) enables sponsors to obtain a conditional marketing authorization prior to obtaining the comprehensive clinical data required for an application for a full marketing authorization. Such conditional approvals may be granted for product candidates (including medicines designated as orphan medicinal products) if (1) the product candidate is intended for the treatment, prevention or medical diagnosis of seriously debilitating or life-threatening diseases; (2) the product candidate is intended to meet unmet medical needs of patients; (3) a marketing authorization may be granted prior to submission of comprehensive clinical data provided that the benefit of the immediate availability on the market of the medicinal product concerned outweighs the risk inherent in the fact that additional data are still required; (4) the risk-benefit balance of the product candidate is positive, and (5) it is likely that the sponsor will be in a position to provide the required comprehensive clinical trial data. A conditional marketing authorization may contain specific obligations to be fulfilled by the marketing authorization holder, including obligations with respect to the completion of ongoing or new clinical trials and with respect to the collection of pharmacovigilance data. Conditional marketing authorizations are valid for one year, and may be renewed annually, if the risk-benefit balance remains positive, and after an assessment of the need for additional or modified conditions or specific obligations. The timelines for the centralized procedure described above also apply with respect to the review by the CHMP of applications for a conditional marketing authorization.

Pediatric trials

Prior to obtaining a marketing authorization in the European Union, sponsors have to demonstrate compliance with all measures included in an EMA-approved Pediatric Investigation Plan, or PIP, covering all subsets of the pediatric population, unless the EMA has granted a product-specific waiver, a class waiver or a deferral for one or more of the measures included in the PIP. The respective requirements for all marketing authorization procedures are set forth in Regulation (EC) No 1901/2006, which is referred to as the Pediatric Regulation. This requirement also applies when a company wants to add a new indication, pharmaceutical form or route of administration for a medicine that is already authorized. The Pediatric Committee of the EMA, or PDCO, may grant deferrals for some medicines, allowing a company to delay development of the medicine in children until there is enough information to demonstrate its effectiveness and safety in adults. The PDCO may also grant waivers when development of a medicine in children is not needed or is not appropriate because (a) the product is likely to be ineffective or unsafe in part or all of the pediatric population; (b) the disease or condition occurs only in adult population; or (c) the product does not represent a significant therapeutic benefit over existing treatments for pediatric population. Before a marketing authorization application can be filed, or an existing marketing authorization can be amended, the EMA determines that companies actually comply with the agreed studies and measures listed in each relevant PIP.

PRIME designation

In March 2016, the EMA launched an initiative to facilitate development of product candidates in indications, often rare, for which few or no therapies currently exist. The PRIority MEdicines, or PRIME, scheme is intended to encourage product development in areas of unmet medical need and provides accelerated assessment of products representing substantial innovation reviewed under the centralized procedure. Products from small- and medium-sized enterprises, or SMEs, may qualify for earlier entry into the PRIME scheme than larger companies. Many benefits accrue to sponsors of product candidates with PRIME designation, including but not limited to, early and proactive regulatory dialogue with the EMA, frequent discussions on clinical trial designs and other development program elements, and accelerated marketing authorization application assessment once a dossier has been submitted. Importantly, a dedicated agency contact and rapporteur from the CHMP or Committee for Advanced Therapies are appointed early in the PRIME scheme, facilitating increased understanding of the product at EMA's Committee level. A kick-off meeting initiates these relationships and includes a team of multidisciplinary experts at the EMA to provide guidance to the sponsor on the overall development and regulatory strategies.

Periods of authorization and renewals

A marketing authorization is valid for five years in principle and the marketing authorization may be renewed after five years on the basis of a re-evaluation of the risk-benefit balance by the EMA or by the competent authority of the authorizing member state. To this end, the marketing authorization holder must provide the EMA or the competent authority with a consolidated version of the file in respect of quality, safety and efficacy, including all variations introduced since the marketing authorization was granted, at least nine months before the marketing authorization ceases to be valid. Once renewed, the marketing authorization is valid for an unlimited period, unless the European Commission or the competent authority decides, on justified grounds relating to pharmacovigilance, to proceed with one additional five-year renewal. Any authorization which is not followed by the actual placing of the product on the EU market (in case of centralized procedure) or on the market of the authorizing member state within three years after authorization ceases to be valid (the so-called sunset clause).

Regulatory requirements after marketing authorization

As in the United States, both marketing authorization holders and manufacturers of medicinal products are subject to comprehensive regulatory oversight by the EMA and the competent authorities of the individual EU Member States both before and after grant of the manufacturing and marketing authorizations. The holder of an EU marketing authorization for a medicinal product must, for example, comply with EU pharmacovigilance legislation and its related regulations and guidelines which entail many requirements for conducting pharmacovigilance, or the assessment and monitoring of the safety of medicinal products. The manufacturing process for medicinal products in the European Union is also highly regulated and regulators may shut down manufacturing facilities that they believe do not comply with regulations. Manufacturing requires a manufacturing authorization, and the manufacturing authorization holder must comply with various requirements set out in the applicable EU laws, including compliance with EU cGMP standards when manufacturing medicinal products and active pharmaceutical ingredients.

In the European Union, the advertising and promotion of approved products are subject to EU Member States' laws governing promotion of medicinal products, interactions with clinicians, misleading and comparative advertising and unfair commercial practices. In addition, other legislation adopted by individual EU Member States may apply to the advertising and promotion of medicinal products. These laws require that promotional materials and advertising in relation to medicinal products comply with the product's Summary of Product Characteristics, or SmPC, as approved by the competent authorities. Promotion of a medicinal product that does not comply with the SmPC is considered to constitute off-label promotion, which is prohibited in the European Union.

Regulatory exclusivity

In the European Union, new products authorized for marketing (i.e., reference products) qualify for eight years of data exclusivity and an additional two years of market exclusivity upon marketing authorization. The data exclusivity period prevents generic sponsors from relying on the preclinical and clinical trial data contained in the dossier of the reference product when applying for a generic marketing authorization in the European Union during a period of eight years from the date on which the reference product was first authorized in the European Union. The market exclusivity period prevents a successful generic sponsor from commercializing its product in the European Union until ten years have elapsed from the initial authorization of the reference product in the European Union. The ten-year market exclusivity period can be extended to a maximum of eleven years if, during the first eight years of those ten years, the marketing authorization holder obtains an authorization for one or more new therapeutic indications which, during the scientific evaluation prior to their authorization, are held to bring a significant clinical benefit in comparison with existing therapies.

Orphan drug designation and exclusivity

The criteria for designating an orphan medicinal product in the European Union are similar in principle to those in the United States. Under Article 3 of Regulation (EC) 141/2000, a medicinal product may be designated as orphan if (1) it is intended for the diagnosis, prevention or treatment of a life-threatening or chronically debilitating condition, (2) either (a) such condition affects no more than five in 10,000 persons in the European Union when the application is made, or (b) the product, without the benefits derived from orphan status, would not generate sufficient return in the European Union to justify investment and (3) there exists no satisfactory method of diagnosis, prevention or treatment of such condition authorized for marketing in the European Union, or if such a method exists, the product will be of significant benefit to those affected by the condition. The term 'significant benefit' is defined in Regulation (EC) 847/2000 to mean a clinically relevant advantage or a major contribution to patient care.

Orphan medicinal products are eligible for financial incentives such as reduction of fees or fee waivers and are, upon grant of a marketing authorization, entitled to ten years of market exclusivity for the approved therapeutic indication. During this ten year market exclusivity period, the EMA or the competent authorities of the Member States of the EEA, cannot accept an application for a marketing authorization for a similar medicinal product for the same indication. A similar medicinal product is defined as a medicinal product containing a similar active substance or substances as contained in an authorized orphan medicinal product, and which is intended for the same therapeutic indication. The application for orphan designation must be submitted before the application for marketing authorization. The sponsor will receive a fee reduction for the marketing authorization application if the orphan designation has been granted, but not if the designation is still pending at the time the marketing authorization is submitted. Orphan designation does not convey any advantage in, or shorten the duration of, the regulatory review and approval process.

The ten-year market exclusivity in the European Union may be reduced to six years if, at the end of the fifth year, it is established that the product no longer meets the criteria for orphan designation, for example, if the product is sufficiently profitable not to justify maintenance of market exclusivity. Additionally, marketing authorization may be granted to a similar product for the same indication at any time if: (1) the second sponsor can establish that its product, although similar, is safer, more effective or otherwise clinically superior; (2) the sponsor consents to a second orphan medicinal product application; or (3) the sponsor cannot supply enough orphan medicinal product.

Pediatric exclusivity

If a sponsor obtains a marketing authorization in all EU Member States, or a marketing authorization granted in the centralized procedure by the European Commission, and the trial results for the pediatric population are included in the product information, even when negative, the medicine is then eligible for an additional six-month period of qualifying patent protection through extension of the term of the Supplementary Protection Certificate, or SPC, or alternatively a one year extension of the regulatory market exclusivity from ten to eleven years, as selected by the marketing authorization holder.

Patent term extensions

The European Union also provides for patent term extension through Supplementary Protection Certificates, or SPCs. The rules and requirements for obtaining a SPC are similar to those in the United States. An SPC may extend the term of a patent for up to five years after its originally scheduled expiration date and can provide up to a maximum of fifteen years of marketing exclusivity for a product. In certain circumstances, these periods may be extended for six additional months if pediatric exclusivity is obtained. Although SPCs are available throughout the European Union, sponsors must apply on a country-by-country basis. Similar patent term extension rights exist in certain other foreign jurisdictions outside the European Union.

Reimbursement and pricing of prescription pharmaceuticals

In the European Union, similar political, economic and regulatory developments to those in the United States may affect our ability to profitably commercialize our product candidates, if approved. In markets outside of the United States and the European Union, reimbursement and healthcare payment systems vary significantly by country and many countries have instituted price ceilings on specific products and therapies. In many countries, including those of the European Union, the pricing of prescription pharmaceuticals is subject to governmental control and access. In these countries, pricing negotiations with governmental authorities can take considerable time after the receipt of marketing approval for a product. To obtain reimbursement or pricing approval in some countries, pharmaceutical firms may be required to conduct a clinical trial that compares the cost-effectiveness of the product to other available therapies.

Approval of companion diagnostic devices

In the European Union, medical devices such as companion diagnostics must comply with the General Safety and Performance Requirements, or SPRs, detailed in Annex I of the EU Medical Devices Regulation (Regulation (EU) 2017/745), or MDR which came into force on May 26, 2021 and replaced the previously applicable EU Medical Devices Directive (Council Directive 93/42/EEC). Compliance with SPRs and additional requirements applicable to companion medical devices is a prerequisite to be able to affix the CE Mark of Conformity to medical devices, without which they cannot be marketed or sold. To demonstrate compliance with the SPRs, a manufacturer must undergo a conformity assessment procedure, which varies according to the type of medical device and its classification. The MDR is meant to establish a uniform, transparent, predictable, and sustainable regulatory framework across the European Union for medical devices.

Separately, the regulatory authorities in the European Union also adopted a new In Vitro Diagnostic Regulation, or IVDR, (EU) 2017/746, which will become effective in May 2022. The new regulation will replace the In Vitro Diagnostics Directive (IVDD) 98/79/EC. Manufacturers wishing to apply to a notified body for a conformity assessment of their in vitro diagnostic medical device have until May 2022 to update their Technical Documentation to meet the requirements and comply with the new, more stringent Regulation. Once applicable, the regulation will, among other things: strengthen the rules on placing devices on the market and reinforce surveillance once they are available; establish explicit provisions on manufacturers' responsibilities for the follow-up of the quality, performance, and safety of devices placed on the market; improve the traceability of medical devices throughout the supply chain to the end-user or patient through a unique identification number; set up a central database to provide patients, healthcare professionals and the public with comprehensive information on products available in the European Union; and strengthen rules for the assessment of certain high-risk devices, such as implants, which may have to undergo an additional check by experts before they are placed on the market.

General Data Protection Regulation

Many countries outside of the United States maintain rigorous laws governing the privacy and security of personal information. The collection, use, disclosure, transfer, or other processing of personal data, including personal health data, regarding individuals who are located in the EEA, and the processing of personal data that takes place in the EEA, is subject to the General Data Protection Regulation, or GDPR, which became effective on May 25, 2018. The GDPR is wide-ranging in scope and imposes numerous requirements on companies that process personal data, and it imposes heightened requirements on companies that process health and other sensitive data, such as requiring in many situations that a company obtain the consent of the individuals to whom the sensitive personal data relate before processing such data. Examples of obligations imposed by the GDPR on companies processing personal data that fall within the scope of the GDPR include providing information to individuals regarding data processing activities, implementing safeguards to protect the security and confidentiality of personal data, appointing a data protection officer, providing notification of data breaches and taking certain measures when engaging third-party processors.

The GDPR also imposes strict rules on the transfer of personal data to countries outside the EEA, including the United States, and permits data protection authorities to impose large penalties for violations of the GDPR, including potential fines of up to €20 million or 4% of annual global revenues, whichever is greater. The GDPR also confers a private right of action on data subjects and consumer associations to lodge complaints with supervisory authorities, seek judicial remedies, and obtain compensation for damages resulting from violations of the GDPR. Compliance with the GDPR is a rigorous and time-intensive process that may increase the cost of doing business or require companies to change their business practices to ensure full compliance. In July 2020, the Court of Justice of the European Union, or the CJEU, invalidated the EU-U.S. Privacy Shield framework, one of the mechanisms used to legitimize the transfer of personal data from the EEA to the United States. The CJEU decision also drew into question the long-term viability of an alternative means of data transfer, the standard contractual clauses, for transfers of personal data from the EEA to the United States. Following the withdrawal of the United Kingdom from the European Union, the U.K. Data Protection Act 2018 applies to the processing of personal data that takes place in the United Kingdom and includes parallel obligations to those set forth by GDPR.

Brexit and the regulatory framework in the United Kingdom

The United Kingdom's withdrawal from the European Union took place on January 31, 2020. The European Union and the United Kingdom reached an agreement on their new partnership in the Trade and Cooperation Agreement, or the Agreement, which was applied provisionally beginning on January 1, 2021 and which entered into force on May 1, 2021. The Agreement focuses primarily on free trade by ensuring no tariffs or quotas on trade in goods, including healthcare products such as medicinal products. Thereafter, the European Union and the United Kingdom will form two separate markets governed by two distinct regulatory and legal regimes. As such, the Agreement seeks to minimize barriers to trade in goods while accepting that border checks will become inevitable as a consequence that the United Kingdom is no longer part of the single market. As of January 1, 2021, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency, or the MHRA, became responsible for supervising medicines and medical devices in Great Britain, comprising England, Scotland and Wales under domestic law whereas Northern Ireland continues to be subject to EU rules under the Northern Ireland Protocol. The MHRA will rely on the Human Medicines Regulations 2012 (SI 2012/1916) (as amended), or the HMR, as the basis for regulating medicines. The HMR has incorporated into the domestic law the body of EU law instruments governing medicinal products that pre-existed prior to the United Kingdom's withdrawal from the European Union.

Intellectual property

We actively seek to protect the proprietary technology that we consider important to our business, including pursuing patents that cover our ADC platforms, proprietary compositions of matter, ADC product candidates and methods of using and manufacturing the same, as well as any other relevant inventions and improvements that are considered commercially important to the development of our business. We also rely on trade secrets, know-how and continuing technological innovation to develop and maintain our proprietary and intellectual property position.

Our commercial success will depend significantly on our ability to obtain and maintain patents and other proprietary protection for the technology, inventions and improvements we consider important to our business, and to defend our patents, preserve the confidentiality of our trade secrets and operate without infringing the patents and proprietary rights of third parties. Our policy is to seek to protect our proprietary and intellectual property position by, among other methods, filing U.S., international (under Patent Cooperation Treaty, or PCT) and foreign patent applications related to our proprietary technology, inventions and improvements that we consider to be important to the development and implementation of our business. We also believe in protecting our unpatented trade secrets and know-how and continuing our technological innovation to develop our business and to maintain our competitive position.

The term of individual patents depends upon the legal term for patents in the countries in which they are obtained. In most countries, including the United States, the patent term is 20 years from the earliest filing date of a non-provisional patent application. In the United States, a patent's term may be lengthened by patent term adjustment, which compensates a patentee for administrative delays by the USPTO in examining and granting a patent or may be shortened if a patent is terminally disclaimed over an earlier filed patent. The term of a patent that covers a drug or biological product may also be eligible for patent term extension when FDA approval is granted, provided statutory and regulatory requirements are met. In the future, if and when our drug candidates receive approval by the FDA or foreign regulatory authorities, we expect to apply for patent term extensions on issued patents covering those drugs, depending upon the length of the clinical trials for each drug and other factors. There can be no assurance that any of our pending patent applications will issue or that we will benefit from any patent term extension or favorable adjustments to the terms of any of our patents.

As with other biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies, our ability to maintain and solidify our proprietary and intellectual property position for our drug candidates and technologies will depend on our success in obtaining effective patent claims and enforcing those claims if granted. However, our pending patent applications, and any patent applications that we may in the future file or license from third parties, may not result in the issuance of patents. We also cannot predict the breadth of claims that may be allowed or enforced in our patents. Any issued patents that we may currently own or license or may receive in the future may be challenged, invalidated, circumvented or have the scope of their claims narrowed. For example, we cannot be certain of the priority of inventions covered by pending third party patent applications. If third parties prepare and file patent applications in the United States that also claim technology or therapeutics to which we have rights, we may have to participate in interference proceedings in the USPTO to determine priority of invention, which could result in substantial costs to us, even if the eventual outcome is favorable to us, which is highly unpredictable. In addition, because of the extensive time required for clinical development and regulatory review of a drug candidate we may develop, it is possible that, before any of our drug candidates can be commercialized, any related patent may expire or remain in force for only a short period following commercialization, thereby limiting the protection such patent would afford the respective product and any competitive advantage such patent may provide. For more information regarding the risks related to our intellectual property, please see "Risk factors—Risks related to our intellectual property."

As of January 31, 2022, we owned, in all of our patent portfolios, 22 issued U.S. patents, 13 pending non-provisional U.S. patent applications, five pending provisional U.S. patent applications, 102 issued foreign patents, five pending PCT patent applications and 138 pending foreign patent applications (including four allowed foreign patent applications) in a number of foreign jurisdictions, including, but being not limited to, Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, Europe, Eurasia, Gulf Cooperation Council, Hong Kong, Israel, India, Japan, Mexico, Macau, Pakistan, New Zealand, Russia, South Korea, South Africa, and Taiwan. Our 10 issued U.S. patents covering our Fleximer ADC platform are projected to expire in 2032, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions; our two issued U.S. patents covering our Dolaflexin

ADC platform are projected to expire in 2034 and 2038, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions; our one issued U.S. patent covering our STING agonist payload is projected to expire in 2040, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions; our additional nine issued U.S. patents are projected to expire between 2032 and 2037, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions; and any patent that may issue from our pending U.S. applications is projected to expire between 2037 and 2042, in each case, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions. In addition, we have exclusively in licensed four issued U.S. patents and one issued European patent for the NaPi2b antibody from Recepta, which Recepta licensed from Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research. These in-licensed issued U.S. and European patents are projected to expire in 2029, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions. Recepta still owns one pending Brazilian patent application for the NaPi2b antibody, which is not licensed to us. A patent issuing from this Brazilian patent application is projected to expire in 2029. We have also non-exclusively in-licensed from Synaffix certain patents and patent applications for their proprietary site-specific conjugation technology. These in-licensed Synaffix patents and patent applications are seven issued US patents, four pending non-provisional U.S. patent applications, eight issued foreign patents, one pending PCT patent applications and 14 pending foreign patent applications, in a number of foreign jurisdictions, including, but being not limited to, China, Europe, India, Japan, and Netherlands. These in-licensed issued U.S. and European patents are projected to expire from 2031 to 2040, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions. We have so far not filed for patent protection in all national and regional jurisdictions where such protection may be available. In addition, we may decide to abandon national and regional patent applications before they are granted. Finally, the grant proceeding of each national or regional patent is an independent proceeding which may lead to situations in which applications might in some jurisdictions be refused by the relevant registration authorities, while granted by others. It is also quite common that depending on the country, various scopes of patent protection may be granted on the same product candidate or technology.

The intellectual property portfolio of our ADC platforms, our ADC product candidates and components thereof and companion diagnostics are summarized below. Some of these portfolios are in very early stages and prosecution has yet to commence on some of the pending patent applications. Prosecution is a lengthy process, during which the scope of the claims initially submitted for examination by the USPTO may be narrowed (sometimes significantly) by the time they issue, if they issue at all. We expect this to be the case with respect to our pending patent applications referred to below.

Fleximer ADC platform

The intellectual property portfolio for our Fleximer ADC platform is directed to compositions of matter for the Fleximer ADCs, as well as methods of using and making these novel conjugates, compositions of matter for Fleximer drug conjugates prior to conjugation with the antibody or antibody fragment and methods of making the same, and compositions of matter for our proprietary auristatin DolaLock compounds and conjugates thereof (e.g., to Fleximer and/or an antibody or antibody fragment). As of January 31, 2022, we owned 10 issued U.S. patents, one pending non-provisional U.S. patent application, 48 issued foreign patents, and four pending foreign patent applications (including one allowed foreign patent application) in a number of foreign jurisdictions, including, but not limited to, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, Europe, Hong Kong, Israel, India, Japan, Macau, Mexico, Russia, South Korea, and Taiwan. Any U.S. or foreign patent issuing from the pending applications covering the Fleximer ADC platform is projected to expire in 2032, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions.

Dolaflexin ADC platform

The intellectual property portfolio for our Dolaflexin ADC platform is directed to compositions of matter for the Dolaflexin ADCs, as well as methods of using and making these novel conjugates, compositions of matter for Dolaflexin drug conjugates prior to conjugation with the antibody or antibody fragment and methods of making the same. As of January 31, 2022, we owned two issued U.S. patents, 34 issued foreign patent, and 11 pending foreign patent applications in a number of foreign jurisdictions, including, but not limited to, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, Eurasia, Europe, Hong Kong, Israel, India, Japan, South Korea, Mexico, Russia, South Africa and Taiwan. Any U.S. or foreign patent issuing from the pending applications covering Dolaflexin ADC platform is projected to expire in 2034, and any U.S. or foreign patent issuing from the pending applications covering the method of making the Dolaflexin ADC is projected to expire in 2038, excluding any additional term for patent term adjustments or patent term extensions.

UpRi ADC

The intellectual property portfolio for UpRi, our leading NaPi2b ADC product candidate is directed to compositions of matter for our novel ADC based on exclusively in licensed NaPi2b antibody and our Dolaflexin platform, as well as methods of using, making these novel conjugates, methods of administration and companion diagnostics. As of January 31, 2021, we owned four pending non-provisional U.S. patent applications (including one allowed U.S. patent application), 37 pending foreign patent applications, and one pending PCT application directed to the composition of matter for UpRi, methods of using and making same, companion diagnostics for UpRi ADC and UpRi dosing regimens. In addition to patents, we rely upon unpatented trade secrets and know-how and continuing technological innovation to develop and maintain our competitive position. We seek to protect our proprietary information, in part, by executing confidentiality and assignment of inventions agreements with our employees and consultants, which agreements may also include appropriate non-competition and non-solicit agreements depending on level and role, as well as confidentiality agreements with our collaborators and scientific advisors. We have also executed agreements requiring assignment of inventions with selected scientific advisors and collaborators. The confidentiality agreements we enter into are designed to protect our proprietary information and the agreements or clauses requiring assignment of inventions to us are designed to grant us ownership of technologies that are developed through our relationship with the respective counterparty. We cannot guarantee, however, that we will have executed such agreements with all applicable employees and contractors, or that these agreements will afford us adequate protection of our intellectual property and proprietary information rights. Trade secrets and know-how can be difficult to protect. In particular, we anticipate that with respect to our technology platforms, trade secrets and know-how will over time be disseminated within the industry through independent development and public presentations describing the methodology. For more information regarding the risks associated with our trade secrets, please see "Risk factors—Risks related to our intellectual property—Confidentiality agreements with employees and third parties may not prevent unauthorized disclosure of trade secrets and other proprietary information."

Competition

The biotechnology and biopharmaceutical industries, and the oncology subsector, are characterized by rapid evolution of technologies, fierce competition and strong defense of intellectual property. Any product candidates that we successfully develop and commercialize will have to compete with existing therapies and new therapies that may become available in the future. While we believe that our proprietary ADC platforms and scientific expertise provide us with competitive advantages, a wide variety of institutions, including large biopharmaceutical companies, specialty biotechnology companies, academic research departments and public and private research institutions, are actively developing potentially competitive products and technologies. These competitors generally fall within the following categories:

New cancer treatments: Many global pharmaceutical companies, as well as medium and small biotechnology companies, are pursuing new cancer treatments whether small molecules, biologics or ADCs. Any of these treatments could prove to be superior clinically to our products.

ADC platforms: Although Dolaflexin, Dolasynthen, Immunosynthen and other initiatives we have underway are highly differentiated and proprietary, many companies continue to invest in innovation in the ADC field including new payload classes, new conjugation approaches and new targeting moieties. Any of these initiatives could lead to a platform that has superior properties to ours. We are also aware of multiple companies with ADC technologies that may be competitive to our platforms, including Daiichi Sankyo, ImmunoGen, Gilead (Immunomedics), Pfizer and SeaGen. These companies or their partners, including Astellas, AstraZeneca, AbbVie, Genentech/Roche and Takeda, may develop product candidates which compete in the same indications as our current and future product candidates. Multiple companies are also developing immune stimulating ADCs which could compete with our Immunosynthen products, including Bolt Biotherapeutics, Inc., Takeda, and Silverback Therapeutics, Inc. We expect to compete based on our innovative technology and the efficacy, safety and tolerability profile of our ADCs compared to other product candidates but if our ADCs are not demonstrably superior in these respects, we may not be able to compete effectively.

Ovarian cancer: The first indication that we are targeting for UpRi, our most advanced clinical candidate, is ovarian cancer. There are multiple therapies currently available to treat both newly diagnosed and relapsed ovarian cancer, including platinum agents, non-platinum chemotherapy, PARP inhibitors and bevacizumab. In addition, multiple investigational product candidates are in development to treat these ovarian cancer patients, including the following investigational ADCs: mirvetuximab soravtansine (Immunogen), MORAb-202 (Eisai Co., Ltd. and Bristol Myers Squibb) and STRO-002 (Sutro Biopharma). Our ability to compete effectively with these and other emerging ovarian cancer treatments will depend on our ability to differentiate UpRi from these other therapies based on target patient selection, efficacy and tolerability. If we are unable to effectively differentiate UpRi, this will negatively impact our ability to compete in ovarian cancer.

Many of our competitors, either alone or with strategic partners, have substantially greater financial, technical and human resources than we do. Accordingly, our competitors may be more successful than us in obtaining approval for treatments and achieving widespread market acceptance, rendering our treatments obsolete or non-competitive. Accelerated merger and acquisition activity in the biotechnology and biopharmaceutical industries may result in even more resources being concentrated among a smaller number of our competitors. These companies also compete with us in recruiting and retaining qualified scientific and management personnel, establishing clinical trial sites and patient enrollment for clinical trials and acquiring technologies complementary to, or necessary for, our programs. Smaller or early-stage companies may also prove to be significant competitors, particularly through collaborative arrangements with large and established companies. Our commercial opportunity could be substantially limited in the event that our competitors develop and commercialize products that are more effective, safer, more convenient or less expensive than our comparable products. In geographies that are critical to our commercial success, competitors may also obtain regulatory approvals before us, resulting in our competitors building a strong market position in advance of our products' entry. We believe the factors determining the success of our programs will be the efficacy, safety and tolerability of our product candidates.

Employees and Human Capital

As of January 31, 2022, we had 169 full time employees, including 90 with M.D., Ph.D. or other advanced degrees. Of these full time employees, 128 are engaged in research and development and 41 are engaged in general and administrative activities. None of our employees are represented by a labor union or covered by a collective bargaining agreement. We consider our relationship with our employees to be good.

We believe that our future success largely depends upon our continued ability to attract and retain highly skilled employees. Our human capital objectives include, as applicable, identifying, recruiting, retaining, incentivizing and integrating our existing and additional employees, and focusing on employee well-being and workplace safety. We provide our employees with competitive salaries and bonuses, opportunity for equity ownership, development programs that enable continued learning and growth, and a robust employment package that promotes wellness across all aspects of their lives, including healthcare, retirement planning, and paid time off.

We also believe that fostering diversity, equity, and inclusion is a key element to discovering, developing, and bringing therapies to patients with cancer. As of January 31, 2022, 56% of our global workforce and 40% of our leadership (at the executive director level and above) were female. We strive to build a workforce representative of the communities and patients we serve and to nurture an inclusive culture where all voices are welcomed, heard, and respected.

Facilities

Our corporate headquarters are located in Cambridge, Massachusetts. We occupy approximately 45,000 square feet of office and laboratory space that we lease in the multi-tenant building in which our corporate headquarters are located. Our lease expires in March 2026. We have an option to extend the lease term for an additional five years thereafter. We believe that this office and laboratory space is sufficient to meet our current needs and that suitable additional space will be available as and when needed.

ITEM 1A. RISK FACTORS

The following risk factors and other information included in this Annual Report on Form 10-K should be carefully considered. The risks and uncertainties described below are not the only ones we face. Additional risks and uncertainties not presently known to us or that we currently believe to be immaterial may also adversely affect our business. If any of the following risks occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations and future growth prospects could be materially and adversely affected. We undertake no obligation to update any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.

Risks related to development and approval of our ADC product candidates

Failure of a discovery program or product candidate may occur at any stage of preclinical or clinical development, and, because our and our partner's discovery programs and our product candidates are in early stages of preclinical or clinical development, there is a high risk of failure and we or our partners may never succeed in obtaining regulatory approval and generating revenue from such discovery programs or product candidates.

Our early clinical results for UpRi (upifitamab rilsodotin), our lead product candidate, our early preclinical results for XMT-1592 and the early results from preclinical studies or clinical trials of any other current or future product candidates, are not necessarily predictive of the results from our ongoing or future discovery programs, preclinical studies or clinical trials. Promising results in preclinical studies and early encouraging clinical results of a drug candidate may not be predictive of similar results in later-stage preclinical studies or in humans during clinical trials. Many companies in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries have suffered significant setbacks in clinical trials after achieving positive results in earlier stages of clinical development, and we cannot be certain that we will not face similar setbacks. These companies' setbacks have been caused by, among other things, preclinical findings made while clinical trials were underway or safety or efficacy events in preclinical or clinical trials, including previously unreported adverse events. Similarly, the design of a clinical trial can determine whether its results will support approval of a product and flaws in the design of a clinical trial may not become apparent until the clinical trial is well advanced.

Any clinical trials that we may conduct may not demonstrate the efficacy and safety necessary to obtain regulatory approval to market our product candidates. In addition, clinical trial results for one of our product candidates or for competitor products utilizing similar technology, may raise concerns about the safety or efficacy of other products in our pipeline. If the results of our ongoing or future clinical trials are inconclusive with respect to the efficacy of our product candidates or if we do not meet the clinical endpoints with statistical significance or if there are safety concerns or adverse events associated with our product candidates, we may be prevented or delayed in obtaining marketing approval for our product candidates. For example, patients in our ongoing Phase 1b/2 clinical trial of UpRi have experienced serious adverse events, including without limitation death, pneumonitis, renal impairment, abdominal pain, fatigue, vomiting, sepsis, and pyrexia. We expect that certain patients in ongoing and future clinical trials will experience additional serious adverse events, including those that may result in death, as our product candidates progress through clinical development.

There can be significant variability in safety or efficacy results between different clinical trials of the same product candidate due to numerous factors, including changes in trial procedures set forth in protocols, differences in the size and type of the patient populations, changes in and adherence to the dosing regimen and other clinical trial protocols and the rate of dropout among clinical trial participants. Moreover, preclinical and clinical data are often susceptible to varying interpretations and analyses, and many companies that believed their product candidates performed satisfactorily in preclinical studies and clinical trials have nonetheless failed to obtain U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approval. Even if we, or our collaborators, believe that the results of clinical trials of our product candidates warrant marketing approval, the FDA or comparable foreign regulatory authorities may disagree and may not grant marketing approval of our product candidates.

Alternatively, even if we obtain regulatory approval, that approval may be for indications or patient populations that are not as broad as intended or desired or may require labeling that includes significant use or distribution restrictions or safety warnings. We may also be required to perform additional or unanticipated clinical trials to obtain approval or be subject to additional post-marketing testing requirements to maintain regulatory approval. In addition, regulatory authorities may withdraw their approval of a product or impose restrictions on its distribution, such as in the form of a risk evaluation and mitigation strategy (REMS) program. The failure to obtain timely regulatory approval of product candidates, any product marketing limitations or a product withdrawal would negatively impact our business, results of operations and financial condition.

Interim, top-line and preliminary data from our clinical trials that we announce or publish from time to time may change as more patient data become available and are subject to audit and verification procedures that could result in material changes in the final data.

From time to time, we may publish interim, top-line or preliminary data from our clinical trials. Positive preliminary data may not be predictive of such trial's subsequent or overall results. Interim data from clinical trials that we may complete do not necessarily predict final results and are subject to the risk that one or more of the clinical outcomes may materially change as patient enrollment continues and more patient data become available. For example, we have reported interim data from our ongoing Phase 1b/2 clinical trial of UpRi, but we have not yet reported final data from the trial. Preliminary or top-line data also remain subject to audit and verification procedures that may result in the final data being materially different from the preliminary or top-line data we may publish. As a result, interim and preliminary data should be viewed with caution until the final data are available. Adverse differences between preliminary or interim data and final data could significantly harm our business prospects.

We currently have only two ADC product candidates, UpRi and XMT-1592, in clinical trials. A failure of any of our product candidates in clinical development would adversely affect our business and may require us to discontinue development of other ADC product candidates based on the same technology.

UpRi and XMT-1592 are currently our only clinical-stage development product candidates. While we have certain other preclinical programs in development and we intend to develop other product candidates, including XMT-1660 and XMT-2056 each for which we plan to submit investigational new drug, or IND, applications in 2022, it will take additional investment and time for such programs to reach the clinical stage of development. In addition, we have other product candidates in our current pipeline that are based on the same platforms as UpRi and XMT-1592. If either product candidate fails in development as a result of any underlying problem with our platforms, then we may be required to discontinue development of the product candidates that are based on the same technologies. If we were required to discontinue development of UpRi or XMT-1592, or if UpRi or XMT-1592 were to fail to receive regulatory approval or were to fail to achieve sufficient market acceptance, we could be prevented from or significantly delayed in achieving profitability.

Events that may delay or prevent successful commencement, enrollment or completion of clinical trials of our product candidates could result in increased costs to us as well as a delay in obtaining, or failure to obtain, regulatory approval, or cause us to suspend or terminate a clinical trial, which could prevent us from commercializing our product candidates on a timely basis, or at all.

We cannot guarantee that clinical trials, including our ongoing and future anticipated additional clinical trials of UpRi, our lead product candidate, and XMT-1592, will be conducted as planned or completed on schedule, if at all. A failure of one or more clinical trials can occur at any stage of testing, and other events may cause us to temporarily or permanently cease a clinical trial. Events that may prevent successful or timely commencement, enrollment or completion of clinical development include, among others:

- delays in reaching a consensus with regulatory agencies on trial design;
- delays in reaching, or failing to reach, agreement on acceptable terms with prospective clinical research organizations, or CROs, and clinical trial sites;
- difficulties in obtaining required Institutional Review Board, or IRB, or Ethics Committee, or EC, approval at each clinical trial site;
- challenges in recruiting and enrolling suitable patients to participate in clinical trials that meet the criteria of the protocol for the clinical trial;

- imposition of a clinical hold by regulatory agencies or IRBs or ECs for any reason, including safety concerns or after an inspection of clinical operations or trial sites;
- failure by CROs, other third parties or us to adhere to clinical trial requirements;
- failure to perform in accordance with the FDA's good clinical practices, or GCP, or applicable regulatory guidelines in other countries;
- inadequate quantity or quality of a product candidate or other materials necessary to conduct clinical trials, including, for example, delays in the testing, validation, manufacturing or delivery of the product candidates to the clinical sites;
- patients not completing participation in a trials or not returning for post-treatment follow-up, including as a result of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic;
- expected or unexpected safety issues, including occurrence of serious adverse events, or SAEs, associated with our product candidates in clinical trials that are viewed as outweighing the product candidate's potential benefits or reports may arise from preclinical or clinical testing of other similar cancer therapies that raise safety or efficacy concerns about our product candidates;
- changes in regulatory requirements or guidance that require amending or submitting new clinical protocols or submitting additional data;
- lack of adequate funding to continue the clinical trial; or
- geopolitical or other events that unexpectedly disrupt, delay or generally interfere in regional or worldwide operations of clinical trial sites, clinical vendors or other operations relevant to the conduct of relevant development activities.

Delays, including delays caused by the above factors, can be costly and could negatively affect our ability to complete a clinical trial. If we or our partners are not able to successfully complete clinical trials, we or they will not be able to obtain regulatory approval and will not be able to commercialize our product candidates or our partners' product candidates based on our technology.

An inability to enroll sufficient numbers of patients in our clinical trials could result in increased costs and longer development periods for our product candidates.

Clinical trials require sufficient patient enrollment, which is a function of many factors, including:

- the size and nature of the patient population;
- the severity of the disease under investigation;
- the nature and complexity of the trial protocol, including eligibility criteria for the trial;
- the design of the trial;
- the number of clinical trial sites and the proximity of patients to those sites;
- standard of care in the diseases under investigation;
- the commitment of clinical investigators to identify eligible patients;
- clinicians' and patients' perceptions as to the potential advantages and risks of the drug being studied in relation to other available therapies, including any new drugs that may be approved for the indications we are investigating;
- the risk that patients enrolled in clinical trials will drop out of the trials before completion or, because they are late-stage cancer patients, will not survive the full terms of the clinical trials;

- the ability of our clinical trial sites to continue key activities, such as clinical trial site data monitoring and patient visits, due to limitations on travel imposed or recommended by federal or state governments, employers and others as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic or other worldwide events; and

- the risk that patients may be affected by COVID-19 or measures taken in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and are unable to travel to our clinical trial sites.

In addition, our clinical trials will compete with other clinical trials for product candidates that are in the same therapeutic areas as our current and future product candidates. This competition will reduce the number and types of patients available to us, because some patients who might have opted to enroll in our trials may instead opt to enroll in a trial conducted by one of our competitors. Since the number of qualified clinical investigators is limited, we expect to conduct some of our clinical trials at the same clinical trial sites that some of our competitors use, which will reduce the number of patients who are available for our clinical trials at such sites. Moreover, because our current and future product candidates represent a departure from more commonly used methods for cancer treatment, potential patients and their doctors may be inclined to use conventional therapies, such as chemotherapy, rather than enroll patients in our ongoing or any future clinical trial.

Challenges in recruiting and enrolling suitable patients to participate in clinical trials that meet the criteria of the protocol could increase costs and result in delays to our current development plan for UpRi, our lead product candidate, XMT-1592 or any other current or future product candidate.

Our product candidates or ADCs developed or commercialized by our competitors may cause undesirable side effects or have other properties that halt their clinical development, delay or prevent regulatory approval of our product candidates or limit their commercial potential.

Undesirable side effects caused by our product candidates or ADCs being developed or commercialized by our partners or competitors could cause us or regulatory authorities to interrupt, delay or halt clinical trials and could result in a more restrictive label or the denial of regulatory approval by the FDA or other regulatory authorities and potential product liability claims. Further, clinical trials by their nature utilize a sample of the potential patient population. With a limited number of subjects and limited duration of exposure, rare and severe side effects of our product candidates or those of our competitors may only be uncovered with a significantly larger number of patients exposed to the drug. SAEs, including death, deemed to be caused by our product candidates or those of our competitors, either before or after receipt of marketing approval, could have a material adverse effect on the development of our product candidates and our business as a whole.

Patients in our ongoing clinical trials have experienced SAEs, including without limitation death, pneumonitis, renal impairment, abdominal pain, fatigue, vomiting, sepsis, and pyrexia. We expect that certain patients in ongoing and future trials will experience additional SAEs, including those that may result in death, as our product candidates progress through clinical development. These or additional undesirable side effects caused by our product candidates or those of our competitors, either before or after receipt of marketing approval, could result in a number of potentially significant negative consequences, including:

- our clinical trials may be put on hold;

- treatment-related side effects could affect patient recruitment for our clinical trials;

- we may be unable to obtain regulatory approval for our product candidates;

- regulatory authorities may withdraw or limit their approvals of our product candidates;

- regulatory authorities may require the addition of labeling statements, such as a contraindication, black box warnings or additional warnings;

- the FDA may require development of a REMS with Elements to Assure Safe Use as a condition of approval or post-approval;

- we may decide to remove such product candidates from the marketplace;

- we may be subject to regulatory investigations and government enforcement actions;

- we could be sued and held liable for harm caused to patients; and
- our reputation may suffer.

Any of these events could prevent us from achieving or maintaining market acceptance of our product candidates and could substantially increase commercialization costs.

We may choose not to develop a potential product candidate, or we may suspend or terminate one or more discovery or preclinical programs or our product candidates.

At any time and for any reason, we may determine that one or more of our discovery programs, preclinical programs or product candidates does not have sufficient potential to warrant the allocation of resources toward such program or product candidate. Furthermore, because we have limited financial and personnel resources, we have placed significant focus on the development of our product candidates UpRi and XMT-1592. Accordingly, we may choose not to develop a product candidate or elect to suspend or terminate one or more of our discovery or preclinical programs. If we suspend or terminate a program or product candidate in which we have invested significant resources, we will have expended resources on a program or product candidate that will not provide a full return on our investment. We may also cease developing a product candidate for a particular indication. For example, in November 2021, we determined to cease developing UpRi as a single agent in patients with NSCLC and determined to focus future development on patients with ovarian cancer. As a result, we may have missed an opportunity to have allocated those resources to potentially more productive uses, including existing or future programs or product candidates. If we do not accurately evaluate the commercial potential or target market for a particular future product candidate, we may relinquish valuable rights to future product candidates through collaboration, licensing or other royalty arrangements.

We or our partners may fail to discover and develop additional potential product candidates.

Our and our partners' research programs to identify new product candidates will require substantial technical, financial and human resources, and we or our partners may be unsuccessful in our or their efforts to identify new product candidates. If we or our partners are unable to identify suitable additional product candidates for preclinical and clinical development, our or their ability to develop product candidates and our ability to obtain revenues from commercializing our products or to receive royalties from our partners' sales of their products in future periods could be compromised, which could result in significant harm to our financial position and adversely impact our stock price.

Risks related to our financial position and need for additional capital

We have incurred net losses since our inception, we have no products approved for commercial sale and we anticipate that we will continue to incur substantial operating losses for the foreseeable future. We may never achieve or sustain profitability.

We have incurred net losses since our inception. Our net loss was $170.1 million for the year ended December 31, 2021. As of December 31, 2021, we had an accumulated deficit of $450.5 million. We do not know when or whether we will become profitable. To date, we have not commercialized any products and therefore have never generated any revenues from the sale of products, and we do not expect to generate any product revenues in the foreseeable future. Our losses have resulted principally from costs incurred in our discovery and development activities. Our net losses may fluctuate significantly from quarter to quarter and year to year.

We have devoted most of our financial resources to research and development, including our clinical and preclinical development activities. To date, we have financed our operations primarily with the proceeds from our initial public offering, our follow-on public offerings in 2019 and 2020, the use of our at-the-market, or ATM, equity offering program, and our strategic partnerships. The amount of our future net losses will depend, in part, on the rate of our future expenditures. We have not completed pivotal clinical trials for any product candidate and only have two product candidates in clinical trials. It will be several years, if ever, before we have a product candidate ready for commercialization. Even if we obtain regulatory approval to market a product candidate, our future revenues would depend upon the size of the market or markets in which our product candidates received such approval and our ability to achieve sufficient market acceptance, reimbursement from third-party payors and adequate market share for our product candidates in those markets.

We expect to continue to incur significant expenses and operating losses over the next several years. We anticipate that our expenses will increase significantly in connection with our ongoing activities, as we:

- continue clinical development activities for our clinical product candidates UpRi and XMT-1592;

- develop a diagnostic assay for the NaPi2b biomarker;
- complete IND-enabling studies for our preclinical development candidates XMT-2056 and XMT-1660;
- continue activities to discover, validate and develop additional product candidates;
- obtain marketing approvals for our current and future product candidates for which we complete clinical trials;
- develop a sustainable and scalable manufacturing process for our product candidates, including establishing and maintaining commercially viable supply and manufacturing relationships with third parties;
- address any competing technological and market developments;
- maintain, expand and protect our intellectual property portfolio; and
- hire additional research, development and general and administrative personnel.

If we are required by the FDA or any equivalent foreign regulatory authority to perform clinical trials or preclinical trials in addition to those we currently expect to conduct, or if there are any delays in completing the clinical trials of UpRi, XMT-1592, or any other current or future product candidates, our expenses could increase.

To become and remain profitable, we must succeed in developing our product candidates, obtaining regulatory approval for them, and manufacturing, marketing and selling those products for which we may obtain regulatory approval. We may not succeed in these activities, and we may never generate revenue from product sales or strategic partnerships in an amount sufficient to achieve profitability. Even if we achieve profitability in the future, we may not be able to sustain profitability in subsequent periods. Our failure to become or remain profitable would depress our market value and could impair our ability to raise capital, expand our business, discover or develop other product candidates or continue our operations.

We have a credit facility that requires us to comply with certain operating covenants and places restrictions on our operating and financial flexibility.

In October 2021, we entered into a Loan and Security Agreement, or the New Credit Facility, with Oxford Finance LLC as the collateral agent and a lender, and SVB as a lender, together, the Lenders. Pursuant to the New Credit Facility, as amended in February 2022, we may borrow up to an aggregate of $100 million, which includes $60 million available immediately, $20 million in a tranche that is subject to meeting certain development milestones, and an additional tranche of $20 million, which is subject to conditional approval from the Lenders. The New Credit Facility is secured by substantially all of our personal property owned or later acquired, excluding intellectual property (but including the right to payments and proceeds from intellectual property), and a negative pledge on intellectual property.

The New Credit Facility also includes customary representations and warranties, affirmative and negative covenants and conditions to drawdowns, as well as customary events of default. Certain of the customary negative covenants limit our ability, among other things, to incur future debt, grant liens, make investments, make acquisitions, distribute dividends, make certain restricted payments and sell assets, subject in each case to certain exceptions. Our failure to comply with these covenants would result in an event of default under the Loan Agreement and could result in the acceleration of the obligations we owe pursuant to the New Credit Facility.

We will require substantial additional financing to achieve our goals, and a failure to obtain this necessary capital when needed could force us to delay, limit, reduce or terminate our product development or commercialization efforts.

Our cash and cash equivalents were $177.9 million as of December 31, 2021. We have utilized substantial amounts of cash since our inception and expect that we will continue to expend substantial resources for the foreseeable future developing UpRi, XMT-1592, and any other current or future product candidates. These expenditures may include costs associated with research and development, conducting preclinical studies and clinical trials, potentially obtaining regulatory approvals and manufacturing products, as well as marketing and selling products approved for sale, if any, and potentially acquiring new technologies. In addition, other unanticipated costs may arise. Because the outcome of our planned and anticipated clinical trials is highly uncertain, we cannot reasonably estimate the actual amounts necessary to successfully complete the development and commercialization of our product candidates. Our costs will increase if we experience any delays in our clinical trials for UpRi, XMT-1592 or any other current or future product candidates, including delays in enrollment of patients. We also incur costs associated with operating as a public company, hiring additional personnel and expanding our facilities.

Our future capital requirements depend on many factors, including:

- the scope, progress, results and costs of researching and developing UpRi, XMT-1592 and any other current or future product candidates and conducting preclinical studies and clinical trials;
- the timing of, and the costs involved in, obtaining regulatory approvals for UpRi, XMT-1592 and any other current or future product candidates if preclinical studies and clinical trials are successful;
- the cost of manufacturing UpRi, XMT-1592 and any other current or future product candidates for clinical trials in preparation for regulatory approval and in preparation for commercialization;
- the cost of commercialization activities for UpRi, XMT-1592 and any other current or future product candidates, if any product candidates are approved for sale, including manufacturing, marketing, sales and distribution costs;
- our ability to establish and maintain strategic partnerships, licensing or other arrangements and the financial terms of such agreements;
- the costs involved in preparing, filing, prosecuting, maintaining, defending and enforcing patent claims, including litigation costs and the outcome of such litigation;
- the timing, receipt and amount of sales of, or royalties on, our future products, if any, or products developed by our partners;
- the emergence of competing cancer therapies and other adverse market developments; and
- the requirement for or the cost of developing companion diagnostics and/or complementary diagnostics.

As of December 31, 2021, we had cash and cash equivalents of $177.9 million and, subsequently, we received a $40 million upfront payment under the Janssen Collaboration and $45.6 million of net proceeds received from sales of our common stock under our 2020 ATM. In addition, we currently have the option to borrow $35 million under the New Credit Facility. Taken together, we believe that our current cash and cash equivalents plus the available borrowings under the New Credit Facility will be sufficient to fund our current operating plan commitments into the second half of 2023. However, we have based these estimates on assumptions that may prove to be wrong, and our operating plan may change as a result of many factors currently unknown to us and we may need additional funds sooner than planned. Additional funds may not be available when we need them on terms that are acceptable to us, or at all. Our ability to borrow funds under the New Credit Facility is subject to us complying with the applicable covenants at the time we request a drawdown. If adequate funds are not available to us on a timely basis, we may be required to delay, limit, reduce or terminate preclinical studies, clinical trials or other development activities for one or more of our product candidates or delay, limit, reduce or terminate our establishment of sales and marketing capabilities or other activities that may be necessary to commercialize our product candidates. In addition, we may seek additional capital due to favorable market conditions or strategic considerations even if we believe we have sufficient funds for our current or future operating plans.

Raising additional capital may cause dilution to our existing stockholders, restrict our operations or require us to relinquish rights to our technologies or ADC product candidates.

Until such time, if ever, as we can generate substantial product revenues, we expect to finance our capital need through a variety of means, including through private and public equity offerings, debt financings, collaborations, strategic alliances and licensing arrangements. To the extent that we raise additional capital through the sale of equity or convertible debt securities, the ownership interests of our common stockholders will be diluted, and the terms of such equity or convertible debt securities may include liquidation or other preferences that are senior to or otherwise adversely affect the rights of our common stockholders. Additional debt financing, if available, may involve agreements that include covenants limiting or restricting our ability to take certain actions, such as incurring future debt, making capital expenditures, declaring dividends or encumbering our assets to secure future indebtedness, each of which could adversely impact our ability to conduct our business and execute our operating plan. If we raise additional funds through strategic partnerships with third parties, we may have to relinquish valuable rights to our technologies, including our platforms, or product candidates, or grant licenses on terms that are not favorable to us. If we are unable to raise additional funds through equity or debt financing when needed, we may be required to delay, limit, reduce or terminate our product development or commercialization efforts for UpRi, XMT-1592, or any other current or future product candidates, or grant rights to third parties to develop and market product candidates that we would otherwise prefer to develop and market ourselves.

We may expend our resources to pursue a particular product candidate and fail to capitalize on product candidates that may be more profitable or for which there is a greater likelihood of success.

Because we have limited financial and managerial resources, we focus on specific product candidates. As a result, we may forgo or delay pursuit of opportunities with other product candidates that later prove to have greater commercial potential. Our resource allocation decisions may cause us to fail to capitalize on viable commercial products or profitable market opportunities. Failure to properly assess potential product candidates could result in our focus on product candidates with low market potential, which would harm our business and financial condition. Our spending on current and future research and development programs and product candidates for specific indications may not yield any commercially viable product candidates. If we do not accurately evaluate the commercial potential or target market for a particular product candidate, we may relinquish valuable rights to that product candidate through partnering, licensing or other royalty arrangements in cases in which it would have been more advantageous for us to retain sole development and commercialization rights to such product candidate.

Risks related to our reliance on third parties

Because we rely on third-party manufacturing and supply partners, our supply of research and development, preclinical and clinical development materials may become limited or interrupted or may not be of satisfactory quantity or quality.

We rely on third-party contract manufacturers to manufacture our preclinical and clinical trial product supplies, and we lack the internal resources and the capability to manufacture any product candidates on a clinical or commercial scale. The facilities used by our contract manufacturers to manufacture the active pharmaceutical ingredient and final drug product must be acceptable to the FDA and other comparable foreign regulatory agencies pursuant to inspections that would be conducted after we submit our marketing application or relevant foreign regulatory submission to the applicable regulatory agency. There can be no assurance that our preclinical and clinical development product supplies will be sufficient, uninterrupted or of satisfactory quality or continue to be available at acceptable prices. If our contract manufacturers cannot successfully manufacture material that conforms to our specifications and the strict regulatory requirements of the FDA or applicable foreign regulatory agencies, they will not be able to secure or maintain regulatory approval for their manufacturing facilities. Any replacement of our manufacturers could require significant effort and expertise because there may be a limited number of qualified replacements.

The manufacturing process for a product candidate is subject to FDA and foreign regulatory authority review. Suppliers and manufacturers must meet applicable manufacturing requirements and undergo rigorous facility and process validation tests required by regulatory authorities in order to comply with regulatory standards, such as cGMP. We have no direct control over our contract manufacturers' ability to maintain adequate quality control, quality assurance and qualified personnel. In the event that any of our manufacturers fails to comply with regulatory requirements or to perform its obligations to us in relation to quality, timing or otherwise, or if our supply of components or other materials becomes limited or interrupted for other reasons, we may be forced to manufacture the materials ourselves, for which we currently do not have the capabilities or resources, or enter into an agreement with another third party, which we may not be able to do on reasonable terms, if at all. In some cases, the technical skills or technology required to manufacture our product candidates may be unique or proprietary to the original manufacturer and we may have difficulty transferring such skills or technology to another third party and a feasible alternative may not exist. These factors would increase our reliance on such manufacturer or require us to obtain a license from such manufacturer in order to have another third-party manufacture our product candidates. If we are required to change manufacturers for any reason, we will be required to verify that the new manufacturer maintains facilities and procedures that comply with quality standards and with all applicable regulations and guidelines. The delays associated with the verification of a new manufacturer could negatively affect our ability to develop product candidates in a timely manner or within budget. Our reliance on contract manufacturers also exposes us to the possibility that they, or third parties with access to their facilities, will have access to and may appropriate our trade secrets or other proprietary information.

We expect to continue to rely on third-party manufacturers if we receive regulatory approval for any product candidate. To the extent that we have existing, or enter into future, manufacturing arrangements with third parties, we will depend on these third parties to perform their obligations in a timely manner consistent with contractual and regulatory requirements, including those related to quality control and assurance. If we are unable to obtain or maintain third-party manufacturing for product candidates, or to do so on commercially reasonable terms, we may not be able to develop and commercialize our product candidates successfully. Our or a third party's failure to execute on our manufacturing requirements and comply with cGMP could adversely affect our business in a number of ways, including:

- a delay or inability to initiate or continue clinical trials of product candidates under development;
- delay in submitting regulatory applications, or delay or failure to receive regulatory approvals, for product candidates;

- loss of the cooperation of an existing or future strategic partner;
- subjecting third-party manufacturing facilities or our manufacturing facilities to additional inspections by regulatory authorities;
- a requirement to cease distribution or to recall batches of our product candidates;
- in the event of approval to market and commercialize a product candidate, an inability to meet commercial demands for our products; and
- fines, adverse publicity, and civil and criminal enforcement and sanctions.

We, or our third-party manufacturers, may be unable to successfully scale-up manufacturing of our ADC product candidates in sufficient quality and quantity, which would delay or prevent us from developing our ADC product candidates and commercializing approved products, if any.

In order to conduct clinical trials of our product candidates and commercialize any approved product candidates, we, or our manufacturing partners, will need to manufacture them in large quantities. We, or our manufacturing partners, may be unable to successfully increase the manufacturing capacity for any of our product candidates in a timely or cost-effective manner, or at all. In addition, quality issues may arise during scale-up activities. If we, or any manufacturing partners, are unable to successfully scale up the manufacture of our product candidates in sufficient quality and quantity, the development, testing and clinical trials of that product candidate may be delayed or infeasible, and regulatory approval or commercial launch of any resulting product may be delayed or not obtained, which could significantly harm our business. We have evaluated which third-party manufacturers to engage for scale-up to commercial supply of our product candidates, including UpRi and XMT-1592, and we have begun to transfer and scale-up certain manufacturing activities. If we are unable to obtain or maintain third-party manufacturing for commercial supply of our product candidates, or to do so on commercially reasonable terms, we may not be able to develop and commercialize our product candidates successfully.

We rely on third parties to conduct preclinical studies and clinical trials for UpRi and XMT-1592 and if such third parties do not properly, timely and successfully perform their obligations to us, we may not be able to obtain regulatory approvals for UpRi, XMT-1592, or any other current or future ADC product candidates.

We designed the ongoing clinical trials for UpRi and XMT-1592, and we intend to design any future clinical trials for any future unpartnered product candidates that we may develop if preclinical studies are successful. However, we rely on CROs, clinical sites, investigators and other third parties to assist in managing, monitoring and otherwise carrying out many of these trials. As a result, we have less direct control over the conduct, timing and completion of these clinical trials and the management of data developed through clinical trials than would be the case if we were relying entirely upon our own staff. These CROs, investigators and other third parties are not our employees and we have limited control over the amount of time and resources that they dedicate to our programs. We compete with many other companies for the resources of these third parties. These third parties may have contractual relationships with other entities, some of which may be our competitors, which may draw time and resources from our programs. The third parties with whom we contract might not be diligent, careful or timely in conducting our preclinical studies or clinical trials, or complying with cGLP or cGCP, as applicable, resulting in the preclinical studies or clinical trials being delayed or unsuccessful.

The third parties on whom we rely generally may terminate their engagements at any time, and having to enter into alternative arrangements would delay development and commercialization of our product candidates. Communicating with outside parties can also be challenging, potentially leading to mistakes as well as difficulties in coordinating activities. Outside parties may:

- have staffing difficulties;
- fail to comply with contractual obligations;
- experience regulatory compliance issues;
- undergo changes in priorities or become financially distressed; or
- form relationships with other entities, some of which may be our competitors.

The FDA and comparable foreign regulatory authorities require compliance with regulations and standards, including GCP, for designing, conducting, monitoring, recording, analyzing and reporting the results of clinical trials to assure that the data and results are credible and accurate and that the rights, integrity and confidentiality of trial participants are protected. Although we rely, and intend to continue to rely, on third parties to conduct our clinical trials, they are not our employees, and we are responsible for ensuring that each of these clinical trials is conducted in accordance with its general investigational plan, protocol and other requirements. Our reliance on these third parties for research and development activities will reduce our control over these activities but will not relieve us of our responsibilities. For any violations of laws and regulations during the conduct of our clinical trials, we could be subject to untitled and warning letters or enforcement action that may include civil penalties up to and including criminal prosecution.

If these third parties do not successfully carry out their duties under their agreements, if the quality or accuracy of the data they obtain is compromised due to their failure to adhere to clinical trial protocols or to regulatory requirements, or if they otherwise fail to comply with clinical trial protocols or meet expected deadlines, the clinical trials of our product candidates may not meet regulatory requirements. The FDA enforces GCP regulations through periodic inspections of clinical trial sponsors, principal investigators and trial sites. If we or our CROs fail to comply with applicable GCPs or other regulatory requirements, the clinical data generated in our clinical trials may be deemed unreliable, third parties may need to be replaced, we may be subject to negative publicity, fines and civil or criminal sanctions, and preclinical development activities or clinical trials may be extended, delayed, suspended or terminated. If any of these events occur, we may not be able to obtain regulatory approval of our product candidates on a timely basis or at all.

We depend on strategic partnerships with other companies to assist in the research, development and commercialization of our ADC platforms and ADC product candidates. If our existing partners do not perform as expected, this may negatively affect our ability to commercialize our ADC product candidates, generate revenues through technology licensing, or otherwise negatively affect our business.

We have established strategic partnerships and intend to continue to establish strategic partnerships with third parties to research, develop and commercialize our platforms and existing and future product candidates. In February 2022, we entered into a collaboration agreement with Janssen Biotech, Inc. for the research, development and commercialization of ADC candidates leveraging our Dolasynthen platform. We had also entered into a collaboration agreement with Merck KGaA for the development and commercialization of ADC candidates leveraging our Dolaflexin platform. Under these collaborations, we will depend on our partners to design and conduct their clinical trials. As a result, we will not be able to control or oversee the conduct of these programs by our partners and those programs may not be successful, which may negatively impact our business operations. In addition, if any of these partners withdraw support for these programs or proposed products or otherwise impair their development or experience negative results, our business and our product candidates could be negatively affected.

Our partners may terminate their agreements with us for cause under certain circumstances or at will in certain cases and discontinue use of our technologies. In addition, we cannot control the amount and timing of resources our partners may devote to products utilizing or incorporating our technology. Moreover, our relationships with our partners may divert significant time and effort of our scientific staff and management team and require effective allocation of our resources to multiple internal and collaborative projects. Our partners may fail to perform their obligations under the collaboration agreements or may not perform their obligations in a timely manner. If conflicts arise between our partners and us, the other party may act in a manner adverse to us and could limit our ability to implement our strategies. If any of our partners terminate or breach our agreements with them, or otherwise fail to complete their obligations in a timely manner, it may have a detrimental effect on our financial position by reducing or eliminating the potential for us to receive technology access and license fees, milestones and royalties, reimbursement of development costs, as well as possibly requiring us to devote additional efforts and incur costs associated with pursuing internal development of product candidates. Furthermore, if our partners do not prioritize and commit sufficient resources to programs associated with our product candidates or collaboration product candidates, we or our partners may be unable to commercialize these product candidates, which would limit our ability to generate revenue and become profitable.

Our partners may separately pursue competing products, therapeutic approaches or technologies to develop treatments for the diseases targeted by us or our partners. Competing products, either developed by the partners or to which the partners have rights, may result in the withdrawal of partner support for our product candidates. Even if our partners continue their contributions to the strategic partnerships, they may nevertheless determine not to actively pursue the development or commercialization of any resulting products. Additionally, if our partners pursue different clinical or regulatory strategies with their product candidates based on our platforms or technologies, adverse events with their product candidates could negatively affect our product candidates utilizing similar technologies. Any of these developments could harm our product development efforts.

To date, we have depended on a small number of partners for a substantial portion of our revenue. The loss of any one of these partners could result in a material decline in our revenue.

We have entered into strategic partnerships with a limited number of companies. To date, a substantial portion of our revenue has resulted from payments made under agreements with our strategic partners, and we expect that a portion of our revenue will continue to come from strategic partnerships. The loss of any of our partners, or the failure of our partners to perform their obligations under their agreements with us, including paying license or technology fees, milestone payments, royalties or reimbursements, could have a material adverse effect on our financial performance. Payments under our existing and future strategic partnerships are also subject to significant fluctuations in both timing and amount, which could cause our revenue to fall below the expectations of securities analysts and investors and cause a decrease in our stock price.

We may seek to establish additional strategic partnerships, and if we are not able to establish them on commercially reasonable terms, or maintain them, we may have to alter our development and commercialization plans.

We continue to strategically evaluate our partnerships and, as appropriate, we expect to enter into additional strategic partnerships in the future, including potentially with major biotechnology or biopharmaceutical companies. We face significant competition in seeking appropriate partners for our product candidates, and the negotiation process is time-consuming and complex. In order for us to successfully partner our product candidates, potential partners must view these product candidates as economically valuable in markets they determine to be attractive in light of the terms that we are seeking and other available products for licensing by other companies. Even if we are successful in our efforts to establish strategic partnerships, the terms that we agree upon may not be favorable to us, and we may not be able to maintain such strategic partnerships if, for example, development or approval of a product candidate is delayed or sales of an approved product are disappointing. Any delay in entering into strategic partnership agreements related to our product candidates could delay the development and commercialization of such candidates and reduce their competitiveness even if they reach the market. If we are not able to generate revenue under our strategic partnerships when and in accordance with our expectations or the expectations of industry analysts, this failure could harm our business and have an immediate adverse effect on the trading price of our common stock.

If we fail to establish and maintain additional strategic partnerships related to our unpartnered product candidates, we will bear all of the risk and costs related to the development of any such product candidate, and we may need to seek additional financing, hire additional employees and otherwise develop expertise, such as regulatory expertise, for which we have not budgeted. If we were not successful in seeking additional financing, hiring additional employees or developing additional expertise, our cash burn rate would increase or we would need to take steps to reduce our rate of product candidate development. This could negatively affect the development of any unpartnered product candidate.

Risks related to commercialization of our ADC product candidates

Our future commercial success depends upon attaining significant market acceptance of our ADC product candidates, if approved, among physicians, patients and health care payors.

Even if we obtain regulatory approval for UpRi, XMT-1592, or any other current or future product candidates that we may develop or acquire in the future, the product candidate may not gain market acceptance among physicians, health care payors, patients and the broader healthcare community. Market acceptance of any approved products depends on a number of factors, including:

- the efficacy and safety of the product, as demonstrated in clinical trials;
- the indications for which the product is approved and the label approved by regulatory authorities for use with the product, including any warnings that may be required on the label;
- acceptance by physicians and patients of the product as a safe and effective treatment;
- the cost, safety and efficacy of treatment in relation to alternative treatments;
- the availability of adequate reimbursement and pricing by third-party payors and government authorities;
- relative convenience and ease of administration;
- the prevalence and severity of adverse side effects; and

Schedule A

Durable Automatic Sale Instruction

This Durable Automatic Sale Instruction is being delivered to Mersana Therapeutics, Inc. (the "Company") by the undersigned on the date set forth below.

I hereby acknowledge that the Company has granted, or may in the future from time to time grant, to me restricted stock units ("RSUs") under the Company's equity incentive plans as in effect from time to time.

I acknowledge that upon the vesting dates applicable to any such RSUs, I will have compensation income equal to the fair market value of the shares of the Company's common stock subject to the RSU that vest on such date and that the Company is required to withhold income and employment taxes in respect of that compensation income on the applicable vesting date.

I desire to establish a process to satisfy such withholding obligation in respect of all RSUs that have been, or may in the future be, granted by the Company to me through an automatic sale of a portion of the shares of the Company's common stock that would otherwise be issued to me on each applicable vesting date, such portion to be in an amount sufficient to satisfy such withholding obligation, with the proceeds of such sale delivered to the Company in satisfaction of such withholding obligation.

I understand that the Company has arranged for the administration and execution of its equity incentive plans and the sale of securities by plan participants thereunder pursuant to an Internet-based platform administered by a third party (the "Agent") and the Agent's designated brokerage partner.

Upon any vesting of my RSUs from and after the date of this Durable Automatic Sale Instruction, I hereby appoint the Agent (or any successor administrator) to automatically sell such number of shares of the Company's common stock issuable with respect to my RSUs that vest as is sufficient to generate net proceeds sufficient to satisfy the Company's minimum statutory withholding obligations with respect to the income recognized by me upon the vesting of the RSUs (based on minimum statutory withholding rates for all tax purposes, including payroll and social security taxes, that are applicable to such income), and the Company shall receive such net proceeds in satisfaction of such tax withholding obligation.

I hereby appoint the Chief Executive Officer, the Chief Financial Officer, the Chief Legal Officer and the Treasurer, and any of them acting alone and with full power of substitution, to serve as my attorneys in fact to arrange for the sale of shares of common stock in accordance with these durable automatic sale instructions. I agree to execute and deliver such documents, instruments and certificates as may reasonably be required in connection with the sale of the shares of common stock pursuant to these durable automatic sale instructions.

By signing below, I hereby represent to the Company that, as of the date hereof, I am not aware of any material nonpublic information about the Company or its common stock and that I am not prohibited from entering into these durable automatic sale instructions by the Company's insider trading policy or otherwise. I have structured these automatic sale instructions to constitute a "binding contract" relating to the sale of common stock, consistent with the affirmative defense to liability under Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 under Rule 10b5-1(c) promulgated under such Act.

MERSANA THERAPEUTICS, INC.
2022 INDUCEMENT STOCK INCENTIVE PLAN

NON-STATUTORY STOCK OPTION AGREEMENT

This agreement (this "Agreement") evidences a stock option granted by the Company to the individual named above (the "Optionee"), pursuant to and subject to the terms of the Mersana Therapeutics, Inc. 2022 Inducement Stock Incentive Plan (as from time to time amended and in effect, the "Plan").

1. Meaning of Certain Terms. Except as otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms used herein have the same meaning as in the Plan. The following terms have the following meanings:

(a) "Beneficiary": In the event of the Optionee's death, the beneficiary named in the written designation (in a form acceptable to the Administrator) most recently filed with the Administrator by the Optionee prior to the Optionee's death and not subsequently revoked, or, if there is no such designated beneficiary, the executor or administrator of the Optionee's estate. An effective beneficiary designation will be treated as having been revoked only upon receipt by the Administrator, prior to the Optionee's death, of an instrument of revocation in a form acceptable to the Administrator.

(b) "Option Holder": The Optionee or, if at the relevant time the Stock Option has passed to a Beneficiary, the Beneficiary.

2. Grant of Stock Option. In consideration of the employment services to be rendered to the Company by the Optionee and as an inducement material for the Optionee to enter into employment with the Company, the Company grants to the Optionee on the date set forth above (the "Date of Grant") an option (the "Stock Option") to purchase, pursuant to and subject to the terms set forth in this Agreement and in the Plan, up to the number of shares of Stock set forth above (the "Shares"), with an exercise price per Share as set forth above, in each case, subject to adjustment pursuant to Section 7 of the Plan in respect of transactions occurring after the date hereof.

The Stock Option evidenced by this Agreement is a non-statutory option (that is, an option that does not qualify as an incentive stock option under Section 422 of the Code) and is granted to the Optionee pursuant to the inducement grant exception under Nasdaq Stock Market Rule 5635(c)(4), as an inducement that is material to the Optionee's entering into employment with the Company.

3. Vesting; Method of Exercise; Cessation of Service.

(a) Vesting. The term "vest" as used herein with respect to the Stock Option or any portion thereof means to become exercisable and the term "vested" as applied to any outstanding Stock Option means that the Stock Option is then exercisable, subject, in each case, to the terms of the Plan. [Unless earlier terminated, forfeited, relinquished or expired, the Stock Option will vest as to 25% of the Shares underlying such Stock Option upon the first anniversary of the Vesting Commencement Date, and as to 6.25% of the Shares underlying such Stock Option on the last day of each three month period thereafter, in each case, with the number of Shares that vest on any such date being rounded down to the nearest whole share and the Stock Option becoming vested as to 100% of the Shares on the fourth anniversary of the Vesting Commencement Date][1], subject, in each case, to the Optionee remaining in continuous Service from the date of this Agreement through such vesting date.

(b) Exercise of the Stock Option. No portion of the Stock Option may be exercised until such portion vests. Each election to exercise any vested portion of the Stock Option will be subject to the terms and conditions of the Plan and must be in written or electronic form acceptable to the Administrator, signed (including by electronic signature) by the Option Holder (or in such other form as is acceptable to the Administrator). Each such written or electronic exercise election must be received by the Company at its principal office or by such other party as the Administrator may prescribe and be accompanied by payment in full of the exercise price as provided in the Plan. The latest date on which the Stock Option or any portion thereof may be exercised is the 10th anniversary of the Date of Grant (the "Final Exercise Date") and, if not exercised by such date, the Stock Option or any remaining portion thereof will thereupon immediately terminate.

(c) Cessation of Service. If the Optionee's Service ceases, except as expressly provided for in an employment or other individual agreement between the Optionee and the Company or its Affiliate, the Stock Option, to the extent not already vested, will be immediately forfeited, and any vested portion of the Stock Option that is then outstanding will be treated as provided in the Plan.

4. Forfeiture; Recovery of Compensation.

(a) The Stock Option, and the proceeds from the exercise or disposition of the Stock Option or the Shares, will be subject to forfeiture and disgorgement to the Company, with interest and related earnings, if at any time the Optionee is not in compliance with all applicable provisions of this Agreement and the Plan.

(b) By accepting, or being deemed to have accepted, the Stock Option, the Optionee expressly acknowledges and agrees that his or her rights, and those of any permitted transferee of the Stock Option, under the Stock Option, including the right to any Stock acquired under the Stock Option or proceeds from the disposition thereof, are subject to Section 6(a)(4) of the Plan (including any successor provision). Nothing in the preceding sentence may be construed as limiting the general application of Section 8 of this Agreement.

5. Nontransferability. The Stock Option may not be transferred except as expressly permitted under Section 6(a)(2) of the Plan.

6. Withholding. The exercise of the Stock Option will give rise to "wages" subject to withholding. The Optionee expressly acknowledges and agrees that the Optionee's rights hereunder, including the right to be issued Shares upon exercise, are subject to the Optionee promptly paying to the Company in cash or by check (or by such other means as may be acceptable to the Administrator) all taxes required to be withheld. No Shares will be issued pursuant to the exercise of the Stock Option unless and until the person exercising the Stock Option has remitted to the Company an amount in cash sufficient to satisfy any federal, state, or local withholding tax requirements, or has made other arrangements satisfactory to the Company with respect to such taxes. The Optionee authorizes the Company and its subsidiaries to withhold such amount from any amounts otherwise owed to the Optionee, but nothing in this sentence may be construed as relieving the Optionee of any liability for satisfying his or her obligation under the preceding provisions of this Section.

7. Effect on Service. Neither the grant of the Stock Option, nor the issuance of Shares upon exercise of the Stock Option, will give the Optionee any right to be retained in the employ or service of the Company or any of its subsidiaries, affect the right of the Company or any of its subsidiaries to terminate the Optionee's Service at any time, or affect any right of the Optionee to terminate his or her Service at any time.

8. Provisions of the Plan. This Agreement is subject in its entirety to the provisions of the Plan, which are incorporated herein by reference. A copy of the Plan as in effect on the Date of Grant has been furnished or made available to the Optionee. By accepting, or being deemed to have accepted, all or any part of the Stock Option, the Optionee agrees to be bound by the terms of the Plan and this Agreement. In the event of any conflict between the terms of this Agreement and the Plan, the terms of the Plan will control.

9. Acknowledgements. We had a small meeting today to discuss the process for review of your application. A pre-licensing inspection will not need to be conducted in this instance. The application will be reviewed and stay pending until we receive the notice of FDA approval. One that happens, we can immediately issue the license.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Marsha-

The requirements for wholesale distribution are laid out both in our own state regulations and the federal regulations at 21 CFR 210 & 211. We've adopted the federal regulations by reference. Our staff will be looking at those regulations to determine if the firm currently has them in place or has plans to implement them. Some of those discussions will take place during the pre-licensing inspection. We do not have a checklist of items for review. The link to the specific state and federal regulations is on our

CAUTIONARY NOTE REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Annual Report on Form 10-K contains forward-looking statements that involve substantial risks and uncertainties. We make such forward-looking statements pursuant to the safe harbor provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 and other federal securities laws. In this Annual Report on Form 10-K, all statements, other than statements of historical or present facts, including statements regarding our future financial condition, future revenues, projected costs, prospects, business strategy, and plans and objectives of management for future operations, are forward-looking statements. In some cases, you can identify forward-looking statements by terminology such as "believe," "will," "may," "might," "estimate," "continue," "anticipate," "intend," "target," "project," "model," "should," "would," "plan," "expect," "predict," "could," "seek," "goals," "potential," and similar terms or expressions that concern our expectations, strategy, plans, or intentions. These forward-looking statements include, but are not limited to, statements about:

- our expectations regarding the timing, costs, conduct, and outcome of our clinical trials, including statements regarding the timing of the initiation and availability of data from such trials;
- the timing and likelihood of regulatory filings and approvals for our product candidates;
- whether regulatory authorities determine that additional trials or data are necessary in order to accept a new drug application for review and/or approval;
- our ability to obtain funding for our operations, including funding necessary to complete further development and commercialization of our product candidates;
- our plans to research, develop, and commercialize our product candidates;
- the manufacturing, supply, and commercialization of our product candidates, if approved;
- the rate and degree of market acceptance of our product candidates;
- our expectations regarding the potential market size and the size of the patient populations for our product candidates, if approved for commercial use, and the potential market opportunities for commercializing our product candidates;
- the success of competing therapies that are or may become available;
- our expectations regarding our ability to obtain and maintain intellectual property protection for our product candidates;
- the ability to license additional intellectual property relating to our product candidates and to comply with our existing license agreements;
- our ability to maintain and establish relationships with third parties, such as contract research organizations, contract manufacturing organizations, suppliers, and distributors;
- our ability to maintain and establish collaborators with development, regulatory, and commercialization expertise;
- our ability to attract and retain key scientific or management personnel;
- our ability to grow our organization and increase the size of our facilities to meet our anticipated growth;
- the accuracy of our estimates regarding expenses, future revenue, capital requirements, and needs for additional financing;
- our expectations related to the use of our available cash;
- our ability to develop, acquire, and advance product candidates into, and successfully complete, clinical trials;
- the initiation, timing, progress, and results of future preclinical studies and clinical trials, and our research and development programs;

- the impact of governmental laws and regulations and regulatory developments in the United States and foreign countries;
- developments and projections relating to our competitors and our industry; and
- the impact of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) on our clinical trials, our supply chain, and our operations.

These forward-looking statements are not exhaustive. Other sections of this Annual Report on Form 10-K include additional factors that could adversely affect our business and financial performance. Moreover, we operate in a very competitive and rapidly changing environment. New risk factors emerge from time to time, and it is not possible for our management to predict all risk factors nor can we assess the effects of all factors on our business or the extent to which any factor, or combination of factors, may cause actual results to differ materially from those contained in, or implied by, any forward-looking statements. Factors that may cause actual results to differ materially from current expectations include, among other things, those listed under Part I, Item 1A. "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in this Annual Report on Form 10-K. The following section summarizes the risk factors listed under Part I, Item 1A, "Risk Factors". Given these uncertainties, you should not place undue reliance on these forward-looking statements.

The forward-looking statements made in this Annual Report on Form 10-K are based on circumstances as of the date on which the statements are made. Except as required by law, we undertake no obligation to update or revise these forward-looking statements for any reason, whether as a result of new information, future events, or otherwise, or to conform these statements to actual results or to changes in our expectations.

This Annual Report on Form 10-K also contains estimates, projections, and other information concerning our industry, our business, and the markets for certain diseases, including data regarding the estimated size of those markets and the incidence and prevalence of certain medical conditions. Information based on estimates, forecasts, projections, market research, or similar methodologies is inherently subject to uncertainties, and actual events or circumstances may differ materially from events and circumstances reflected in this information. Unless otherwise expressly stated, we obtained this industry, business, market, and other data from reports, research surveys, studies, and similar data prepared by market research firms and other third parties, industry, medical, and general publications, government data, and similar sources.

RISK FACTOR SUMMARY

Below is a summary of the material risk factors that make an investment in our Class A common stock speculative or risky. This summary does not address all of the risks that we face. Additional discussion of the risks summarized in this risk factor summary, and other risks that we face, can be found in Item 1A "Risk Factors" and should be carefully considered, together with other information in this Annual Report on Form 10-K before making investment decisions regarding our Class A common stock.

- We anticipate that we will continue to incur losses for the foreseeable future and may never achieve or sustain profitability. We will require additional financings to fund our operations, but the terms of certain of our agreements may restrict our ability to pursue our business strategies or obtain such financing.
- We are substantially dependent on the success of our lead product candidates, omaveloxolone and bardoxolone methyl (bardoxolone).
- The clinical and commercial success of omaveloxolone and bardoxolone will depend on a number of factors, many of which are beyond our control.
- The recent receipt of a complete response letter (CRL) from the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) with respect to the New Drug Application (NDA) for bardoxolone in patients with chronic kidney disease (CKD) caused by Alport syndrome puts our entire bardoxolone platform at risk; there is a high degree of risk that bardoxolone will not be approved for any indication in the United States or elsewhere.
- If our product candidates receive regulatory approval, we will be subject to ongoing regulatory requirements, and we may face future development, manufacturing, and regulatory difficulties.
- Success in earlier Phase 1 and 2 clinical trials may not be indicative of the results that may be obtained in larger registrational clinical trials, which may delay or prevent obtaining regulatory approval.
- We may face delays in completing our ongoing or planned clinical trials due to a number of factors, including failure to enroll a sufficient number of patients in our clinical trials in a timely manner, or these studies may not be completed at all.
- Our product candidates may cause or have attributed to them undesirable side effects or have other properties that delay or prevent their regulatory approval or limit their commercial potential.
- Clinical trials of our product candidates may not uncover all possible adverse events (AEs) that patients may experience.
- If we, our collaborators, or our third-party manufacturers cannot manufacture our product candidates or products at sufficient yields or quantities, we may experience delays in development, regulatory approval, and commercialization.
- Even if we are able to obtain regulatory approval of our product candidates, we cannot predict the labeling we will obtain, and it may be more narrow than originally sought.
- We have limited experience in submitting an NDA, a marketing authorization application (MAA), or other marketing applications and may be unable to do so efficiently or at all, for any product candidate we are developing or may develop in the future.
- If we or our collaborators are unable to establish sales, marketing, and distribution capabilities or enter into or maintain agreements with third parties to market and sell our product candidates, we may not be successful in commercializing our product candidates if and when they are approved.
- If the market opportunities for our product candidates are smaller than we believe they are, our revenue may be adversely affected, and our business may suffer.
- We face substantial competition. There is a possibility that our competitors may discover, develop, obtain regulatory approval of, and commercialize drugs before we do or develop drugs that are safer, more effective, or less costly.
- Our commercial success depends upon attaining significant market acceptance of our product candidates, if approved, among physicians, patients, third-party payors, and others in the health care community, which we may not be able to achieve.
- We may not be successful in our efforts to identify, license, discover, develop, or commercialize additional product candidates.
- Failure to obtain adequate coverage and reimbursement, or obtaining limited reimbursement, from third-party payors may render our products less attractive to patients and healthcare providers.

- If product liability lawsuits are brought against us, we may incur substantial liabilities and may be required to limit commercialization of our product candidates.
- If we fail to maintain and establish collaborators with development, regulatory, and commercial expertise, it may disrupt our business, or we may not be able to capitalize on the development and commercialization of our current and future product candidates.
- If our third-party contractors, which conduct many aspects of our preclinical and clinical studies and our manufacturing activities for our product candidates, do not properly and successfully perform their obligations under our agreements with them, our ability to successfully obtain approval and provide sufficient quantities of product for our product candidates could suffer.
- Our product candidates and certain of the components of our product candidates are currently acquired from single-source suppliers and in most cases have been purchased without long-term supply agreements. The loss of any of these suppliers, or their failure to supply us with supplies of sufficient quantity and quality to obtain and complete manufacture of drug substance or finished drug product of acceptable quality at an acceptable price, would materially and adversely affect our business.
- We rely on, but may not have, adequate protection of our proprietary technologies to compete effectively in our market.
- Confidentiality agreements with third-party contractors and collaborators may not prevent a competitor from discovering, misappropriating, or disclosing our trade secrets.
- We may not be able to effectively maintain our intellectual property position throughout the global market.
- If we do not obtain additional protection under the Hatch-Waxman Act and similar foreign legislation extending the terms of our patents and obtaining data exclusivity for our product candidates, our business may be materially harmed.
- If we fail to comply with our obligations in the agreements under which we license intellectual property and other rights from third parties or otherwise experience disruptions to our business relationships with our licensors, we could lose license rights that are important to our business.
- The regulatory approval process is highly uncertain, and we may not obtain regulatory approval for the commercialization of our product candidates. Even if we believe our completed, current, or planned clinical trials are successful, regulatory authorities may not agree that they provide adequate data on safety or efficacy or may require that we conduct confirmatory clinical trials either prior to approval or after market approval.
- If our product candidates obtain marketing approval, we will be subject to more extensive healthcare laws, regulation, and enforcement, including recent U.S. healthcare reform and other changes, and our failure to comply with those laws could have a material adverse effect on our results of operations and financial condition.
- We are subject to U.S. and certain foreign export and import controls, sanctions, embargoes, anti-corruption laws, privacy, and anti-money laundering laws and regulations. We can face criminal liability, fines, penalties, or other serious consequences for violations, which can harm our business.
- Our employees may engage in misconduct or other improper activities, including noncompliance with regulatory standards and requirements, which could result in significant liability for us and harm our reputation.
- We may encounter difficulties in managing our growth and expanding our operations successfully.
- If we fail to attract and retain certain senior management and key personnel, we may be unable to successfully develop our product candidates, conduct our clinical trials, and commercialize our product candidates.
- Our business and operations may be materially adversely affected in the event of computer system failures or security breaches.
- The COVID-19 outbreak has caused and could continue to cause disruptions in our business and operating results, including our clinical development and supply chain activities.

PART I

Item 1. Business.

Overview

We are a clinical-stage biopharmaceutical company focused on identifying, developing, and commercializing innovative therapies that change patients' lives for the better. We concentrate on small-molecule therapeutics with novel mechanisms of action for the treatment of severe, life-threatening diseases with few or no approved therapies. Our lead programs are omaveloxolone in a rare neurological disease called Friedreich's ataxia (FA) and bardoxolone in rare forms of CKD. Both of our lead product candidates activate the transcription factor Nrf2 to normalize mitochondrial function, restore redox balance, and resolve inflammation. Because mitochondrial dysfunction, oxidative stress, and inflammation are features of many diseases, we believe omaveloxolone, bardoxolone, and our next-generation Nrf2 activators have many potential clinical applications. We possess exclusive, worldwide rights to develop, manufacture, and commercialize omaveloxolone, bardoxolone, and our next-generation Nrf2 activators, excluding certain Asian markets for bardoxolone in certain indications, which are licensed to Kyowa Kirin Co., Ltd. (Kyowa Kirin). In addition, we are developing RTA 901, the lead product candidate from our Hsp90 modulator program, in neurological indications. We are the exclusive licensee of RTA 901 and have worldwide commercial rights.

Programs in Neurological Diseases

Omaveloxolone for Friedreich's Ataxia

FA is an inherited, debilitating, and degenerative neuromuscular disorder that is typically diagnosed during adolescence and can ultimately lead to premature death. Patients with FA experience progressive loss of coordination, muscle weakness, and fatigue, which commonly progresses to motor incapacitation, wheelchair reliance, and eventually death. Symptoms generally first occur in children, with patients requiring a wheelchair by their teens or early-20s and generally dying in their mid-30s. FA affects approximately 5,000 children and adults in the United States and 22,000 individuals globally. There are currently no approved therapies to treat FA. The FDA and the European Commission (EC) have granted orphan drug designation to omaveloxolone for the treatment of FA.

In the third quarter of 2021, we completed our pre-NDA meeting with the FDA. The purpose of the pre-NDA meeting was to discuss the content of Reata's planned NDA submission for approval for omaveloxolone for the treatment of patients with FA. On November 18, 2021, the FDA granted omaveloxolone Fast Track Designation for the treatment of FA, providing eligibility for FDA programs such as Priority Review and rolling submission of the NDA, if relevant criteria are met. The FDA granted our request for a rolling submission and in January 2022, we initiated rolling submission of our NDA which is expected to be completed by the end of the first quarter of 2022. This NDA is supported by the efficacy and safety data from MOXIe Part 1, Part 2, and MOXIe Extension studies discussed below, which we believe provide sufficient evidence of safety and efficacy to support a standard (full) approval of the NDA.

Omaveloxolone for Other Neurological Indications

Based on our understanding of the pathophysiology of neurological diseases, characterized by mitochondrial dysfunction, inflammation, and oxidative stress, we believe omaveloxolone may be applicable to diseases such as progressive supranuclear palsy, Parkinson's disease, frontotemporal dementia, Huntington's disease, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), Alzheimer's disease, and epilepsy. Consistent with this, we have observed promising activity of omaveloxolone and our other Nrf2 activators in preclinical models of many of these diseases. We plan to pursue the development of omaveloxolone and our other Nrf2 activators for one or more of these diseases.

RTA 901 for Neurological Indications, Including Diabetic Peripheral Neuropathic Pain

We are developing RTA 901, the lead product candidate from our Hsp90 modulator program, in neurological indications. We have observed favorable activity of RTA 901 in a range of preclinical models of neurological disease, including models of diabetic neuropathy, neuroinflammation, and neuropathic pain. We have completed a Phase 1 trial to evaluate the safety, tolerability, and pharmacokinetic (PK) profile of RTA 901 administered orally, once-daily in healthy adult volunteers. RTA 901 was well tolerated in both single and multiple ascending dose (SAD and MAD) studies across all dose groups with no safety signals, drug discontinuations, or serious adverse events (SAEs). Additionally, we observed an acceptable PK profile with exposures greater than required for efficacy in preclinical animal models. We plan to initiate additional Phase 1 studies to evaluate the PK and drug-drug interaction potential of RTA 901 in the first half of 2022 and a randomized, placebo-controlled Phase 2 study in diabetic peripheral neuropathic pain (DPNP) in the second half of 2022. We are the exclusive licensee of RTA 901 and have worldwide commercial rights.

Programs in Chronic Kidney Disease

We and our strategic collaborator are developing bardoxolone for the treatment of CKD in multiple indications, including CKD caused by Alport syndrome, autosomal dominant polycystic kidney disease (ADPKD), and type 1 and 2 diabetic CKD. CKD is characterized by a progressive worsening in the rate at which the kidney filters waste products from the blood. Declining kidney function leads to the buildup of high levels of waste products in the blood that cause the patient to suffer symptoms, such as nausea and fatigue, and develop complications including high blood pressure, anemia, weak bones, poor nutritional health, and nerve damage.

We received a CRL from the FDA in February 2022 with respect to its review of our NDA for bardoxolone in the treatment of patients with CKD caused by Alport syndrome. The CRL indicated that the FDA cannot approve the NDA in its present form. Based on its review, the FDA concluded that it does not believe the submitted data demonstrates that bardoxolone is effective in slowing the loss of kidney function in patients with Alport syndrome and reducing the risk of progression to kidney failure and has requested additional data to support the efficacy and safety of bardoxolone. Their conclusion was based on efficacy and safety concerns primarily set forth in the FDA's briefing book and discussed at the Cardiovascular and Renal Drugs Advisory Committee meeting held on December 8, 2021.

The FDA stated that the issues could be resolved by providing evidence of effectiveness that includes evidence from an adequate and well-controlled study showing a clinically relevant effect on the rate of loss of kidney function in patients with Alport syndrome or, alternatively, an effect on a clinical outcome (i.e., an endpoint that captures how patients with Alport syndrome feel, function, or survive). In addition, the FDA stated that we would need to address whether bardoxolone has a clinically relevant effect on the QT interval and show that the demonstrated clinical benefits of bardoxolone outweigh its risks. The FDA welcomed continued discussion on the details of a path forward. We plan to work closely with the FDA to bring this important medicine to patients in the US.

Bardoxolone for CKD Caused by Alport Syndrome

Alport syndrome is a rare, genetic form of CKD caused by mutations in the genes encoding type IV collagen, which is a major structural component of the glomerular basement membrane (GBM) in the kidney. Patients with CKD caused by Alport syndrome experience a progressive worsening of the kidney's capacity to filter waste products out of the blood, which can lead to end-stage kidney disease (ESKD) and the need for chronic dialysis treatment or a kidney transplant. Alport syndrome affects both children and adults. In patients with the most severe forms of the disease, approximately 50% progress to dialysis by age 25, 90% by age 40, and nearly 100% by age 60. According to the Alport Syndrome Foundation, Alport syndrome affects approximately 30,000 to 60,000 people in the United States. There are currently no approved therapies to treat CKD caused by Alport syndrome.

We completed the Phase 3 CARDINAL study in November 2020. The study met its primary and key secondary endpoints at the end of Year 1, and on November 9, 2020, we announced that the Phase 3 CARDINAL study met its primary and key secondary endpoints at the end of Year 2. Bardoxolone was generally reported to be well tolerated in this study, and the safety profile was similar to that observed in prior trials.

On March 1, 2021, we submitted our NDA for bardoxolone for the treatment of CKD caused by Alport syndrome to the FDA. On April 26, 2021, the FDA accepted for filing our NDA, set the Prescription Drug User Fee Act (PDUFA) date for February 25, 2022, and stated that the FDA also planned to hold an advisory committee meeting to discuss the application. On December 8, 2021, the Cardiovascular and Renal Drugs Advisory Committee voted no on the question of whether the provided evidence demonstrated that bardoxolone is effective in slowing the progression of CKD in patients with Alport syndrome and that its benefits outweigh its risks.

The information contained in this Item 2.02 of this Current Report (including Exhibit 99.1 attached hereto) shall not be deemed "filed" for purposes of Section 18 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), or otherwise subject to the liabilities of that section, nor shall it be deemed incorporated by reference in any filing under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), or the Exchange Act, except as expressly set forth by specific reference in such filing. The Company undertakes no obligation to update, supplement or amend the materials attached hereto as Exhibit 99.1.

Item 7.01. Regulation FD Disclosure.

On August 9, 2022, the Company posted a slide presentation regarding top-line data from the Phase 3 ENHANCE-2 clinical trial in the "Events & Presentations" portion of its website at www.veronapharma.com. A copy of the slide presentation is furnished as Exhibit 99.2 to this Current Report.
The information contained in this Item 7.01 of this Current Report (including Exhibit 99.2 attached hereto) shall not be deemed "filed" for purposes of Section 18 of the Exchange Act, or otherwise subject to the liabilities of that section, nor shall it be deemed incorporated by reference in any filing under the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, except as expressly set forth by specific reference in such filing. The Company undertakes no obligation to update, supplement or amend the materials attached hereto as Exhibits 99.2.

Item 8.01. Other Events.

On August 9, 2022, the Company announced the following top-line results from the Phase 3 ENHANCE-2 clinical trial evaluating nebulized ensifentrine for the maintenance treatment of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease ("COPD"):

- Study population (n=789):
  - Subject demographics and disease characteristics were well balanced between treatment groups.
  - Approximately 52% of subjects received background COPD therapy, either a long-acting muscariuic antagonist ("LAMA") or a long-acting beta-agonist ("LABA"). Additionally, 15% of all subjects received inhaled corticosteroids ("ICS") with concomitant LAMA or LABA.

- Primary endpoint met (FEV_1* AUC 0-12 hr):
  - Placebo corrected, average FEV_1 area under the curve 0-12 hours post dose at week 12 was 94 mL ($p<0.0001$) for ensifentrine.
  - Statistically significant and clinically meaningful improvements with ensifentrine demonstrated across all subgroups including gender, age, smoking status, COPD severity, background medication, ICS use, chronic bronchitis, FEV_1 reversibility, and geographic region.

- Secondary endpoints of lung function met:
  - Placebo corrected, increase in peak FEV_1 of 146 mL ($p<0.0001$) 0-4 hours post dose at week 12.
  - Placebo corrected, increase in morning trough FEV_1 of 49 mL ($p=0.0017$) at week 12, supporting twice daily dosing regimen.

- Exacerbation rate reduced:
  - Subjects receiving ensifentrine demonstrated a 42% reduction in the rate of moderate to severe COPD exacerbations over 24 weeks compared to those receiving placebo ($p=0.0109$).
  - Treatment with ensifentrine significantly decreased the risk of a moderate/severe exacerbation as measured by time to first exacerbation when compared with placebo by 42% ($p=0.0088$).

- COPD symptoms and Quality of Life ("QOL"):
  - Daily symptoms and QOL as measured by E-RS Total Score and SGRQ Total Score in the ensifentrine group improved from baseline to greater than the minimal clinically important difference ("MCID") of -2 units and -4 units, respectively, at week 24. Improvements in these measures were seen as early as 6 weeks and showed continued improvement at 12 and 24 weeks, numerically exceeding placebo at each measurement. Statistical significance was not achieved due to improvements in the placebo group over time.

- Favorable safety results:
  - Ensifentrine was well tolerated with safety results similar to placebo, including occurrence of pneumonia, gastrointestinal and cardiovascular adverse events.

FEV_1: Forced Expiratory Volume in one second, a standard measure of lung function
E-RS, Evaluating Respiratory Symptoms, and SGRQ, St. George's Respiratory Questionnaire, are validated patient reported outcome tools*

These data, along with results from the Company's ongoing Phase 3 ENHANCE-1 clinical trial, which is on track to be reported around the end of 2022, are expected to support the submission of a New Drug Application to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (the "FDA") in the first half of 2023.

In 2020, there were approximately 6 million patients on maintenance treatment for COPD in the United States, with approximately 5 million patients receiving two or more therapies or alternative therapies. Of those patients, approximately 40% remain symptomatic, resulting in more than 1 million patients that the Company believes has the potential to be treated with ensifentrine. As of December 2021, 35 payers covered more than 200 million lives, or 85% of all lives covered, for nebulizers, with the majority of claims for nebulizers in the United States reimbursed through Medicare Part B. If ensifentrine is approved, the Company plans to target the approximately 12,000 pulmonologists in the United States and expects that it will need approximately 100 sales representatives.

Verona Pharma Reports Second Quarter 2022 Financial Results and Provides Corporate Update

Ensifentrine met primary and secondary endpoints of evaluating lung function in Phase 3 ENHANCE-2 trial for COPD

Top-line Phase 3 ENHANCE-1 data expected around the end of 2022

Conference call today at 8:30 a.m. EDT / 1:30 p.m. BST

LONDON and RALEIGH, N.C., August 9, 2022 – Verona Pharma plc (Nasdaq: VRNA) ("Verona Pharma" or the "Company"), a clinical-stage biopharmaceutical company focused on respiratory diseases, announces its financial results for the three months ended June 30, 2022, and provides a corporate update.

In a separate press release issued earlier today, Verona Pharma announced positive top-line results from its Phase 3 ENHANCE-2 ("Ensifentrine as a Novel inHAled Nebulized COPD thErapy") trial evaluating nebulized ensifentrine for the maintenance treatment of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease ("COPD"). The ENHANCE-2 trial has successfully met its primary endpoint, as well as secondary endpoints demonstrating improvements in lung function, and significantly reduced the rate and risk of COPD exacerbations. Ensifentrine was well tolerated with safety results similar to placebo.

David Zaccardelli, Pharm. D., President and Chief Executive Officer, said: "We are very pleased by the successful outcome of our ENHANCE-2 study and remain committed to bringing ensifentrine to COPD patients as quickly as possible. These data, along with results from our ongoing Phase 3 trial, ENHANCE-1, which are on track to be reported around the end of 2022, if similarly positive, are expected to support the submission of a New Drug Application to the US Food and Drug Administration in the first half of 2023. We want to thank all the patients and investigators for their participation in the trial to advance ensifentrine as a potential new therapy for the treatment of COPD."

Program Updates and Key Milestones

Based on current models of study progression, the Company's near-term milestones include:

- Reporting top-line data from ENHANCE-1 around the end of 2022.
- Conditional upon positive results, the Company expects to submit a New Drug Application ("NDA") to the US Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") in the first half of 2023 for inhaled ensifentrine for the maintenance treatment of COPD.

With the recent sanctions and other government restrictions resulting from the Russia-Ukraine conflict and the COVID-19 pandemic continuing to impact a number of clinical trial activities, the Company continues to closely monitor these timelines.

Second Quarter and Recent Highlights

Clinical

- In August 2022, the Company reported positive top-line Phase 3 data from ENHANCE-2. The trial successfully met its primary endpoint and secondary endpoints evaluating lung function. Ensifentrine also significantly reduced the rate and risk of COPD exacerbations. Ensifentrine was well tolerated with safety results similar to placebo.
- In May 2022, the Company presented a successful thorough QT analysis demonstrating ensifentrine had no clinically relevant effect on the QT interval or cardiac conduction at the American Thoracic Society International Conference ("ATS") 2022. The abstract is published on the ATS website and in the peer reviewed publication, American Journal of Respiratory and Critical Care Medicine.

- In June 2022, the Company completed enrollment in ENHANCE-1 with more than 800 subjects randomized.

Second Quarter 2022 Financial Results

- Cash position: Cash and cash equivalents at June 30, 2022, were $111.5 million (March 31, 2022: $132.8 million). The Company believes cash and cash equivalents at June 30, 2022, expected cash receipts from the U.K. tax credit program and funding expected to become available under the $30.0 million debt facility, will enable Verona Pharma to fund planned operating expenses and capital expenditure requirements through at least the end of 2023.
- R&D Expenses: Research and development ("R&D") expenses were $15.0 million for the second quarter ended June 30, 2022 (Q2 2021: $20.6 million). The decrease of $5.6 million was primarily due to a $4.2 million decrease in clinical trial and other development costs as we progressed to the later stages of our Phase 3 ENHANCE program and a $1.9 million decrease in share-based compensation.
- SG&A Expenses: Selling general and administrative expenses ("SG&A") were $5.5 million for the second quarter ended June 30, 2022 (Q2 2021: $8.0 million). The decrease of $2.5 million was primarily due to a decrease in share-based compensation.
- Net loss: Net loss was $17.8 million for the second quarter ended June 30, 2022 (Q2 2021: net loss $22.1 million).

Conference Call and Webcast Information

Verona Pharma will host an investment community webcast and conference call at 8:30 a.m. EDT / 1:30 p.m. BST on Tuesday, August 9, 2022, to discuss the ENHANCE-2 results, its second quarter financial results and the corporate update.

About Verona Pharma

Verona Pharma is a clinical-stage biopharmaceutical company focused on developing and commercializing innovative therapies for the treatment of respiratory diseases with significant unmet medical needs. If successfully developed and approved, Verona Pharma's product candidate, ensifentrine, has the potential to be the first therapy for the treatment of respiratory diseases that combines bronchodilator and anti-inflammatory activities in one compound. The Company is evaluating nebulized ensifentrine in its Phase 3 clinical program ENHANCE ("Ensifentrine as a Novel inHAled Nebulized COPD thErapy") for COPD maintenance treatment. Ensifentrine met the primary endpoint in ENHANCE-2 demonstrating a statistically significant and clinically meaningful improvement in lung function. In addition, ensifentrine significantly reduced the rate of COPD exacerbations. Two additional formulations of ensifentrine are in Phase 2 development for the treatment of COPD: dry powder inhaler ("DPI") and pressurized metered-dose inhaler ("pMDI"). Ensifentrine has potential applications in cystic fibrosis, asthma and other respiratory diseases. For more information, please visit www.veronapharma.com.

COVID-19 Impact

Verona Pharma continues to monitor the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on its operations and clinical trials, in particular the timelines and costs of its Phase 3 clinical program ENHANCE. The pandemic and government and other measures in response continue to impact a number of clinical trial activities and the Company will provide an update if it becomes aware of any meaningful disruption caused by the pandemic to its clinical trials.

To help protect the health and safety of the subjects, caregivers and healthcare professionals involved in its clinical trials, as well as its employees and independent contractors, the Company continues to follow guidance from the FDA and other health regulatory authorities regarding the conduct of clinical trials during the COVID-19 pandemic in an effort to ensure the safety of study participants, minimize risks to study integrity, and maintain compliance with good clinical practice.

The COVID-19 pandemic is disrupting supply chains, and employee retention and recruitment, globally and the Company is closely monitoring this situation and will provide an update if it becomes aware of any meaningful disruption caused by the pandemic to the supply of ensifentrine and drug-related products, equipment and services for its clinical trials.

Russia-Ukraine Conflict

Verona Pharma is conducting ENHANCE-1 at a number of clinical trial sites in Russia and Europe (but not including Ukraine). The sanctions and other restrictions imposed by the U.S. and other countries as a result of the current conflict between Russia and Ukraine are impacting, and may continue to impact, the Company's outsourced clinical research vendor's ability to pay the clinical trial sites and investigators in Russia and may impact the vendor's ability to supply ensifentrine and equipment to the sites and validate their trial data. If the conflict extends into other countries in Europe where the Company's clinical trials are being conducted, its clinical trial activities in those countries may also be impacted. The Company is closely monitoring the Russia-Ukraine conflict and will provide an update if it becomes aware of any meaningful disruption to the cost and timelines of our Phase 3 program or its plans to submit an NDA for ensifentrine.

Forward-Looking Statements

This press release contains forward-looking statements. All statements contained in this press release that do not relate to matters of historical fact should be considered forward-looking statements, including, but not limited to, statements regarding our operational review, outlook and financial review, the development of ensifentrine and the progress and timing of clinical trials and data, the goals and design of clinical trials, the assumptions underlying the Company's models on clinical trial recruitment and progress, including the potential impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and the Russia-Ukraine conflict on such progress and on our business and operations and the Company's future financial results, the timing of submission of an NDA for ensifentrine, the potential for ensifentrine to be the first therapy for the treatment of respiratory diseases to combine bronchodilator and anti-inflammatory effects in one compound, the potential of ensifentrine in the treatment of COPD, cystic fibrosis, asthma and other respiratory diseases, as well as the potential of the DPI and pMDI formulations of ensifentrine, the funding we expect to become available under the $30.0 million debt financing facility and from cash receipts from U.K. tax credits, and the sufficiency of cash and cash equivalents.

These forward-looking statements are based on management's current expectations. These statements are neither promises nor guarantees, but involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other important factors that may cause our actual results, performance or achievements to be materially different from our expectations expressed or implied by the forward-looking statements, including, but not limited to, the following: our limited operating history; our need for additional funding to complete development and commercialization of ensifentrine, which may not be available and which may force us to delay, reduce or eliminate our development or commercialization efforts; the reliance of our business on the success of ensifentrine, our only product candidate under development; economic, political, regulatory and other risks involved with international operations; the lengthy and expensive process of clinical drug development, which has an uncertain outcome; serious adverse, undesirable or unacceptable side effects associated with ensifentrine, which could adversely affect our ability to develop or commercialize ensifentrine; potential delays in enrolling subjects, which could adversely affect our research and development efforts and the completion of our clinical trials; we may not be successful in developing ensifentrine for multiple indications; our ability to obtain approval for and commercialize ensifentrine in multiple major pharmaceutical markets; misconduct or other improper activities by our employees, consultants, principal investigators, third-party service providers and licensees; our inability to realize the anticipated benefits under licenses granted by us to third parties to develop and commercialize ensifentrine, our future growth and ability to compete depends on retaining our key personnel and recruiting additional qualified personnel; material differences between our "top-line" data and final data; our reliance on third parties, including clinical research organizations, clinical investigators, manufacturers and suppliers, and the risks related to these parties' ability to successfully develop and commercialize ensifentrine; lawsuits related to patents covering ensifentrine and the potential for our patents to be found invalid or unenforceable; lawsuits related to our licensing of patents and know-how with third parties for the development and commercialization of ensifentrine; changes in our tax rates, unavailability of certain tax credits or reliefs or exposure to additional tax liabilities or assessments could affect our profitability, and audits by tax authorities could result in additional tax payments for prior periods; and our vulnerability to natural disasters, global economic factors, geo-political actions and unexpected events, including health epidemics or pandemics like the COVID-19 pandemic, and conflicts such as the Russia-Ukraine conflict, which has and may continue to adversely impact our business. These and other important factors under the caption "Risk Factors" in our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2021, and our other reports filed with the SEC, could cause actual results to differ materially from those indicated by the forward-looking statements made in this press release. Any such forward-looking statements represent management's estimates as of the date of this press release. While we may elect to update such forward-looking statements at some point in the future, we disclaim any obligation to do so, even if subsequent events cause our views to change. These forward-looking statements should not be relied upon as representing our views as of any date subsequent to the date of this press release.

RE: Capital City Drug, LLC

It has been our pleasure to file the certificate of formation and issue the enclosed certificate of filing evidencing the existence of the newly created domestic limited liability company (llc).

Unless exempted, the entity formed is subject to state tax laws, including franchise tax laws. Shortly, the Comptroller of Public Accounts will be contacting the entity at its registered office for information that will assist the Comptroller in setting up the franchise tax account for the entity. Information about franchise tax, and contact information for the Comptroller's office, is available on their web site at https://window.state.tx.us/taxinfo/franchise/index.html.

The entity formed does not file annual reports with the Secretary of State. Documents will be filed with the Secretary of State if the entity needs to amend one of the provisions in its certificate of formation. It is important for the entity to continuously maintain a registered agent and office in Texas. Failure to maintain an agent or office or file a change to the information in Texas may result in the involuntary termination of the entity.

If we can be of further service at any time, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Corporations Section

RE: NV Initial Wholesaler Application

To whom it may concern,

Exel Inc. d/b/a DHL Supply Chain (USA) ("DHL") is submitting this letter in reference to the question on Wholesaler Application regarding pending complaint, investigation, or disciplinary actions.

[Exel Inc. d/b/a DHL Supply Chain (USA) ("DHL") is a part of Deutsche Post DHL Group, the world's leading contract logistics provider, and has tens of thousands of employees across North America. At any given time, DHL is a named defendant in civil matters, including employment cases. Based on knowledge and belief of the respondent completing this application after reasonable inquiry, DHL is not involved in any pending criminal proceedings. Nor is DHL part of any pending malpractice claims, civil claims, or lawsuits in connection with drugs/devices.]

Attached are letters from the State Board for the following 2 items:

1. On March 27, 2019, DHL received a notice from the Colorado Board of Pharmacy indicating that the Board initiated disciplinary action against DHL in connection with DHL's failure to notify the Board of a change in its Designated Representative for the site located at 1635 Stone Ridge Drive, Stone Mountain, GA 30083-118. The matter was resolved with the Board as of April 29, 2019 and is now closed.

2. On August 10, 2022, DHL received a proposed Imposition of Civil Fine from the Board in connection with DHL's alleged failure to timely notify the Board of a change in its Designated Representative. DHL accepted the Imposition of Civil Fine in the amount of $500, which was a technical violation only and not related to the delivery of patient care. Although we did notify on time and at all times a DR was present at the facility, the method of notification was technically incorrect which led to the delay. The matter was resolved with the Board as of September 19, 2022.

Please be assured that DHL takes these matters very seriously and has implemented corrective actions to prevent similar issues from occurring in the future. If you have any concerns regarding the matters set forth in this notice, please do not hesitate to contact DHL Regulatory Affairs at regulatory@dhl.com.

IMPOSITION OF CIVIL FINE
Case # 2022-000354

I, JONATHAN MENEES, as an agent for Exel Inc. Dba DHL Supply Chain (USA), admit and agree the Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over the subject matter of Third-Party Logistics Provider License No. 156932, and over this Imposition of Civil Fine.

1. On June 30, 2021, we appointed a new Facility Manager. On March 21, 2022, the Board received our Change of Facility Manager form with the new Facility Manager notification; 264 days after the Facility Manager change occurred. This is a violation of 12 AAC 52.697(c).

We admit that as a result of these facts, grounds exist for possible denial of licensure or other disciplinary sanctions of my license pursuant to AS 08.01.75 and 12 AAC 52.697(c). We are agreeing to this Imposition of a Civil Fine of five hundred dollars ($500) in cash, certified check, or money order payable to the "State of Alaska" within ninety (90) days after this Imposition of Civil Fine is accepted by the Board.

We have the right to consult with an attorney, and a right to an administrative hearing on the facts in this case. We understand and agree by voluntarily signing this Imposition of Civil Fine, we are waiving our rights to counsel and to a hearing on this matter.

Respondent Outlet shall therefore pay a total amount of One Thousand One Hundred Fifty Dollars and No Cents ($1,150.00). The total amount shall be payable to the State of Colorado and shall be remitted in one lump sum to be included when Respondent Outlet submits this signed Final Agency Order to the Board.

9. Compliance. Respondent Outlet shall submit all future applications and appropriate fees to the Board detailing changes in designated representative within the required time frame specified by Board rule or statute in effect at the time of such designated representative change.

13. Violations. Time is of the essence in this Final Agency Order. It is the responsibility of Respondent Outlet to take all appropriate steps to comply fully with this Final Agency Order. Respondent Outlet acknowledges and agrees that any violation of this Final Agency Order shall constitute a willful violation of a lawful Board order, may be sanctioned as provided under section 12-42.5-124(4), C.R.S., and may be sufficient grounds for additional discipline, including but not limited to revocation of Respondent Outlet's registration. The pendency of any suspension or disciplinary action arising out of an alleged violation of this Final Agency Order shall not affect the obligation of Respondent Outlet to comply with all terms and conditions of this Final Agency Order.

14. Integration and Severability. Upon execution by all parties, this Final Agency Order shall represent the entire and final agreement of and between the parties. In the event any provision of this Final Agency Order is deemed invalid or unenforceable by a court of law, it shall be severed and the remaining provisions of this Final Agency Order shall be given full force and effect.

RE: Case 2019-844

Dear Designated Representative:

The Colorado State Board of Pharmacy ("Board") has received the attached complaint regarding the conduct of the Board-registered out-of-state prescription drug wholesaler detailed above. The Board is investigating this complaint. It is being sent to you as the designated representative of the above listed out-of-state prescription drug wholesaler. At this point, no assumption has been made about the truth or validity of any information provided to the Board.

Please send a written response within thirty (30) days of the date of this letter as indicated above. An earlier response may expedite the Board's review of this matter. To facilitate an efficient and timely review, please type your response. If this is not possible, please legibly print your response.

We encourage you to respond electronically. If you do, please submit the response to dora_pharmacyboard@state.co.us. Please scan and attach any relevant documents. Address all correspondence to the Board.

Also, please be sure that any copies submitted with your response are legible. Be sure to include the case number listed above on all correspondences and address your response to my attention.

It is the policy of the Division of Professions and Occupations to copy your attorney (if you are represented) on all correspondences in order to assure that your attorney is aware of the developments in your case. If you are represented by an attorney in this matter, please provide the Board in writing with your attorney's contact information. If the Board already has your attorney's contact information, your attorney name should be identified below as a carbon copy of "cc," indicating that a copy of this letter was sent to that attorney. If at any time it appears that the Board does not have the correct information regarding your legal representation, please update the Board and provide your attorney with a copy of all correspondences from the Board.

We strongly encourage you to begin preparing your response to the complaint as soon as possible, as extensions to the thirty day response time will not be granted except in very limited circumstances. Additionally, if you choose to be represented by an attorney, please contact him or her immediately. A delay in doing so will not be grounds for an extension.

Following receipt of your response, the Board will review the complaint and your response thereto. The Board will then determine what further action, if any, is warranted. Please note you will be advised in writing of the Board's disposition of this complaint.

Thank you for your cooperation and prompt attention to this matter. If you have any questions, please contact me at dora_pharmacyboard@state.co.us or (303) 894-7800.

Regarding Compensation and Taxes

Affiliates of Aon Group, Inc. providing retail, wholesale and reinsurance brokerage, risk management, underwriting and/or claim management, captive management, premium financing, or consulting may receive compensation in the form of (i) commissions and/or fees paid by an insurer and/or other third party and/or fees paid by a client; and (ii) investment and/or interest income on premiums, claim payments and return premiums temporarily held as fiduciary funds subject to the principal's consent as may be required or permitted by law. To the extent a portion of Aon's compensation by operation of law, agreement or otherwise becomes adjusted or credited to you, it is your responsibility to disclose the net cost of the brokerage and insurance costs you have incurred to third parties having an interest in such amounts.

The Data and Analytics Charge covers tools enabling Aon clients to access reports and analytics, including those related to insurers' capabilities, benchmarking and program design. Payment of this Charge is not part of your premium cost, and is neither a requirement nor a condition to receiving brokerage services or to the purchase of insurance policies. The Charge is in addition to any other compensation earned by Aon and is inclusive of sales tax where applicable. You may choose to decline these services by contacting your Account Executive.

If you have any questions regarding the nature or amount of the compensation paid to an Aon company on your account, you should contact the head of the Aon office servicing your account. We have made every effort to identify any surplus lines or other premium taxes and/or fees due in advance, if applicable, but in all instances the payment of these taxes and/or fees will remain the responsibility of the Client and, to the extent tax rates change due to amendments to surplus lines and similar regulations, we will invoice you for the payment of such taxes and fees.

Regarding the attached background check, please note my recollection of the event.

I had been on a family vacation in Vermont. After having dinner, I drove to the family cottage. During this drive I had been observed making an illegal turn on a blinking red light without coming to a complete stop. From there I had been arrested for a misdemeanor DUI.

Please note: Attached FBI background check is all the documentation of the event that I have.

HIGHLIGHTS OF PRESCRIBING INFORMATION

These highlights do not include all the information needed to use KLOXXADO safely and effectively. See full prescribing information for KLOXXADO.

Initial U.S. Approval: 1971

INDICATIONS AND USAGE

KLOXXADO is an opioid antagonist indicated for the emergency treatment of known or suspected opioid overdose, as manifested by respiratory and/or central nervous system depression, for adult and pediatric patients. (1)

KLOXXADO is intended for immediate administration as emergency therapy in settings where opioids may be present.

KLOXXADO is not a substitute for emergency medical care. (1)

DOSAGE AND ADMINISTRATION

- KLOXXADO is for intranasal use only. (2.1)
- Seek emergency medical care immediately after use. (2.1)
- Administer a single spray of KLOXXADO to adult or pediatric patients intranasally into one nostril. (2.2)
- Administer additional doses of KLOXXADO, using a new nasal spray with each dose, if the patient does not respond or responds and then relapses into respiratory depression. Additional doses of KLOXXADO may be given every 2 to 3 minutes until emergency medical assistance arrives. (2.2)

  Additional supportive and/or resuscitative measures may be helpful while awaiting emergency medical assistance. (2.2)

nasal spray: naloxone hydrochloride 8 mg in 0.1 mL. (3)

CONTRAINDICATIONS

Hypersensitivity to naloxone hydrochloride or to any of the other ingredients. (4)

WARNINGS AND PRECAUTIONS

- Risk of Recurrent Respiratory and CNS Depression: Due to the duration of action of naloxone relative to the opioid, keep patient under continued surveillance and administer repeat doses of naloxone using a new nasal spray with each dose, as necessary, while awaiting emergency medical assistance. (5.1)
- Risk of Limited Efficacy with Partial Agonists or Mixed Agonist/Antagonists: Reversal of respiratory depression caused by partial agonists or mixed agonist/antagonists, such as buprenorphine and pentazocine, may be incomplete. Larger or repeat doses may be necessary. (5.2)
- Precipitation of Severe Opioid Withdrawal: Use in patients who are opioid dependent may precipitate opioid withdrawal. In neonates, opioid withdrawal may be life-threatening if not recognized and properly treated. Monitor for the development of opioid withdrawal. (5.3)
- Risk of Cardiovascular (CV) Effects: Abrupt postoperative reversal of opioid depression may result in adverse CV effects. These events have primarily occurred in patients who had preexisting CV disorders or received other drugs that may have similar adverse CV effects. Monitor these patients closely in an appropriate healthcare setting after use of naloxone hydrochloride. (5.3)

ADVERSE REACTIONS

The following adverse reactions were reported with KLOXXADO in two adult subjects each: abdominal pain, asthenia, dizziness, headache, nasal discomfort, and presyncope. (6.1)

To report SUSPECTED ADVERSE REACTIONS, contact Hikma Specialty USA Inc. at 1-800-962-8364 or FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088 or www.fda.gov/medwatch.

Medea Inc. was named as a defendant

Provide explanation below:

Plaintiff financial lenders named Two Diamond Capital Corp. and Medea Inc. as defendants in a frivolous lawsuit arising out of loan facility and related agreements that were alleged not paid by a third party that was not named in the action. Complaint attached as Exhibit A. The Plaintiffs named Medea Inc. as a peripheral party despite the fact that Medea Inc. never had any dealings with the lenders and did not become acquainted with the lenders until after the case was filed. The case was dismissed in its entirety on June 16, 2021 pursuant to Medea Inc.'s motion for summary judgment. Order attached as Exhibit B. Plaintiffs filed an appeal which Medea Inc. has vigorously opposed and contends is frivolous like the underlying lawsuit. The appeal is expected to be heard by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit (Case No. 22-1347) in mid-2023.

In addition to the foregoing, Medea offers the following: In dismissing Medea from the case, the Court made clear that the Plaintiff "has failed to show on this undisputed record of material facts, that Medea made any false representation of material fact, the first element of any fraud claim." Further, "[t]here is no suggestion in the record that Medea made the representation [asserted by the Plaintiffs]…Now on a fully developed record, Plaintiffs have not marshaled evidence of their fraud allegations…Accordingly, this Court concludes that the fraud claim fails for lack of evidence of any material misrepresentations…by Medea to Plaintiffs."

Plaintiffs,

v.

TWO DIAMOND CAPITAL CORP. and MEDEA, INC.

VERIFIED COMPLAINT AND JURY DEMAND

PARTIES

1. Plaintiff CRG Financial, LLC ("CRG") is a Delaware limited liability company with a principal place of business in Cresskill, New Jersey.

2. Plaintiff Claims Recovery Group, LLC ("Claims Recovery", and, with CRG, the "CRG Parties" or the "Plaintiffs") is a Delaware limited liability company with a principal place of business in Cresskill, New Jersey.

3. Defendant Two Diamond Capital Corp. ("Two Diamond") is a Massachusetts corporation with a principal place of business at 100 Ledgewood Place, Suite 102, Rockland, Massachusetts.

4. Defendant Medea Inc. (Medea") is a Delaware corporation with a place of business at 5653 Stoneridge Drive, Suite 119, Pleasanton, California.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction of this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1332(a) because there is complete diversity of citizenship among the parties and because the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000, excluding costs.

FACTS

8. On March 21, 2017, Two Diamond's Michael Kot ("Kot") e-mailed CRG's Joseph Brosnan ("Brosnan") regarding an opportunity to participate in a loan facility. The loan facility would finance the purchase by Bevriqo, Inc. ("Bevriqo"), a California company, of approximately 19,387 cases of vodka from Medea, an importer from Holland. The e-mail referred to multiple purchase orders that Medea would soon receive. Kot wrote to Brosnan in part: "This financing is going to happen fast. We can do some of it but we sure can't do all of this." See e-mail of Michael Kot dated March 21, 2017, a true and correct copy of which is attached hereto at Exhibit 1.

9. Kot and Brosnan continued to correspond. In March 2017, Kot told Brosnan that Two Diamond intended to fund a $1.8 million facility, that it had approval to fund $500,000 of that amount with its own money.

10. On March 22, 2017, Kot wrote to Brosnan with reference to the loan facility, "We're in." See e-mail of Michael Kot dated March 22, 2017, a true and correct copy of which is attached hereto at Exhibit 2.

11. On March 23, 2017, Kot forwarded to Brosnan an e-mail from Bevriqo's Chief Executive Officer, Richard Cabael ("Cabael"), stating that 168 cases of Medea vodka has been shipped pursuant to a purchase order received by Medea, that 224 cases of vodka and 168 cases of vodka had all been shipped against two other purchase orders, and that unspecified numbers of cases had been shipped against two further orders. See e-mail dated March 23, 2017 from Michael Kot, a true and correct copy of which is attached hereto at Exhibit 3.

12. On or about April 6, 2017, Two Diamond forwarded to the CRG Parties purported purchase orders for Medea vodka, which Two Diamond had received from Medea. The purchase orders included the following:

- three orders from Duggan Distillers Product Corp., all dated February 16, 2017, in the amounts of $37,968, $50,624, and $37,968, respectively;
- two orders from Allstar Brands and Distribution RD, dated March 15, 2017 and March 23, 2017, in the amounts of $448,627.60 and $224,313.60 respectively;
- an order from Young's Market Company dated March 6, 2017, in the amount of $25,312; and
- an order from Breakthru Beverage Nevada LLC dated March 23, 2017, in the amount of $12,656.56

See true and correct copies of purchase orders attached hereto as Exhibit 4.

13. Under the heading "ALL STAR AGREEMENT," Two Diamond also represented in writing to Plaintiffs that "All Star Global has agreed to a 3 year contract to purchase a minimum of 17,500 cases per year and are projecting 21,000 cases for 2017." Two Diamond stated the total amount of this contract, assuming the minimum order of 17,500 cases per year, as

"$10.5 million." See Bevriqo Brands Medea Vodka Opportunity, a true and correct copy of is attached hereto as Exhibit 5, at p.2.

14. All of the foregoing representations concerning purchase orders originated from Medea. Medea knew them to be false. Two Diamond knew or should have known them to be false.

15. Also on April 6, 2017, Two Diamond forwarded to the CRG Parties a "Medea Market Analysis Letter" (the "Market Analysis") from The Branford Group ("Branford"). Two Diamond had hired Branford to make the Market Analysis. The Market Analysis stated among other things that in a distressed closeout sale of approximately 21,447 cases of Medea vodka (that is, 262,166 bottles at 12 bottle per case), an expected aggregate recovery would range from $1.9 million to $2.2 million. The vodka that Bevriqo would purchase was part of the approximately 21,447 cases of vodka referenced in the Market Analysis. See a true and correct copy of Market Analysis attached hereto as Exhibit 6.

16. On or about April 7, 2017, Two Diamond sent to Plaintiffs a document entitled "Two Diamond Capital DBA Two Diamond Business Credit Participation Opportunity" (the "Participation Memo").

17. The Participation Memo described that Bevriqo was to buy the assets of Medea. It also stated:

> Two Diamond is being asked to provide a $3MM line of credit to provide for the initial purchase and to fund ongoing working capital needs of the company. Due to portfolio concentration limits of $500M per loan customer by our lender, we have to syndicate the other $2.5MM. Our initial advance is $2MM with no more than $1.5MM against inventory with a cost value of $2.9MM.

See Participation Memo, a true and correct copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit 7, at p. 1. This statement communicated in substance that: (a) Two Diamond would invest $500,000 in the loan to Bevriqo; and (b) that Two Diamond's funds would be part of the "initial advance" to Bevriqo. These statements were knowingly false when made.

18. The Participation Memo also stated:

> The company [i.e. Medea] has secured Purchase Orders for ultimate sales to Krogers (3900 store chain) and Costco (2900 store chain). Both of these stores have done extensive test marketing of this product in California which resulted in the roll-out of this brand across the entire chain. Sales are imminent and may commence prior to the close of our deal. We hope to close this deal by early next week....quite possibly Monday April 10 2017.

Id. at p. 1. When Two Diamond made the quoted statement, it knew or should have known that the "roll-out" of Medea vodka had not "resulted...across the entire chain[s]" of Costco and Kroger stores.

19. The Participation Memo also stated:

> Two Diamond business Credit is providing a $3MM ABL line of credit. Initial funding will be $2MM and we are looking for additional participants to provide the needed $1MM of addition credit. Participants will be paid 2% per month on their participation interest or 24% per annum. We anticipate this transaction to have a life of approximately 1 years time ... Monthly interest is directly deposited in an account of your choosing once the appropriate paperwork is completed.

Id. at p. 3. When Two Diamond made the quoted statement, it knew that it was not providing a $3,000,000 line of credit.

20. On or about April 11, 2017, Two Diamond and Bevriqo entered into a Loan Agreement and Security Agreement (the "Loan Agreement"), and an Inventory Loan Addendum. On the same date, Bevriqo made a Demand Secured Promissory Note in the amount of $2,000,000 to the order of Two Diamond (the "Bevriqo Note"), and Cabael signed a personal guaranty of the Bevriqo Note ("Cabael Guaranty"). See true and correct copies of each at Exhibits 8-10.

21. On or about April 17, 2017, and in reliance on Medea's and Two Diamond's representations, CRG and Claims Recovery each entered into Participation Agreements with Two Diamond, true and correct copies of which are attached hereto as Exhibits 11 and 12.

22. Each Participation Agreement states in part that:

> Participant agrees that Lender will retain in Lender's name, but on behalf of Participant to the extent of the Participation interest in the Loan, all of the obligations of borrower arising out of the Loan Documents....

See Exs. 11 and 12 at p. 3, sec. 4(a):

> Lender agrees that it will use the same prudence and judgment in the servicing of Borrower' [sic] account and in carrying out the terms of the Loan Documents as it would with regard to one of its own loans in which there was no participant.

Id. at p. 4, sec. 4(f).

> At any time during which Lender is administering the Loan Documents with Borrower, however, Lender will obtain the prior written consent of Participant prior to: (i) agreeing to any waiver or amendment which would reduce the principal due on the Loan; or (ii) releasing all or substantially all of the Collateral under the Loan Documents, or releasing any guarantees;

Id.

23. The CRG Parties understood that the loan facility included an Inventory Loan and a Receivables Loan, and that their $1.3 million would fund a portion of the $1.5 million Inventory Loan. They also believed, however, based on Two Diamond's previous misrepresentations, that Two Diamond was funding the balance of the Inventory Loan and, based on the false representations of both Medea and Two Diamond, that accounts receivable to collateralize the Receivables Loan were imminent, and that Two Diamond would imminently fund the Receivables Loan. The CRG Parties' understanding that Two Diamond would be a co-investor was material to their decision to participate. Without this understanding, they would not have participated. Their understanding is confirmed by the amounts of their participation as a percentage of the total loan balance, as reflected in the language of the Participation Agreements. CRG's Participation Agreement stated that its participation would be "an amount equal to forty per cent (40%) of the total Loan Advances as are outstanding from time to time (the "Participation Percentage"), not to exceed eight hundred thousand dollars ($800,000.00). See Exhibit 11 at p. 1. Claims Recovery's Participation Agreement contained the same language except using the figures of 25% and $500,000 instead of 40% and $800,000. The combined amounts of the Inventory Loan and Receivables Loan were $2,000,000. $800,000 is 40% of $2,000,000 and $500,000 is 25% of $2,000,000. See Exhibit 12, at p. 1. The CRG Parties understood Two Diamond to be supplying the remaining 35% of the funds and were shocked, after default, to learn that Two Diamond had put no money into the facility.

24. Pursuant to its Participation Agreement, and in reliance on the information provided by Two Diamond and Medea, CRG caused $800,000 of its funds to be delivered to Two Diamond.

25. Pursuant to its Participation Agreement, and in reliance on the information provided by Two Diamond and Medea, Claims Recovery caused $500,000 of its funds to be delivered to Two Diamond.

26. The CRG Parties reasonably believed that purchase and sales transactions reflected in the Medea purchase orders would begin to generate revenue before or shortly after the CRG Parties supplied their $1.3 million.

27. Two Diamond caused the CRG Parties' $1.3 million to be wired to Medea to fund Bevriqo's purchase of Medea's inventory of vodka.

28. Medea's intent in knowingly making false representations regarding purchase orders, and Two Diamond's intent in repeating the same false representations, were to induce the participation of prospective loan participants including Plaintiffs. At minimum the CRG Parties are persons, or are within a class of persons, whom Medea had reason to expect would act and rely the on Medea's misrepresentations.

29. The CRG Parties did so act and rely to their detriment by entering into the Participation Agreements. The CRG Parties would not have entered into the Participation Agreements and would not have supplied $1.3 million toward Bevriqo's purchase had they known the falsity of Medea's and Two Diamond's representations.

30. On or about May 1, 2017, Two Diamond's George Gochis ("Gochis") e-mailed the CRG Parties that they would receive $12,638.92 as their combined first month's payments of interest on their participations. The CRG Parties received these payments. Two Diamond, however, had received no interest payment from Bevriqo and failed to so inform the CRG Parties.

31. On or about June 1, 2017, Two Diamond sent the CRG Parties, combined, $17,222.26 as their second month's interest on their participations. Again, this money did not originate from Bevriqo. Two Diamond did not tell the CRG Parties that Bevriqo had not paid.

32. The source of funds for the payments described in the preceding two paragraphs was credit that Two Diamond extended to Bevriqo as an advance on the Receivables Loan described in the Loan Agreement and the Participation Agreements. See Business Credit Direct Corp. Interest Statement, attached to e-mail to Joseph Brosnan dated August 4, 2017; see also e-mail to Joseph Brosnan dated July 28, 2017, true and correct copies of which are attached hereto at Exhibit 13. Two Diamond's Michael Kot told Brosnan that Two Diamond advanced money to Bevriqo on the Receivables Loan in order to earn a return on that loan. At the time of Two Diamond's advance, Bevriqo had no accounts receivable for sales of Medea vodka. See id. at August 4, 2017 e-mail (stating that "...inventory is the only collateral being managed at the moment."). Accordingly Two Diamond's advance on the Receivables Loan was unsecured.

33. Bevriqo made no sales of Medea Vodka in April, May, June, or July of 2017, and made no payments on the Loan Documents.

34. In July 2017, Two Diamond declared a default under the Loan Documents.

35. On August 16, 2017, Two Diamond filed a civil action against Bevriqo, Cabael and others in the Massachusetts Superior Court, Plymouth County, captioned Two Diamond Capital Corp. v. Bevriqo, Inc., et al., Civil Action No. 17-83-CV-00865 (the "Plymouth County Action"). A true and correct copy of the Complaint (without exhibits) in the Plymouth County Action is attached hereto as Exhibit 14.

36. Two Diamond retained Branford to liquidate the Collateral. Branford was able to sell one container (1,120 cases) of the collateral at a price of approximately $90 per case. The sale was to Horizon Beverage, a wholesaler for the State of New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlets, run by the New Hampshire State Liquor Commission (the "New Hampshire Sale").

37. The loan participants were entitled to the proceeds of the New Hampshire Sale. They received none. From the proceeds of the New Hampshire Sale, Two Diamond paid, among other things, $21,757.83 to itself. Two Diamond purports to be owed a balance of $26,067.75 that the proceeds of the New Hampshire Sale were insufficient to satisfy.

38. To date, none of the Collateral has been sold in connection with the purported purchase orders described in paragraphs 11-13 above.

39. On May 31, 2018, Two Diamond executed a Cooperation and Settlement Agreement with Bevriqo, Cabael, and Spectrum Spirits, Inc., another defendant in the Plymouth County Action (the "Settlement Agreement"). See Cooperation and Settlement Agreement, a true and correct copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit 15.

40. Section 4(f) of the Participation Agreements required Two Diamond to:

> ...obtain the prior written consent of Participant prior to: (i) agreeing to any waiver or amendment which would reduce the principal due on the Loan; or (ii) releasing all or substantially all of the Collateral under the Loan Documents, or releasing any guarantees;

See Participation Agreements, Exs. 11 and 12 at p. 4, sec. 4(f).

41. The Settlement Agreement recited that the so-called "Bevriqo parties" jointly and severally owed a "balance due... [of] approximately $2,250,000," but that Two Diamond "has agreed to accept the lesser amount of $2,100,000...." See Settlement Agreement at p. 1.

42. The Settlement Agreement also states in part that:

> Lender agrees to release Cabael from his Guaranty and his personal liability under the Execution if and when the Net Proceeds from the sale(s) of the Gateway Inventory reach a total of $1,700,000. For purposes of this Agreement Net Proceeds shall mean the total of all sums received from the sale of the Gateway Inventory less all costs incurred by the Lender in connection with the Lawsuit, the preparation, negotiation and enforcement of this Agreement, and costs of sale, including without limitation Lender's legal fees, commissions and storage and other costs due to Gateway (collectively, "Expenses").

Id. at p. 3 and:

> Net Proceeds in excess of $1,700,000 shall be paid 50% to Lender and 50% to the Bevriqo parties (or to such party(ies) as the Bevriqo parties may designate) until Lender receives a grand total equal to the Judgment Amount of $2,100,000 (i.e., an additional $400,000), at which time Lender will cancel the Note; the Bevriqo parties (or such party(ies) as the Bevriqo parties may designate) shall receive all remaining Net Proceeds. Any shortfall in the payment of the Judgment Amount from the proceeds of the Gateway Inventory shall remain due and owing by the Bevriqo parties, except to the extent that Cabael may have been released as a result of having satisfied certain provisions hereof.

Id. at p. 4 and:

> However, Lender's counsel shall hold the Execution in escrow pending all parties' full compliance with the terms and conditions of this Agreement.

Id. at p. 3 and:

> Provided the Bevriqo parties comply with all terms and condition of this Agreement, and notwithstanding that the Judgment Amount carries with it a statutory interest rate of 12% per annum, Lender agrees to waive all interest on the Judgment Amount for a period of twelve (12) calendar months after the date of the Agreement for Judgment.

Id. and:

> After payment of all Expenses, Lender shall receive 90% of the first $1,700,000 of Net Proceeds, with the remaining 10% to be paid into an escrow account maintained by Lender's counsel from which Lender agrees to pay additional sales and marketing expenses that are approved by Lender in its sole but reasonable judgment.

Id. at p. 4.

43. On June 27, 2018, Two Diamond, Bevriqo, Cabael and Spectrum Spirits filed an Agreement for Judgment pursuant to the Settlement Agreement. A true and correct copy of the Agreement for Judgment is attached hereto as Exhibit 16.

44. Also on June 27, 2018, Two Diamond requested an execution on its judgment in the Plymouth County Action.

45. Two Diamond has not foreclosed on its security interest or levied against assets in order to satisfy execution.

46. In December 2018, Kot informed Brosnan that a company called Grocery Outlet had submitted a purchase order for approximately 1,000 cases of Medea vodka. Kot represented that Grocery Outlet was a sales lead of Cabael's. The CRG Parties understand and believe that: (a) vodka has been shipped to Grocery Outlet on its purchase order; and (b) that Medea has written to Grocery Outlet demanding that it not sell the vodka. They have repeatedly asked Two Diamond for a copy of the purchase order and for the amount that Cabael or his agent are to be paid as a sales commission. Two Diamond had ignored their requests for information.

53. The CRG Parties incorporate the allegations of paragraphs 1 through 52.

56. Plaintiffs are persons or are among a class of persons whom Medea knew or should have known would rely on its fraudulent misrepresentations.

57. The CRG Parties reasonably relied on Medea's fraudulent misrepresentations in entering into its Participation Agreements with Two Diamond.

58. The CRG Parties have suffered damages in the amount of no less than $1,233,374.90 as a result of Medea's fraud. This sum represents their $1.3 million investment minus $40,625.10 of interest payments minus $26,000 of the facility fees charged to Bevriqo, which were paid to the CRG Parties as of the closing.

Count 4 (Misrepresentation v. Two Diamond)

59. The CRG Parties incorporate the allegations of paragraphs 1 through 58.

60. In order to induce the CRG Parties to fund Bevriqo's purchase, Medea knowingly and materially misrepresented the existence of bona fide purchase orders.

65. The CRG Parties incorporate the allegations of paragraphs 1 through 64.

66. Two Diamond's conduct respecting the CRG Parties and the Participation Agreements constitutes unfair and deceptive trade practices as prohibited under Massachusetts law.

67. Two Diamond's unfair and deceptive trade practices occurred primarily and substantially in Massachusetts.

68. The CRG Parties have suffered and will continue to suffer harm and monetary damages, in an amount to be determined at trial, as a result of Two Diamond's unfair and deceptive practices.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

CRG FINANCIAL, LLC and CLAIMS RECOVERY GROUP, LLC, Plaintiffs,
v.	No. 19-cv-10182-DJC
TWO DIAMOND CAPITAL CORP. and MEDEA, INC.,
Defendants.

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

CASPER, J.

I. Introduction

This case arises out of a series of agreements to fund the purchase a Vodka. D. 1. Plaintiffs CRG Financial, LLC ("CRG") and Claims Reco ("Claims Recovery") (collectively, "Plaintiffs") have filed this lawsuit against Diamond Capital Corp. ("Two Diamond") and Medea, Inc. ("Medea") in connection with the loan facility and related agreements. D. 1. Medea has moved for summary judgment on the single count against it for fraud (Count III). D. 126. For the reasons stated below, the Court ALLOWS the motion.

II. Standard of Review

The Court grants summary judgment where there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the undisputed facts demonstrate that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). "A fact is material if it carries with it the potential to affect the outcome of the suit under applicable law." Santiago–Ramos v. Centennial P.R. Wireless Corp., 217 F.3d 46, 52 (1st Cir. 2000). The movant bears the burden of demonstrating the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Carmona v. Toledo, 215 F.3d 124, 132 (1st Cir. 2000); see Celotex v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). If the movant meets its burden, the non-moving party may not rest on the allegations or denials in its pleadings, Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 256 (1986), but must come forward with specific admissible facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial. Borges ex rel. S.M.B.W. v. Serrano–Isern, 605 F.3d 1, 5 (1st Cir. 2010). The Court "view[s] the record in the light most favorable to the nonmovant, drawing reasonable inferences in his favor." Noonan v. Staples, Inc., 556 F.3d 20, 25 (1st Cir. 2009).

III. Factual Background

The following summary of material facts is taken from Medea's statement of material facts, D. 128 as well as CRG's response to same, D. 133, and are undisputed unless otherwise noted.

Medea is in the business of manufacturing and distributing Medea Vodka. D. 128 & 133 at ¶¶ 15, 19; D. 127 at 8. Brandon Laidlaw ("Laidlaw") is Medea's CEO. D. 128 & D. 133 at ¶ 16. In 2016, Medea decided to spin off its vodka inventory and focus on licensing the proprietary electronic messaging technology on its bottles. D. 128 & D. 133 at ¶¶ 19-20, 25. Non-party Bevriqo, Inc. ("Bevriqo") is in the vodka business and is headed by Richard Cabael ("Cabael"). Id. at ¶¶ 17-18. Laidlaw and Cabael were in touch about Bevriqo purchasing Medea Vodka. Id. at ¶ 26. Plaintiff CRG provided liquidity to bankruptcy creditors and loans on distressed assets. Id. at ¶ 11. Joseph Brosnan ("Brosnan") was employed by DRB Capital LLC as a trader for CRG. Id. at ¶ 8. Robert Axenrod ("Axenrod") is the CEO of CRG and the managing member of Claims Recovery. Id. at ¶ 10. Two Diamond is in the business of providing asset-based lending accounts receivable financing and other specialty loans. Id. at ¶¶ 12, 14. Michael Kot ("Kot") and George Gochis ("Gochis") are Two Diamond's principals. Id. at ¶ 13.

As explained in further detail below, there were several transactions involved in the funding and purchase of Medea Vodka inventory. The purchase and sale portion of the underlying transaction was executed in the Second Amended Inventory Purchase and Licensing Agreement (the "Asset Agreement") signed by Medea and Bevriqo on April 14, 2017. Id. at ¶ 39; D. 126-5. On April 11, 2017, Two Diamond loaned money to Bevriqo, pursuant to the Loan and Security Agreement, to acquire the Medea Vodka inventory. D. 128 & D. 133 at ¶ 62. Plaintiffs and Two Diamond entered into participation agreements to provide such financing so that Bevriqo could purchase the Medea Vodka. Id. ¶¶ 67-70. Specifically, on April 13, 2017, CRG executed a participation agreements for $800,000 to invest in the inventory loan. Id. at ¶ 67. Claims Recovery did the same on the same day for an investment of $500,000. Id. at ¶ 68. On April 17, 2017, CRG wired these funds to Two Diamond and Two Diamond then wired $1,500,000 to Medea towards Bevriqo's purchase. Id. at ¶ 45.

Since the sole claim against Medea is one for fraud, based upon the alleged misrepresentations that Medea made regarding "the existence of bona fide purchase orders" for Medea Vodka in the formation of the contracts under which Bevriqo later defaulted, D. 1 (verified complaint) ¶ 54, the Court focuses on this matter in the summary below.

A. Prior to Execution of the Asset Agreement

On April 12, 2017, prior to the execution of the Asset Agreement (or the other agreements), Medea provided copies of its distribution agreements with Allstar Global, LLC ("Allstar"), Youngs Market and Duggans Distillers ("Duggans") and Herman Jensen Agreement to Bevriqo. D. 128 & 133 at ¶ 123; D. 126-32 at 164. Medea provided copies of purchase orders for Medea Vodka issued by third party liquor distributors, including Allstar to Cabael. D. 128 & D. 133 at ¶ 126. Gary Carpenter ("Carpenter"), an advisor engaged by Cabael to assist him in getting financing for his Medea Vodka transaction, forwarded copies of several purchase orders issued by distributors for Medea Vodka to Two Diamond, who forwarded the communication to Brosnan. Id. at ¶¶ 55, 127. Stevens, principal of Allstar, represented to Cabael and Medea that, among other things, he sought to extend its exclusive distribution agreement with Medea for distribution in Latin America from three years, dated December 9, 2016, to ninety-nine years. Id. at ¶¶ 139, 141. This agreement required Allstar to purchase 17,500 cases of Medea Vodka annually for a three-year term for distribution in Latin America. Id. at ¶ 142. Allstar had the contractual right to terminate this agreement on thirty days written notice. Id. at ¶ 143. Allstar paid Medea $224,000 for its purchase of Medea Vodka under purchase order #1001. Id. at ¶ 147. Cabael or Carpenter informed Two Diamond that Allstar had made this payment. Id. at ¶ 148. Medea later assigned Purchase Orders ## 1002 and 1003 from Allstar to Bevriqo. Id. at ¶ 149.

Also prior to the execution of the Asset Agreement, Medea provided its financial records to Cabael. Id. at ¶ 164; D. 126-24; D. 126-32 at 722-23. This transmittal included sales forecasts, accounts receivable and new purchase order information reporting sales of 1147 cases for $229,800 from January 1, 2017. D. 128 & 133 at ¶ 181; D. 126-24. Medea informed Cabael that Medea Vodka was losing money and Cabael informed Two Diamond that Medea was losing money. D. 128 & 133 at ¶ 165-166. The projections provided by Carpenter to Two Diamond on March 20, 2017, D. 126-28, the sales projections Two Diamond provided in the Participation Memorandum regarding the "Medea Vodka Opportunity," D. 1-5, and sales projections provided in the Two Diamond "Participation Opportunity," D. 1-7, are different than the projections that Medea provided to Cabael on March 14, 2017. D. 128 & 133 at ¶ 183. Cabael made up his own sales projections utilizing his own "growth formula" that he provided to Two Diamond. Id. at ¶ 184.

B. The Underlying Medea and Bevriqo Transaction

Medea was engaged in the manufacture and distribution of Medea Vodka. Id. at ¶ 19. For the first three quarters of 2016, Medea's Vodka sales trended negatively. D. 133 at ¶ 24. In 2016, Medea decided to sell its vodka inventory. Id. at ¶ 25.

On April 14, 2017, Medea and Bevriqo executed the Asset Agreement. Id. at ¶ 39. The Asset Agreement provided for Bevriqo to pay Medea a total of $7,720,000, including (i) $2,720,000 to purchase an inventory of finished Medea Vodka products and components; and (ii) license fees for use of Medea's electronic messaging system in the sum of $1,000,000 per year for a term of five years. Id. at ¶ 40. Under the Asset Agreement, Bevriqo represented and warranted to Medea that, among other things, it had sufficient facilities, resources and personnel to market and sell Medea Vodka and perform its duties under the contract, that it acknowledged and received no assurances that its business relationship with Medea would continue or that any investment would be recouped and that it was familiar with the laws of the territories which it operated and released Medea from any claims in connection with vodka imports or exports. Id. at ¶ 42.

C. Bevriqo Defaults on the Asset Agreement with Medea

The Asset Agreement required Bevriqo to make an initial payment of $1,500,000 towards its $2,720,000 vodka inventory purchase. Id. at ¶ 44. Bevriqo paid Medea this $1,500,000 on April 17, 2017. Id. at ¶ 45. On or about May 9, 2017, Bevriqo invoiced Allstar for its Purchase Orders ## 1002 and 1003. Id. at ¶ 150. Allstar did not take delivery or pay for the Medea Vodka for which it was invoiced by Bevriqo on May 9, 2017. Id. at ¶ 151.

Bevriqo ultimately sold no Medea Vodka, generated no receivables and defaulted on its loan payment. Id. at ¶ 50. Bevriqo defaulted on payment of its $2,000,000 promissory note to secure payment of the first- and second-years' license fees and the balance of its payment to Medea for the vodka inventory. Id. at ¶ 51. Medea declared Bevriqo's default under the Asset Agreement on June 26, 2017. Id. at ¶ 52; D. 126-7.

D. Bevriqo Defaults on the Loan and Security Agreement with Two Diamond

On April 11, 2017, Bevriqo, as a borrower, and Two Diamond, as a lender, entered into a Loan and Security Agreement in the principal sum of $2,000,000, pursuant to which Two Diamond funded the Inventory Loan. Id. at ¶ 62. Bevriqo delivered its $2,000,000 note payable to Two Diamond. Id. at ¶ 63. Cabael delivered his unconditional guarantee of Bevriqo's performance. Id. at ¶ 64. Bevriqo's obligations to Two Diamond were secured and collateralized by (i) the Medea Vodka inventory; and (ii) Cabael's guaranty. Id. at ¶ 65. Plaintiffs agreed to invest $1,300,000 in the $1,500,000 Inventory Loan. Id. at ¶ 66. On April 13, 2017, CRG executed a participation agreement with Two Diamond to invest $800,000 in the Inventory Loan. Id. at ¶ 67. That same day, Claims Recovery executed a participation agreement with Two Diamond to invest $500,000 in the Inventory Loan. Id. at ¶ 68. Bevriqo failed to make any payments due to Two Diamond for the Inventory Loan. Id. at ¶¶ 73, 74.

IV. Procedural History

On January 28, 2019, the Plaintiffs filed their complaint in this case. D. 1. The following day, Plaintiffs moved for a temporary restraining order against Two Diamond. D. 5. On April 4, 2019, after a motion hearing, the Court denied Plaintiffs' motion. D. 21. Medea moved to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, D. 31, which the Court denied. D. 92. The Court has now heard the parties on Medea's pending motion for summary judgment and took the matter under advisement. D. 143.

V. Discussion

A. Choice of Law

Medea contends that this Court should apply New York law to Plaintiffs' fraud claim. To determine which state's law applies to a particular case, Massachusetts courts employ the "functional choice-of-law approach that responds to the interests of the parties, the States involved, and the interstate system as a whole." Bushkin Assocs., Inc. v. Raytheon Co., 393 Mass. 622, 631 (1985) (citing the considerations under Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 6 (1971)). Medea argues that New York law should apply to the fraud claim as it was the choice of law under the participation agreements between Plaintiffs and Two Diamond that "[Plaintiffs] insisted should apply" and is also where the majority owner of CRG is located. D. 127 at 16. On the other hand, CRG argues that this argument must fail noting that Medea "wrongly assume[s] that if New York law governed the participation agreements, it would [also] govern CRG's claim of having been induced by false misrepresentations to sign" same. D. 131 at 11. Massachusetts courts "have repeatedly held that claims of fraudulent inducement do not fall within the scope of contractual choice-of-law provisions" such as those within the participation agreements. Computer Sales Intern., Inc. v. Lycos, Inc., No. 05-10017, 2006 WL 1896192, at *1 (D. Mass. July 11, 2006) (citing Kitner v. CTW Transport, Inc., 53 Mass. App. Ct. 741, 744-45 (Mass. App. 2002); Laboeuf v. Bigliazzi, No. 000048B, 2001 WL 881469, at *7 (Mass. Super. Apr. 10, 2001)); see First Sec. Bank, N.A. v. Northwest Airlines, Inc., No. 95-cv-12103, 2001 WL 92175, at *3, n.8 (D. Mass. Jan. 3, 2001) (concluding under Massachusetts law that a contractual choice of law clause did not apply to a tort claim).

In addition, applying the functional approach, Massachusetts law should apply to the fraud claim here. Even by Medea's accounting, this action is pending in Massachusetts and Two Diamond, at the center of the related transactions is based here, D. 127 at 16. Moreover, any preference that Plaintiffs expressed for the application of New York law was only to the participation agreements to which Medea was not a party. D. 131 at 11. Moreover, considering the substantive interests of the forum, Massachusetts, there is an interest in applying Massachusetts law here, particularly given the differing burden of proof. Id. at 12. For all these reasons,, Massachusetts law shall be applied in analyzing the fraud claim, meaning that this Court will employ a preponderance of the evidence burden of proof, See Keating v. Pappalardo, 74 Mass. App. Ct. 1102, 2009 WL 886888, at *4 (2009) (affirming that burden of proof on fraud claims in Massachusetts is preponderance of the evidence as opposed to clear and convincing evidence standard), and not the clear and convincing evidence standard that would apply under New York law. D. 127 at 18 and cases cited. Given, however, that the Court concludes that Medea is entitled to summary judgment even subjecting Plaintiffs' claim to the preponderance of evidence standard, the outcome here would have been the same even if the Court had applied the (higher) clear and convincing standard under New York law.

B. Fraud

In Count III of the verified complaint, CRG asserts that Medea "knowingly and materially misrepresented the existence of bona fide purchase orders," as a means to "induce the CRG Parties to fund Bevriqo's purchase." D. 1 ¶ 54. They further assert that Medea knew its representations were false and that Plaintiffs relied upon same in entering into participation agreements with Two Diamond. Id. at ¶¶ 55-57. The only purchase orders referenced in the complaint include specific purchase orders from Duggan Distillers, Allstar, Young's Market Company and Breakthru Beverage Nevada LLC, id. at ¶ 12, and the complaint also references Two Diamond's statement in the Participation Memorandum to Plaintiffs that Medea had secured purchase orders for sales to Kroger and Costco. Id. at ¶ 18.

Complaints alleging fraud must also "state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud," Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b), requiring Plaintiffs to allege "the time, place and content," of the false representations giving rise to the claim for fraud. Dickey v. U.S. Bank Trust N.A., No. 19-cv-12504, 2020 WL 4474273, at *4 (D. Mass. Aug. 3, 2020); see Epstein v. C.R. Bard, Inc., 460 F.3d 183, 190-91 (1st Cir. 2006). To prevail on a claim for fraud, Plaintiffs must show: (1) Medea made a false representation of a material fact (2) with knowledge of its falsity (3) for the purpose of inducing them to act thereon and (4) they relied on the representation as true and (5) acted upon it to their damage. See Dickey, 2020 WL 4474273, at *4 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

Medea is entitled to summary judgment where CRG, has failed to show on this undisputed record of material facts, that Medea made any false representation of material fact, the first element of any fraud claim. As to Two Diamond's representation in the Participation Memorandum that Medea had secured purchase orders for sales to Kroger (3900 store chains) and Costco (2900 store chain), there is no evidence in the record that Medea made such representations. In fact, Medea's own forecast of sales to Kroger and Costco, reflected in the March 14, 2017 email to Cabael, predicted not a national, thousand-store rollouts, but sales of (estimated) 10,000 cases to Kroger in a year and (estimated) 672 cases to Costco NE. D. 126-24 at 3. There is no suggestion in the record that Medea made the representation contained in the Participation Memorandum. D. 127 at 20-21.

As to the purchase orders referenced in the complaint, there is no evidence in the record that these purchase orders were not bona fide or that Medea made any misrepresentation about them to Plaintiffs. As pled, Plaintiffs base their fraud claim on Medea's alleged misrepresentation of the authenticity of the three orders from Duggan from February 16, 2017 (for $37,968, $50,624, and $37,968, respectively), two orders from Allstar Brands from March 15, 2017 and March 23, 2017 (for $448,627.60 and $224,313.60, respectively), an order from Young's Market Company from March 6, 2017 in the amount of $25,312 and an order from Breakthru Beverage Nevada LLC from March 23, 2017 for $12,656.56. D. 1 at ¶¶ 12. Plaintiffs plead that these representations "originated from Medea," and that Medea knew same to be false. Id. at ¶ 14. "[M]ere allegations of fraud . . . are too conclusional to satisfy the particularity requirement, no matter how many times such accusations are repeated." Hayduk v. Lanna, 775 F.2d 441, 444 (1st Cir. 1985).

Now on a fully developed record, Plaintiffs have not marshaled evidence of their fraud allegations as to these purchase orders. There is perhaps the most in the record about the Allstar purchase orders since Allstar performed on the first purchase order to Medea, but then failed to do so on the latter two purchase orders in March 2017 that were assigned to Bevriqo when it invoiced Allstar on May 9, 2017 for them. Even as to the Allstar purchase orders, however, there is no evidence that Medea made any representations, much less misrepresentations, to Plaintiffs about them or regarding Allstar's ability to execute on them. Much of Plaintiffs' opposition focuses on alleged misrepresentations that Medea made to Cabael regarding the invoices, but even assuming that those were misrepresentations, there is no record evidence that Medea made such representations to Plaintiffs. Moreover, whatever statements that Medea made Cabael, the record is clear that Cabael made different and more optimistic representations to Two Diamond.[1] D. 139 at 2 (chart contrasting Medea's forecasts to Cabael with those Cabael provided to Two Diamond).[2] Accordingly, this Court concludes that the fraud claim fails for lack of evidence of any material misrepresentations about the purchase orders by Medea to Plaintiffs.

Having reached this conclusion as ot the lack of false representation of a material fact by Medea to Plaintiffs (and failure to show any such representation caused damage to Plaintiffs), the Court need not reach Medea's further arguments that Plaintiffs' claim also fails for failure to

[1]For this reason as well, Plaintiffs have failed to show, that any of Medea's alleged representations (assuming arguendo that they had shown actionable misrepresentations here) as opposed to representations by others, caused Plaintiff's damages. See Sparks v. Fidelity Nat. Title Ins. Co., 294 F.3d 259, 272 (1st Cir. 2002) (agreeing that even "assuming for purposes of the summary judgment motion that the defendants had misrepresented the extent of their ownership of property in the subdivision, [plaintiff] could not prove that the deception was the cause of any injury or damage to him).

[2]Plaintiffs' reliance on Koch v. Greenberg, 14 F. Supp. 3d 247, 257-58 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) does not warrant a different outcome here. There, the Court noted that "under New York law, while a plaintiff may not generally claim reliance on statements made by third parties, so long as plaintiff is among the 'class of persons' intended to rely on the statement, . . . , it is unnecessary that such 'representations should be made to the plaintiff directly.'" Id. (internal citations omitted). Even assuming arguendo New York law applies, Koch is distinguishable because the defendant there "was a driving force behind the . . . representations" made to the class of persons intended to rely on the statement. Id. at 258. The same cannot be said of Medea on the now developed record, particularly when Cabael and his agents were making representations to Two Diamond.

satisfy the other requisite elements. In re Fresenius Granuflo/Naturalyte Dialysate Prods. Liab. Litig., 76 F. Supp. 3d 279, 292 (D. Mass. 2019) (noting that "[a] plaintiff's failure to establish any one of the essential elements of fraud is fatal to recovery") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).[3]

VI. Conclusion

So Ordered.

[3]In their opposition, Plaintiffs address the allegations of fraud concerning misrepresentation of the existence of bona fide purchase orders, but now claim more broadly that the fraud claim arises from "Medea knowingly made false representations about market demand, including without limitation representations concerning certain purchase orders for the [Medea Vodka]." D. 131 at 2. Such allegations do not save Plaintiffs' claim against Medea. First, as Medea points out, such allegation was not made in the verified complaint, D. 139 at 2, and "summary judgment is not a procedural second chance to flesh out inadequate pleadings," Fleming v. Lind-Waldock & Co., 922 F.2d 20, 24 (1st Cir. 1990). Second, even if this "market demand" allegation had been included in the complaint, it fails because Plaintiffs do not specify the time, place and content of Medea's alleged false statements regarding same as required by Rule 9(b) except as to the purchase orders specified in the complaint and discussed above. For at least these reasons, Plaintiffs' new allegation in this regard is not a basis for denying summary judgment to Medea.

JURY TRIAL DEMA…

GENERAL ALLEGATIONS

1. Plaintiff MEDEA INC. ("MEDEA") is a distribution and health care solutions company based in Pleasanton, California.

2. Defendant HONEYWELL SAFETY PRODUCTS USA, INC., ("HONEYWELL")

LAW OFFICES OF

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA 95864

is a Delaware Corporation that regularly and actively does business within the State of California, including, but not limited to, selling products to California consumers. HONEYWELL is one of the nation's largest manufacturers of PPE, including, but not limited to, surgical N95 masks.

GENERAL ALLEGATIONS – SUMMARY OF DISPUTE

3. This dispute arises from HONEYWELL using its substantial market power to coerce its distributor, MEDEA, to purchase 4 million personal respiratory protective devices ("surgical N95 masks") that HONEYWELL knew, or should have known, were defective and deformed. Then, when provided notice of the defects in the surgical N95 masks HONEYWELL refused to live up to the high manufacturing and customer service standards it repeatedly boasts about in statements made to the government and public at large. Most importantly, HONEYWELL refuses to acknowledge and take responsibility for the material representations of fact it to MEDEA about the quality of the surgical N95 masks that HONEYWELL knew were false and HONEYWELL knowingly allowed the surgical N95 masks go to market where the medical devices would be used by frontline medical professionals and others.

4. The true names and capacities, whether individual, corporate, associate, or otherwise, of the Defendants named herein as DOES 1 – 100 inclusive, are currently unknown to MEDEA who therefore sues those defendants by such fictious names. MEDEA will amend this Complaint to allege their true names when and if they are ascertained.

5. MEDEA is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that Defendants, and each of them, including the DOE Defendants, were at all times relevant herein the agent, servant, employee, officer, director, joint venturer, and/or parent, partner, subsidiary, affiliate, successor in interest, related entity or alter ego of each of the other Defendants and, in doing the acts alleged hereinafter alleged, Defendants, and each of them, were acting within the scope of authority confirmed upon that party by consent, approval, and/or ratification whether said authority was actual or apparent.

6. MEDEA is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, there exists such a unity of interests between the Defendants, and each of them, including the DOE Defendants, that they are in fact, the alter ego of each other. MEDEA is further informed and believes, and on that basis

3638 AMERICAN RIVER DRIVE
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA 95864

alleges, that Defendants, and each of them, including the DOE Defendants, converted or otherwise misappropriated assets belonging to MEDEA through fraud and other unjust means.

VENUE ALLEGATIONS

7. Venue is proper in the County of Alameda as the contract at issue was performed within the County of Alameda and HONEYWELL regularly and intentionally conducts business within the County of Alameda, and the breach of contract as alleged herein occurred within the County of Alameda.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC AND THE IMPORTANCE OF PERSONAL RESPIRATORY PROTECTIVE DEVICES.

8. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 7 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

9. On February 4, 2020, the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) determined that there was a public health emergency that had a significant potential to affect national security or the health and security of United States citizens living abroad. That threat to health and security made its way to American shores. That threat was the virus that causes Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19). According to the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services as well as medical professionals across the nation, one of the most effective ways for medical professionals and citizens alike to protect themselves and each other from COVID-19 is the use of personal respiratory protective devices.

10. According to the Mayo Clinic, "An N95 (mask) offers the highest level of protection. It offers more protection than a medical mask does because it filters out both large and small particles when the wearer inhales. Non-surgical N95s can be used by the general public. The CDC has said surgical N95 masks should be reserved for health care providers. Health care providers must be trained and pass a fit test before using a surgical N95 mask." https://www.mayoclinic.org/diseases-conditions/coronavirus/in-depth/coronavirus-mask/art-20485449

HONEYWELL'S RESPONSE TO COVID-19 AND PROMISES MADE TO THE PUBLIC

11. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 9 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

12. In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, HONEYWELL converted some of its manufacturing facilities in Rhode Island, Arizona, Michigan and Germany to produce supplies of personal protective equipment for healthcare workers. In April 2020, HONEYWELL began production of N95 masks at the company's factories in Smithfield and Phoenix, aiming to produce 20 million masks a month.

13. HONEYWELL'S Chairman and Chief Executive Office is quoted as stating ""We are honored to support the U.S. government's efforts to protect Americans with personal protective equipment made right here in the United States," "Our Rhode Island facility already produces industry-leading safety gear and soon will play a critical role in supplying the Strategic National Stockpile with N95 masks." https://www.honeywell.com/us/en/news/2020/03/n95-mask-and-the-coronavirus-more-production-underway

14. On April 3, 2020, HONEYWELL issued the following statement:

> "Honeywell is communicating the following principles to our stakeholders to ensure our personal protective equipment (PPE) products are being placed quickly and cost-effectively in the hands of those most in need – including first responders and medical professionals.
> At Honeywell, we are committed to supporting the safety of our employees, customers and fellow citizens around the world. This is a critical time in our industry and in our history and the number of requests and orders we have received for personal protective equipment (PPE) related to the COVID-19 pandemic is unprecedented.
> To that end, we have begun to invest in new production facilities and expand existing ones to increase production of these critical PPE products and bring them to market as quickly as possible. We are working around the clock with our teams to ensure that we are serving the most critical needs of our partners and our communities and to ensure that those who need these critical items most – the medical care workers and first responders – have access to the PPE they need so they can care for others safely.
> There has been substantial media coverage recently describing how certain distributors and individuals have purchased and hoarded critical health-related products such as ventilators, masks and sanitizers, obtained through various channels to engage in price gouging of end-user customers. This activity is indefensible, immoral and illegal. It puts lives at risk and strains > the already financially challenged resources of our most vulnerable population and we have zero tolerance for this.

> We expect that, at a minimum, all of our partners will comply with all applicable laws prohibiting price gouging and apply appropriate diligence to the greatest extent possible to understand how our products are being purchased so that they are placed quickly and cost-effectively in the hands of those most in need – including first responders and medical professionals. In addition, while we do not control the prices that third parties set, we have established standardization and fair pricing on select personal protective equipment used in the COVID-19 response effort.
> If we find that one of our partners is not upholding the letter or spirit of this commitment, we reserve the right not to fulfill that partner's orders and terminate our relationship with that party.
> The days ahead will be stressful for all of us. Only by working together will we ensure that the most critical needs are met and those that are placing themselves in harm's way will have the protection needed to serve those affected by this pandemic. We thank our partners for the efforts they are undertaking to help serve our communities and look forward to working with them in the weeks ahead as we stand together in this crisis to serve those impacted by this great challenge."

15. Several state and local governments contracted with HONEYWELL to produce N95 particulate-filtering face masks during the pandemic. In April 2020, Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti announced a deal with HONEYWELL to produce 24 million N95 masks to distribute to healthcare workers and first responders. United States President Donald Trump visited the HONEYWELL Aerospace facility in Phoenix on May 5, 2020, where he acknowledged the "incredibly patriotic and hard-working men and women of HONEYWELL" for making N95 masks and referred to HONEYWELL'S production as a "miraculous achievement." According to HONEYWELL, it converted its "aerospace inventory facility" in Rhode Island to an "N95 production facility" to make N95 masks during the pandemic. In a process that normally takes nine months to complete, Honeywell finished the job in five weeks. https://www.honeywell.com/us/en/news/2020/04/n95-masks-now-made-in-rhode-island

16. HONEYWELL publicly prides itself on its "Integrity and Compliance." HONEYWELL describes its Code of Business Conduct as follows:

> At Honeywell, we have a responsibility to conduct ourselves with the highest levels of integrity in everything we do. This helps us sustain the credibility of our brand, maintain our strong reputation, and build on our track record of growth and performance. From the shop floor to the boardroom, all Honeywell employees and representatives are held to the highest standard—and we cultivate a culture of not just meeting, but exceeding all laws and regulations in the countries where we do business.

LAW OFFICES OF

17. HONEYWELL boasts that its employees are trained in its Code of Business Conduct that is "...designed to provide guidance on the Company's standards of Integrity and Compliance. Our Code is an integral element of the HONEYWELL Behaviors." HONEYWELL'S Code of Business Conduct promises the following:

- "Integrity & Compliance Councils at the corporate, business unit and regional levels."
- "Thorough reviews of transactions to ensure we meet every legal standard."
- "Resources to ensure we comply with every law—at every level of our business."
- "We will never tolerate retaliation against anyone asking questions or raising concerns in good faith. Our employees should always feel comfortable coming forward or immediately reporting anyone not observing the Code through one of the available reporting channels."

18. HONEYWELL'S Code of Business Conduct further mandates:

- Honeywell expects all employees to act with integrity and to comply fully with the Code of Business Conduct.
- To strive to provide products and services that meet or exceed customers' requirements for quality, reliability, and value.
- To comply with all quality control standards.
- To never seek to limit the competitive opportunities of rivals in a deceitful and fraudulent way.
- To never take advantage of anyone through unfair dealing practices. "This means that we are careful not to misrepresent the quality, features, or availability of our products or services."

19. One hypothetical found within the HONEYWELL Code of Business Conduct is as follows:

Q: Min learns of a potential problem discovered during routine production line testing. The extent to which the problem could affect product safety is unknown at this time, and Min isn't sure what to do. Should Min speak up about this, even if she doesn't know all the details?

A: Yes. Producing and selling potentially unsafe products could result in customer and employee injury. Min should report the problem immediately, even if she isn't sure how production will be affected. Min should make her supervisor, quality assurance contact, or health and safety representative aware of the issue as soon as possible. If Min believes her concerns are not being adequately considered, she should consider raising them to the Law Department or via the Helpline, as discussed in "Asking for Advice and Voicing Concerns."

THE HONEYWELL AND MEDEA RELATIONSHIP AND THE PURCHASE OF N95 SURGICAL MASKS

20. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 19 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

21. MEDEA, as a consumer-packaged goods and technology provider, was in a position to assist in the distribution of much-needed Personal Protective Equipment. Effective January 1, 2021, MEDEA entered into a Distribution Agreement with HONEYWELL. A true and correct copy of the Distribution Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and is incorporated herein as though fully set forth.

22. MEDEA expended significant time and resources during HONEYWELL'S vetting process to become an authorized HONEYWELL distributor. At the time the Distribution Agreement was executed, HONEYWELL constituted Medea's most prominent and well-known U.S. supplier of safety products, and MEDEA considered its distribution partnership with HONEYWELL a monumental achievement in the Company's history.

23. The purpose of the Distribution Agreement was for MEDEA to become a distributor of HONEYWELL products, and specifically to become a distributor of Personal Protective Equipment, and specifically N95 masks.

24. Shortly after MEDEA entered into the Distribution Agreement, Brent Durham, HONEYWELL's Vice President of Sales, informed MEDEA that in order to remain a mask distributor, MEDEA was required to purchase 2.65 million masks immediately. Mr. Durham then increased HONEYWELL's demand to 4 million masks. MEDEA informed Durham that MEDEA

3638 AMERICAN RIVER DRIVE

was still attempting to finalize an agreement to sell that many masks in such a short time period. Despite this, Durham demanded that MEDEA agree to purchase the masks immediately or it would lose its status as a HONEYWELL mask distributor. Given the economic threats being made by HONEYWELL, MEDEA agreed to purchase 4 million DC365 Respirators with an $800,000 down payment. The total price for the masks was $3,960,000. A true and correct copy of the Purchase Order dated April 1, 2021 is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated herein as though fully set forth.

25. When Mr. Durham made his foregoing threats to cancel MEDEA's right to distribute HONEYWELL masks, he knew or should have known that MEDEA's business would be harmed should the supply of masks be cut off. Durham also knew or should have known that the Distribution Agreement does not require MEDEA to purchase any minimum quantity of HONEYWELL products. Prior to the execution of the Distribution Agreement, HONEYWELL never informed MEDEA that it had to purchase any minimum quantity of products, let alone 4 million units on extremely short notice and with very little product information provided.

26. Prior to and after HONEYWELL sold the masks to MEDEA, it represented that the masks had an unlimited shelf-life and that this was a significant factor that differentiated the HONEYWELL masks from N95s made by other manufacturers such as 3M, which had a shorter shelf-life. However, shortly after the masks were delivered to MEDEA, HONEYWELL informed MEDEA that the masks only had a 6-year shelf-life. HONEYWELL also represented that the masks were one size fits all/universal.

27. MEDEA set out to sell the masks to various businesses and government entities, including, but not limited to, the State of California, the Mexican Government, Cal-VET, and Providence Queen of the Valley Medical Center. As is commercially reasonable and standard within the industry, MEDEA also sent various groups samples of the masks.

28. On or around April 27, 2021, the CDC released new guidance stating that people do not need to wear masks outdoors when they walk, bike or run alone or with members of their household regardless of vaccination status, and that fully vaccinated individuals do not need to wear masks outdoors at all unless they are in a big crowd of strangers, such as at sporting events or

3638 AMERICAN RIVER DRIVE
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA 95864

outdoor concerts. Also, the State of California announced on this date that it would align with the CDC's outdoor masking recommendations, stating that those who are fully vaccinated do not need to wear a mask outdoors unless they were in a large crowd.

29. Given HONEYWELL's contacts through lobbying and governmental affair personnel, MEDEA is informed and believes that HONEYWELL knew that the mask restrictions were being relaxed prior to the public issuance of the new guidance and intentionally failed to inform MEDEA of the upcoming guidance while still demanding that MEDEA purchase 4 million masks.

30. MEDEA was informed by entities that had purchased masks and entities who were provided samples, that the masks were defective and "junk." The Complaints were all similar in that the masks "tended to collapse at the midface and hit your mouth," "felt very tight on two of our reviewers faces but one didn't pass the fit test," "were too small for anyone to try on," "will not fit most of the staff around the nose to cover properly," was "not fitting right," "sits higher [than other masks]" and that the face was "exposed" allowing air to get in. Further, there were complaints that the masks did not meet fit requirements and were therefore not safe for medical professionals to use. MEDEA continues to receive complaints regarding personal respiratory protective devices manufactured by HONEYWELL.

31. In or around August 2021, MEDEA made HONEYWELL aware that the masks that were provided to MEDEA by HONEYWELL were defective and/or otherwise did not meet the standard of quality mandated by HONEYWELL. On or about September 15, 2021, HONEYWELL representative Braden Bicknell arrived at a MEDEA customer's office in Napa, California, to inspect the masks that were sent to a particular medical center. At that inspection, it was reported that the HONEYWELL employee agreed that the masks were deformed and not to the quality of HONEYWELL products. Specifically, Bicknell confirmed that the masks were crushed and that the masks "felt somewhat less robust than it should, which I suspect is why it may not have fit tested properly." According to Bicknell, "[t]hese two findings surprised me because we have not experienced this before and are selling millions of these masks at this point." Bicknell also reported to MEDEA over the phone shortly after the inspection that the masks were "thin" and "odd" and

3638 AMERICAN RIVER DRIVE
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA 95864

did not resemble the normal DC365, which he could not explain. Bicknell stated that he would be sending the masks to HONEYWELL's quality control team to determine the cause.

32. MEDEA informed HONEYWELL that because the masks were defective, MEDEA would not pay the remaining monies due under the purchase order and requested a refund on the $2.3 million paid to date.

33. HONEYWELL initially took the position that the fact that it sent defective products does not alleviate the obligation to pay for the products or any entitlement to a refund. HONEYWELL, by and through its General Manager for Sales and Marketing, Kirk Heyde, then admitted that the masks were deformed and HONEYWELL was looking into the cause. Specifically, Heyde stated "At present we've found no systemic process issues surrounding the date codes involved, nor have we found any out of spec conditions on the samples provided, although we'd agree, the nature of the deformity is indeed undesirable." Despite MEDEA'S numerous requests to obtain the results of HONEYWELL'S investigation, HONEYWELL concealed the results from MEDEA until January 21, 2022. It was on this date that HONEYWELL finally released its internal evaluation report dated September 27, 2021 to MEDEA. That report states that HONEYWELL inspected 10 masks and that 3 had "signs of deformation" and that "[a]ll of these 10 masks were produced on the same cell in the manufacturing process and it's difficult to say if this is an isolated case or more widespread." Despite numerous requests, HONEYWELL never sent any representative to inspect the personal respiratory protective devices delivered to MEDEA that were being stored in MEDEA'S warehouse. HONEYWELL also never provided the full results of its internal investigation nor would it provide an appropriate protocol to inspect the personal respiratory protective devices.

34. On October 21, 2021, MEDEA gave formal notice of a defect under the terms of the conditions of its contracts with HONEYWELL.

35. Not until after MEDEA notified HONEYWELL of defects in the masks purchased did HONEYWELL inform MEDEA that it had issues with its manufacturing process and that HONEYWELL already had knowledge of the defects and deformities found in the masks manufactured at that time. MEDEA is informed and believes that HONEYWELL knowingly and

3638 AMERICAN RIVER DRIVE
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA 95864

intentionally sold MEDEA personal respiratory protective devices it knew were defective and would not protect its intended downstream users, frontline medical professionals, including doctors, nurses and technicians and others who require protection from fluid resistance and/or airborne pathogens, including, but not limited to the virus that causes COVID-19.

36. HONEYWELL continues to refuse to refund MEDEA for the amounts paid to date, cure the defects, or provide any commercially reasonable relief whatsoever. HONEYWELL has failed to abide by and has repudiated the Distribution Agreement by failing to abide by the dispute resolution requirements of the Distribution Agreement. HONEYWELL, has, in effect, waived any enforcement provision of the Distribution Agreement.

37. MEDEA continues to incur damages, including substantial storage fees associated with the millions of defective masks that it cannot sell, as well as reputation and business goodwill damages with current and prospective buyers, as well as its reputation in the industry based upon misleading and improper reports made by HONEYWELL to business data organizations.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

(Breach of Contract as against HONEYWELL and DOES 1-100)

38. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 37 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

39. Effective January 1, 2021, MEDEA and HONEYWELL entered into a Distribution Agreement whereby MEDEA would be a recognized distributor of HONEYWELL products, including, but not limited to, personal respiratory protective devices. Pursuant to the Distribution Agreement, on April 1, 2021, MEDEA agreed to purchase and did purchase 4 million personal respiratory protective devices from HONEYWELL for the price of Three Million Nine Hundred Sixty Thousand Dollars ($3,960,000).

40. MEDEA had performed all obligations required of it under the contract, except for obligations excused by HONEYWELL'S breach as described herein.

41. HONEYWELL delivered the personal respiratory protective devices to MEDEA pursuant to the terms of the contracts with MEDEA. However, the delivered personal respiratory protective devices were defective and deformed as confirmed by HONEYWELL's representatives after an opportunity to inspect and investigate.

LAW OFFICES OF

42. Due to HONEYWELL'S breach of contract by failing to deliver marketable and non-defective personal respiratory protective devices, and failure and/or refusal to replace the defective personal respiratory protective devices, MEDEA has been harmed in amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than Two Million Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,300,000), which represents the amount paid by MEDEA to date for the personal respiratory protective devices.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Breach of Warranty as Against HONEYWELL and DOES 1 through 100 inclusive.)

43. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 42 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

44. As part of a Distribution Agreement with HONEYWELL, MEDEA purchased personal respiratory protective devices from HONEYWELL. Through a written warranty and direct statements made by HONEYWELL representatives, the personal respiratory protective devices to be delivered were to be of the highest quality and fit tested and would meet both HONEYWELL and industry standards for safety.

45. The personal respiratory protective devices delivered did not meet the quality standards represented by HONEYWELL nor did they meet the standards for safety within the industry. In fact, the personal respiratory protective devices were delivered were defective and deformed as acknowledged by HONEYWELL representatives.

46. MEDEA took all reasonable steps to notify HONEYWELL within a reasonable time that the personal respiratory protective devices were not as represented.

47. HONEYWELL has failed to repair and/or cure the defects or provide reasonable alternatives as required by the warranty.

48. Due to HONEYWELL'S breach of warranty by failing to provide marketable and non-defective personal respiratory protective devices and failing to replace or otherwise cure the defects as required under the written warranty, MEDEA has been harmed in amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than Two Million Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,300,000), which represents the amount paid by MEDEA to date for the personal respiratory protective devices.

WHEREFORE, MEDEA prays for relief as set forth below.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

(Strict Products Liability – Manufacturing as against HONEYWELL and DOES 1 through 100 inclusive)

49. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 48 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

50. HONEYWELL was the manufacturer of personal respiratory protective devices, specifically, DC365 respirators for use by medical professionals and other users to protect themselves from viruses and other pathogens, including, but not limited to, the virus that causes COVID-19.

51. On April 1, 2021, MEDEA purchased 4 million personal respiratory protective devices from HONEYWELL for the price of Three Million Nine Hundred Sixty Thousand Dollars ($3,960,000).

52. The personal respiratory protective devices contained a manufacturing defect when it left HONEYWELL'S possession. The defect renders the personal respiratory protective devices unsaleable and unusable to end users because they fail to provide proper protection from airborne viruses and other pathogens, including, but not limited to, the virus that causes COVID-19.

53. Due to the manufacturing defects, MEDEA has been harmed in an amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than Two Million Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,300,000), which represents the amount paid by MEDEA to date for the personal respiratory protective devices.

WHEREFORE, MEDEA prays for relief as set forth below.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

forth herein.

55. HONEYWELL was the manufacturer of personal respiratory protective devices, specifically, DC365 respirators for use by medical professionals and other users to protect themselves from viruses and other pathogens, including, but not limited to, the virus that causes COVID-19.

56. On April 1, 2021, MEDEA purchased 4 million personal respiratory protective devices from HONEYWELL for the price of Three Million Nine Hundred Sixty Thousand Dollars ($3,960,000).

57. The personal respiratory protective devices were defectively designed when it left HONEYWELL'S possession. The defect renders the personal respiratory protective devices unsaleable and unusable to end users because they fail to provide proper protection from airborne viruses and other pathogens, including, but not limited to, the virus that causes COVID-19.

58. Due the manufacturing defects, MEDEA has been harmed in amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than Two Million Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,300,000), which represents the amount paid by MEDEA to date for the personal respiratory protective devices.

WHEREFORE, MEDEA prays for relief as set forth below.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

(Fraud- Concealment -as Against HONEYWELL and DOES 1 through 100 inclusive)

59. MEDEA realleges paragraphs 1 through 58 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

60. HONEYWELL and MEDEA were in a business relationship whereby MEDEA served as a distributor for HONEYWELL products, including, but not limited to, personal respiratory protective devices. By virtue of threats of losing its distributor status and based upon HONEYWELL'S representations regarding personal respiratory protective devices, MEDEA purchased 4 million personal respiratory protective devices from HONEYWELL for Three Million Nine Hundred Sixty Thousand Dollars ($3,960,000).

61. HONEYWELL represented to MEDEA, through direct communications and by and through public statements and disclosures, that HONEYWELL personal respiratory protective devices would be of the highest quality and provide the best protection from airborne viruses and other pathogens, including, the virus that causes COVID-19.

62. Based on these representations of the quality of product, and HONEYWELL'S public statements and public persona, much of which is created by HONEYWELL'S public statements and disclosures, including, but not limited to HONEYWELL'S Code of Business Ethics, it was reasonable for MEDEA to rely on HONEYWELL'S representations.

63. MEDEA is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that HONEYWELL knew that the personal respiratory protective devices it intended to sell to MEDEA, and did, in fact, sell to MEDEA were defective and/or deformed and failed to disclose that information to MEDEA.

64. MEDEA is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that HONEYWELL intentionally concealed and withheld its knowledge that the personal respiratory protective devices were defective until such time after MEDEA had already entered into a purchase agreement and paid the amounts due under the purchase agreement.

65. Had MEDEA been provided the information that the personal respiratory protective devices it was going to purchase from HONEYWELL were, in fact, defective and/or deformed, MEDEA would not have purchased the personal respiratory protective devices.

66. Due to HONEYWELL'S concealment and fraud, MEDEA has been harmed in amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than Two Million Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,300,000), which represents the amount paid by MEDEA to date for the personal respiratory protective devices.

WHEREFORE, MEDEA prays for relief as set forth below.

SIXTH CAUSE OF ACTION

joint stock company, association, or other organization of persons that engages, is engaged, or proposes to engage in unfair competition. Unfair competition includes any unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent business act or practice.

69. HONEYWELL has engaged in unfair business practices by using its economic power and market share in the healthcare industry to use economic duress and fraud to coerce its distributors, including MEDEA, to purchase its products HONEYWELL knows are defective and below the quality standards HONEYWELL markets and promises its products meets.

70. Despite HONEYWELL'S public representations and its published Code of Ethics, HONEYWELL coerces its distributors, including, MEDEA to market and sell products that are not as represented. In fact, despite its public statements to the contrary, HONEYWELL knowingly and willfully concealed evidence of defects in its personal respiratory protective devices to induce MEDEA to purchase 4 Million personal respiratory protective devices that HONEYWELL knew would most likely be used to medical professionals in the midst of the COVID-19 health emergency as well as other medical professionals, .

71. Due to HONEYWELL'S fraudulent business practices, MEDEA did provide defective personal respiratory protective devices to healthcare professionals, government entities and other entities. Because the personal respiratory protective devices were, in fact, defective and/or deformed, MEDEA's business reputation and goodwill was damaged, which has caused and deprived MEDEA of patronage of known and unknown customers. MEDEA is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, HONEYWELL now sells directly to the customers MEDEA brought in or uses other distributors to sell their products. MEDEA has been damaged in an amount to be determined at trial,

72. As a proximate result of the above-mentioned act(s) of defendant(s), plaintiff has been deprived of the patronage of a large number of his/her actual and potential customers, all to his/her damage in the sum to be proven at trial.

WHEREFORE, MEDEA prays for relief as set forth below.

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF ALAMEDA

LIMITED CIVIL JURISDICTION

Medea Inc., a Delaware Corporation,

Plaintiff,

v.

TPT MedTech, LLC, a Colorado Limited Liability Company; and DOES 1 to 20,

Defendants.

Case No. RG21103940

COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT, GOODS AND SERVICES RENDERED/ QUANTUM MERUIT, CONVERSION, AND RESTITUTION/UNJUST ENRICHMENT [LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
[Amount Exceeds $10,000]

Plaintiff Medea Inc. alleges:

1. Plaintiff Medea Inc. ("Medea") is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Delaware, with its principal place of business in Pleasanton, California in Alameda County.

2. Defendant TPT MedTech, LLC ("TPT") is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a limited liability company organized and existing under the laws of Colorado, with its principal place of business in the City and County of San Diego, California.

3. On information and belief, on or about April 17, 2021, TPT opened a mobile laboratory under the name "QuikLAB" at Harbor Light Community Church at 4760 Thornton Ave., Fremont, in Alameda County, California.

4. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through 20, inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.

5. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, all named Defendants and fictitiously named defendants in this complaint, in addition to acting for themselves were acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and alter ego, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

(Breach of Contract – Against TPT and DOES 1-20)

6. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference Paragraphs 1 through 5 as though fully set forth herein.

7. Plaintiff is a distributor of Access Bio Antigen Tests.

8. On information belief, Defendants TPT and DOES 1-20 are engaged in the business of administering Access Bio Antigen Tests.

9. On January 27, 2021, Defendants sent Plaintiff a Purchase Order (PO #TPT1068), a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference. Exhibit A provides that Defendants agreed to purchase 640 Access Bio Antigen tests (the "Tests") from Plaintiff, and obligated Defendants to pay Plaintiff the sum of $16,000 on delivery.

10. On January 27, 2021, in consideration for Defendants' promise to pay the purchase price of $16,000, Plaintiff shipped Defendants 640 Tests and prepared and sent Defendants Invoice #768522 which confirmed the terms of the parties' agreement (the "Agreement"). A copy of Invoice #768522 is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference.

11. Plaintiff fully performed its part of the Agreement, in that, on January 29, 2021, Plaintiff delivered the goods to Defendants at the Ketamine Health Clinic ("KHC") in the time, manner and place requested by Defendants' Purchase Order (Exhibit A). Plaintiff's FedEx shipping invoice confirms that delivery of the goods to Defendants at KHC was completed.

12. Defendants, in violation of their promises and obligations under the Agreement, breached said Agreement by failing and refusing to make the promised payment due for the Tests in the amount of $16,000.

13. Plaintiff demanded payment from Defendants for the Tests on multiple occasions.

14. On Friday, May 21, 2021, TPT acknowledged the legitimacy of the outstanding $16,000 debt to Plaintiff by making a partial payment of $900 to Plaintiff towards the outstanding balance.

15. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' breach of contract, Plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $15,100.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Goods and Services Rendered/Quantum Meruit – Against TPT and DOES 1-20)

16. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference Paragraphs 1 through 15 as though fully set forth herein.

17. As set out above, Plaintiff delivered 640 Tests to Defendants. Plaintiff and Defendants understood that Plaintiff would be compensated by Defendants for delivering the requested Tests. Defendants knew that the Tests were being delivered by Plaintiff and never told Plaintiff to stop delivery. Defendants accepted, utilized and profited from the Tests delivered by Plaintiff.

18. The fair and reasonable value of the Tests at the time they were purchased is at least $16,000.

19. Defendants acknowledged the legitimacy of the outstanding debt at issue by making a partial payment of $900 on May 21, 2021, as set out above.

20. Defendants have failed and refused, and still refuse, to pay Plaintiff the remaining balance owed for the Tests. As a result of Defendants' failure to pay, Defendants are now indebted to Plaintiff in the sum of at least $15,100, representing the remaining fair and reasonable value of the Tests.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
(Conversion – Against TPT and DOES 1-20)

21. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference Paragraphs 1 through 20 as though fully set forth herein.

22. Plaintiff owned and had a right to possess the Tests.

23. Defendants substantially interfered with Plaintiff's property by knowingly or intentionally taking possession of the Tests on January 29, 2021 and refusing to pay for the Tests.

24. Plaintiff did not consent to Defendants taking possession of the Tests absent payment.

25. Plaintiff was harmed monetarily, and Defendants' conduct in failing to pay was a substantial factor in causing Plaintiff's harm.

(Restitution/Unjust Enrichment – Against TPT and DOES 1-20)

26. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference Paragraphs 1 through 25 as though fully set forth herein.

27. On January 29, 2021, Defendants were unjustly enriched by receiving and misappropriating the Tests, which Defendants have refused to fully pay for.

28. The value of the Tests misappropriated by Defendants was $16,000.

29. Defendants partial payment of $900 on May 21, 2021 reduced Defendants outstanding balance to $15,100, plus interest.

30. Defendants thereby conferred a benefit that would be unjust and inequitable for Defendants to retain.

31. Plaintiff is entitled to restitution from each Defendant for all costs of the benefit conferred.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays judgment against Defendants as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $15,100;

2. For interest on the sum of $16,000 from January 28, 2021 to May 21, 2021;

3. For interest on the sum of $15,100 from and after May 21, 2021;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other further relief as the court may deem proper.

RE: Med Stop Pharmaceuticals Inc.

It has been our pleasure to file the certificate of formation and issue the enclosed certificate of filing evidencing the existence of the newly created domestic for-profit corporation.

Unless exempted, the entity formed is subject to state tax laws, including franchise tax laws. Shortly, the Comptroller of Public Accounts will be contacting the entity at its registered office for information that will assist the Comptroller in setting up the franchise tax account for the entity. Information about franchise tax, and contact information for the Comptroller's office, is available on their web site at https://window.state.tx.us/taxinfo/franchise/index.html.

The entity formed does not file annual reports with the Secretary of State. Documents will be filed with the Secretary of State if the entity needs to amend one of the provisions in its certificate of formation. It is important for the entity to continuously maintain a registered agent and office in Texas. Failure to maintain an agent or office or file a change to the information in Texas may result in the involuntary termination of the entity.

If we can be of further service at any time, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Corporations Section

ORDER

The State of Indiana appears by Michael DeArmitt, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney. The defendant, Kenneth Hughes, appears in person and by counsel, Scott Andrews, for hearing on change of plea, the 21st day of May, 2010.

Defendant asks leave to withdraw his plea of not guilty heretofore entered as to Count 1, Operating a Vehicle While Intoxicated Endangering a Person, a Class A Misdemeanor. The Deputy Prosecuting Attorney advises the Court that a plea agreement has been reached between the State of Indiana and the defendant herein.

Defendant for plea now says that he is guilty of Count 1, Operating a Vehicle While Intoxicated Endangering a Person, a Class A Misdemeanor.

The Court now finds that the defendant understands the nature of the charge against him to which he has pled guilty, that he understands the possible sentence thereunder, that the plea was made freely and voluntarily, that the plea is accurate and that there is a basis in fact for the defendant's plea of guilty. The Court grants the motion to withdraw the previous plea of not guilty.

Defendant's Waiver of Rights, Withdrawal of Plea of Not Guilty and Plea of Guilty is filed with the Court.

The Court accepts the plea agreement and enters a judgment of conviction for Operating a Vehicle While Intoxicated Endangering a Person, a Class A Misdemeanor.

The Court sentences the defendant to the Bartholomew County Jail for a period of one (1) year, suspended. The defendant receives credit for one (1) day.

The defendant is on probation for a period of one (1) year. Probation shall be reporting until substance abuse treatment is completed and all monies paid, so long as no violations of probation have been committed up to that point. Special terms of probation are as follows:

A. The defendant shall complete 24 hours of community service per week during any week in which he is not employed full time or a full time student.

B. The defendant shall not have any contact with bars, taverns, or liquor stores.

C. The defendant shall cooperate with the Court Services Alcohol/Drug Program and pay alcohol/drug fee of One Hundred Fifty Dollars ($150.00) and countermeasures fee of Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00).

D. The defendant shall obtain a substance abuse evaluation and follow the recommendations.

The defendant shall pay court costs of One Hundred Sixty Four Dollars ($164.00); initial probation fee of Fifty Dollars ($50.00); administrative probation fee of Fifty Dollars ($50.00), and monthly probation fees totaling Two Hundred Twenty Dollars ($220.00), all of which shall come from the cash bond posted. The balance of the bond shall be applied toward Court Services alcohol/drug program fees.

The defendant's driver's license shall be suspended for a period of 30 days. The defendant receives credit for time previously suspended by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. Following the 30 day license suspension, the defendant shall have a 180 day probationary license.

The Court reviews with the defendant the terms of probation. The defendant acknowledges that he has read and understands the terms of his probation as set forth in the Order of Probation and that he has affixed his signature thereto.

The State of Indiana dismisses the remaining count in this cause.

WAIVER OF RIGHTS, WITHDRAWAL OF PLEA OF NOT GUILTY AND PLEA OF GUILTY

I, Kenneth Hughes, the above-named Defendant, request that the Court allow me to withdraw the plea of not guilty to the charge(s) filed against me in this cause and to allow me to plead guilty to:

Count I – Operating a Motor Vehicle While Intoxicated Endangering a Person as a Class A Misdemeanor.

Count II – Dismissed per plea

AFFIDAVIT

I swear upon my oath to the Court as follows:

1. I am represented by Scott C. Andrews, Attorney at Law, and I am satisfied with his services in representing me.

2. I understand and realize that by withdrawing my plea of not guilty and entering the plea of guilty that I am waiving or giving up these Constitutional Rights:

A. The right to a speedy and public trial by jury.

B. The right to see, hear and confront all witnesses against me at my trial.

C. The right to be presumed innocent and to force the State to prove the charge(s) against me beyond a reasonable doubt.

D. The right to testify, or not to testify, at my trial; to require witnesses to be present with any evidence in my favor; if I request, the Court will issue subpoenas requiring witnesses to be present for me.

E. The right to have an attorney at each stage of the proceeding, including upon an appeal, if I am convicted; and that if I do not have the money for an attorney, the Court will appoint one for me at no cost to me.

EXHIBIT

3. I understand that by entering my plea of guilty to the charge(s) against me, I am admitting the truth of all facts alleged or stated in the indictment(s) or information(s), or to any lesser included offenses, and that upon the acceptance of my plea of guilty, the Court will proceed with judgment of conviction and sentence me without a trial.

4. I understand the minimum possible sentence(s) and the maximum possible sentence(s) are listed below. I have read the possible penalties and have discussed them with my attorney.

SENTENCES

TABLE OF PENALTIES (Indiana Penal Code)

Offense	Potential Range	Maximum Fine

Class B Misd.	0-180 days	$ 1,000
Class C Misd.	0-60 days	$ 500

5. I understand that by pleading guilty, I am waiving my right to appeal a conviction. I further understand that I am not waiving my right to appeal the sentence unless the Court sentences me under the terms of a plea agreement with a determinate sentence.

6. I understand that any prior conviction(s) or juvenile delinquency adjudication(s) may cause the imposition of consecutive sentences and/or an increased sentence. My guilty plea could mean that I would receive a harsher sentence if I commit a future crime. I understand the possibility of having my sentence suspended.

7. I understand that by pleading guilty I may be deported if I am not a U.S. Citizen.

8. I understand that the Court is neither bound by nor a party to any recommended sentence and that the Court does not have to accept any recommendation. I understand that the Court has not yet accepted the plea agreement between the Prosecutor and myself.

9. I understand my rights under I.C. 12-23-6, 12-23-7, or 12-23-8, to treatment as a drug or alcohol abuser. My attorney has explained my rights under this statute.

11. I understand there is a 30-day sentencing requirement in which I am to be sentenced. I hereby waive that requirement.

12. I understand that if I am sentenced pursuant to a plea agreement that shock probation may only be granted with the approval of the Court and the Prosecutor. I understand that if I am sentenced without a plea agreement that shock probation may be granted with the Court's approval within one (1) year, but thereafter the approval of the Prosecutor would also become necessary.

- Additionally, Univar provided e5 Pharma and Mizner Bioscience with a statement that claimed they were exempt from the FL License requirement.
- Mizner worked with the CMO and supplier to have the CMO purchase the API and bill Mizner for the material. The inspector believed that the revised documentation was "creating business records after the fact"
- None of the API entered the State of Florida – only the invoice was issued to Mizner in the state of Florida.

- The State of Florida Inspector requested numerous documents from our team for BOTH e5 Pharma and Mizner during the inspection. The Department of Professional Regulation by Michael C. Yount, one of its attorneys, and Boca Pharmacal, Inc., (hereinafter "Boca Pharmacal"), Respondent, hereby agree to the following:

STIPULATIONS

Boca Pharmacal, is a non-resident wholesale drug distributor located in the State of Florida. At all times material to the matter set forth in this Consent Order, the Department of Professional Regulation of the State of Illinois had jurisdiction over the parties and subject matter herein.

The Department alleges that Respondent, prior to licensure with the Department, engaged in the unlicensed practice of wholesale drug distribution.

The allegations as set forth herein, if proven to be true, would constitute grounds for disciplinary action against Respondent's license as a wholesale drug distributor on the authority of 225 ILCS (2001), Act 120, sections 25(a), 26, and 55 (a)(1).

As a result of the foregoing allegations, Respondent, by and through its attorney, Fred Elefant, expressed its desire to enter into a Consent Order with the Department. Michael C. Yount, staff attorney, represented the Department. Gary Reynolds, R.Ph., Chairperson of the Board of Pharmacy of the State of Illinois, was consulted regarding this matter.

Respondent admits the Department's allegation, however, Respondent presented the following information in mitigation: Respondent, at the time of the alleged violation, was unaware of the wholesale drug distributor licensing requirements in the State of Illinois; Respondent possesses a Florida Prescription Drug Wholesale license; and, Respondent regrets the incident, which was an oversight. Respondent has fully cooperated with the Department in this matter.

Respondent has been advised of the right to have the pending allegations reduced to written charges, the right to a hearing, the right to contest any charges brought, and the right to administrative review of any order resulting from a hearing. Respondent knowingly waives each of these rights, as well as any right to administrative review of this Consent Order.

Respondent and the Department have agreed, in order to resolve this matter, that Respondent be permitted to enter into a Consent Order with the Department, providing for the imposition of disciplinary measures which are fair and equitable in the circumstances and which are consistent with the best interests of the people of the State of Illinois.

CONDITIONS

WHEREFORE, the Department, through Michael C. Yount, its attorney, and Boca Pharmacal, Inc., Respondent, agree:

A. Respondent's Illinois wholesale drug distributor license shall be issued provided Respondent completes and submits to the Department all necessary forms and pays all necessary fees.

B. Immediately upon issuance of Respondent's license, said license shall be issued a reprimand.

C. Upon issuance of Respondent's license, said license shall be fined in the amount of $2,930.00. Within thirty (30) days of the effective date of this Consent Order, Respondent Boca Pharmacal, shall pay said fine by certified check or money order, made payable to the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation (IDPR). Respondent shall send the fine payment to the IDPR, Attn: Fiscal, 320 W. Washington, 3rd Floor, Springfield, Illinois 62786.

D. If Respondent Boca Pharmacal, fails to pay the aforementioned fine and the Department initiates a collection effort to retrieve the fine, Respondent Boca Pharmacal, shall be responsible for all costs and fees incurred by the Department in said collection effort.

E. Any violation of the terms and/or conditions of this Consent Order shall be grounds for the Department to immediately file a Complaint to revoke or otherwise discipline Respondent's license to operate in the State of Illinois as a wholesale drug distributor..

SUPPLEMENT TO NEVADA STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY WHOLESALE APPLICATION BY RELIANCE WHOLESALE, INC.

Explanation regarding "Yes" answer to section 8, question 6:

In an abundance of caution Reliance has checked yes in order to disclose the following: On April 12, 2022 an investigating member of the Alaska State Board of Pharmacy concluded that in Reliance's Third Party Logistics Provider license application, Reliance failed to provide information concerning a principal's 2010 nolo contendere plea to a charge of reckless driving. The investigator found that this was a technical violation not related to the delivery or patient care and has recommended that the appropriate resolution would be a civil fine of $500.00 without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance to conduct drug related business. The Alaska Board of Pharmacy entered an Agreed Order implementing this resolution June 16, 2022.

IMPOSITION OF CIVIL FINE

I, Josue Navarro, as an agent for Reliance Wholesale, Inc. admit and agree the Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over the subject matter of Third-Party Logistics Provider License No. 181525, and over this Imposition of Civil Fine.

1. On December 27, 2010, Josue Navarro, President of Reliance Wholesale, Inc., was arrested and charged with "Driving Under the Influence"; Florida Statue 316.193 (1).
2. On October 31, 2011, Josue Navarro pled Nolo Contendre with an adjudication of guilt to the charge of "Reckless Driving", Florida Statue 316.192 (1)(a).
3. On July 22, 2021, Reliance Wholesale, Inc. submitted a Third-Party Logistics Provider initial application for License No. 181525 and selected a "YES" response to professional fitness question #1 of the application. We disclosed some past criminal history of Josue Navarro but we failed to provide the above listed Driving Under the Influence Charge and nolo contedre plea to Reckless Driving on this application; this is a violation of 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13).

We admit that as a result of these facts, grounds exist for possible denial of licensure or other disciplinary sanctions of my license pursuant to AS 08.01.75 and 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13). We are agreeing to this Imposition of a Civil Fine of five hundred dollars ($500) in cash, certified check, or money order payable to the "State of Alaska" within ninety (90) days after this Imposition of Civil Fine is accepted by the Board, without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance Wholesale, Inc. to conduct drug-related business.

We have the right to consult with an attorney, and a right to an administrative hearing on the facts in this case. We understand and agree by voluntarily signing this Imposition of Civil Fine, we are waiving our rights to counsel and to a hearing on this matter.

SUPPLEMENT TO NEVADA STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY WHOLESALE APPLICATION BY RELIANCE WHOLESALE, INC.

NOTE REGARDING "YES" ANSWER TO SECTION 8, QUESTION 6:

In an abundance of caution Reliance has checked "yes" in order to disclose the following: On April 12, 2022 an investigating member of the Alaska State Board of Pharmacy concluded that in its Third-Party Logistics Provider license application, Reliance failed to provide information concerning Josue Navarro's 2010 charge of driving under the influence and subsequent (2011) nolo contendere plea to a reduced charge of reckless driving. The Alaska BOP determined that this was a technical violation not related to the delivery of patient care and imposed a civil fine of $500.00 without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance to conduct drug related business in Alaska. The Alaska Board of Pharmacy entered an Agreed Order implementing this resolution June 16, 2022.

Disclosure statement from: Josue M. Navarro CEO

My name is Josue Navarro and I am presently 47 years old. Many years ago when I was between the ages of 18 and 22, I pled guilty to charges of burglary, auto theft and dealing in stolen property. (Please note these charges had nothing to do with drugs, the practice of pharmacy, or the pharmaceutical industry.) This happened over 20 years ago; all of the convictions have long ago been closed and nothing is currently pending. In 2010 - 2011 I was charged with Driving under the influence, but the charges were reduced and I accepted a conviction of Reckless Driving. (Please note these charges had nothing to do with drugs, the practice of pharmacy, or the pharmaceutical industry.) The details of my history have been fully disclosed to several other licensing agencies when required.

I have been gainfully employed since 1997 and have held various jobs involving significant positions of trust. Specifically, prior to working in the pharmaceutical field, I served as a financial comptroller at various law firms. In this regard, I have been responsible for major accounting functions including payroll management, expense account verification, billing, financial receivables, and I oversaw a substantial trust account assuring that all financial activity occurring therein was performed with full and complete compliance of all legal and banking regulations.

Since leaving the law firm environment my former wife and I co-founded Reliance (2003). We divorced in 2013 but I remain an active participant in the lives of my two young children. Today I'm the CEO and beneficiary of the Trust which owns 100% of Reliance stock. The business currently employs over 40 full-time employees and is licensed in almost all US states. Reliance business of wholesaling pharmaceuticals is heavily regulated. Our operating policies and procedures in our two distribution facilities remain in compliance with National Association of Boards of Pharmacy criteria as well as the Drug Supply Chain Security Act.

IMPOSITION OF CIVIL FINE

I, Josue Navarro, as an agent for Reliance Wholesale, Inc. admit and agree the Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over the subject matter of Third-Party Logistics Provider License No. 181525, and over this Imposition of Civil Fine.

1. On December 27, 2010, Josue Navarro, President of Reliance Wholesale, Inc., was arrested and charged with "Driving Under the Influence"; Florida Statue 316.193 (1).
2. On October 31, 2011, Josue Navarro pled Nolo Contendre with an adjudication of guilt to the charge of "Reckless Driving", Florida Statue 316.192 (1)(a).
3. On July 22, 2021, Reliance Wholesale, Inc. submitted a Third-Party Logistics Provider initial application for License No. 181525 and selected a "YES" response to professional fitness question #1 of the application. We disclosed some past criminal history of Josue Navarro but we failed to provide the above listed Driving Under the Influence Charge and nolo contedre plea to Reckless Driving on this application; this is a violation of 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13).

We admit that as a result of these facts, grounds exist for possible denial of licensure or other disciplinary sanctions of my license pursuant to AS 08.01.75 and 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13). We are agreeing to this Imposition of a Civil Fine of five hundred dollars ($500) in cash, certified check, or money order payable to the "State of Alaska" within ninety (90) days after this Imposition of Civil Fine is accepted by the Board, without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance Wholesale, Inc. to conduct drug-related business.

We have the right to consult with an attorney, and a right to an administrative hearing on the facts in this case. We understand and agree by voluntarily signing this Imposition of Civil Fine, we are waiving our rights to counsel and to a hearing on this matter.

Provide explanation below:

In 1998 when I was 20 years old, I was allowed into a bar without showing ID by the bar employee that was a friend of an acquaintance of a large group I was with. After entering the bar, an employee of the bar told me a police officer wanted to talk with me outside. The police officer asked me for my wallet. I provided the officer with my driver's license but the officer insisted that I give him my wallet. After refusing to give the police officer my wallet, I was arrested and charged with obstructing a police officer and resisting arrest without violence. The disposition was nolle prosequi.

In 2001 when I was 23 years old, a police officer found marijuana on the passenger's side floor of my car. Although the marijuana belonged to the passenger, the officer charged both me and the passenger with possession of marijuana. The disposition was nolle prosequi.

In 2002 when I was 24 years old, a police officer found marijuana in my friend's car and I was charged with possession of marijuana. The disposition was nolle prosequi.

There have been no issues since.

SUPPLEMENT TO NEVADA STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY WHOLESALE APPLICATION BY RELIANCE WHOLESALE, INC.

Explanation regarding "Yes" answer to section 8, question 6:

In an abundance of caution Reliance has checked yes in order to disclose the following: On April 12, 2022 an investigating member of the Alaska State Board of Pharmacy concluded that in Reliance's Third Party Logistics Provider license application, Reliance failed to provide information concerning a principal's 2010 nolo contendere plea to a charge of reckless driving. The investigator found that this was a technical violation not related to the delivery or patient care and has recommended that the appropriate resolution would be a civil fine of $500.00 without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance to conduct drug related business. The Alaska Board of Pharmacy entered an Agreed Order implementing this resolution June 16, 2022.

IMPOSITION OF CIVIL FINE

I, Josue Navarro, as an agent for Reliance Wholesale, Inc. admit and agree the Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over the subject matter of Third-Party Logistics Provider License No. 181525, and over this Imposition of Civil Fine.

1. On December 27, 2010, Josue Navarro, President of Reliance Wholesale, Inc., was arrested and charged with "Driving Under the Influence"; Florida Statue 316.193 (1).
2. On October 31, 2011, Josue Navarro pled Nolo Contendre with an adjudication of guilt to the charge of "Reckless Driving", Florida Statue 316.192 (1)(a).
3. On July 22, 2021, Reliance Wholesale, Inc. submitted a Third-Party Logistics Provider initial application for License No. 181525 and selected a "YES" response to professional fitness question #1 of the application. We disclosed some past criminal history of Josue Navarro but we failed to provide the above listed Driving Under the Influence Charge and nolo contedre plea to Reckless Driving on this application; this is a violation of 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13).

We admit that as a result of these facts, grounds exist for possible denial of licensure or other disciplinary sanctions of my license pursuant to AS 08.01.75 and 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13). We are agreeing to this Imposition of a Civil Fine of five hundred dollars ($500) in cash, certified check, or money order payable to the "State of Alaska" within ninety (90) days after this Imposition of Civil Fine is accepted by the Board, without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance Wholesale, Inc. to conduct drug-related business.

We have the right to consult with an attorney, and a right to an administrative hearing on the facts in this case. We understand and agree by voluntarily signing this Imposition of Civil Fine, we are waiving our rights to counsel and to a hearing on this matter.

ORDER

The Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board), having examined the Imposition of Civil Fine, Case No. 2021-000733, regarding license number 181525, for failing to provide information on an initial Third-Party Logistics Provider application, hereby adopts the Imposition of Civil Fine.

The Board has determined this is a technical violation of professional licensing statutes and regulations, therefore this matter can be resolved with a civil fine without censure, reprimand, or any limitations on the ability of Reliance Wholesale, Inc. to conduct drug-related business.

This Imposition of Civil Fine takes effect immediately upon signature of this Order in accordance with the approval of the Board.

NOTE REGARDING "YES" ANSWER TO SECTION 8, QUESTION 6:

In an abundance of caution Reliance has checked "yes" in order to disclose the following: On April 12, 2022 an investigating member of the Alaska State Board of Pharmacy concluded that in its Third-Party Logistics Provider license application, Reliance failed to provide information concerning Josue Navarro's 2010 charge of driving under the influence and subsequent (2011) nolo contendere plea to a reduced charge of reckless driving. The Alaska BOP determined that this was a technical violation not related to the delivery of patient care and imposed a civil fine of $500.00 without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance to conduct drug related business in Alaska. The Alaska Board of Pharmacy entered an Agreed Order implementing this resolution June 16, 2022.

Disclosure statement from: Josue M. Navarro CEO

My name is Josue Navarro and I am presently 47 years old. Many years ago when I was between the ages of 18 and 22, I pled guilty to charges of burglary, auto theft and dealing in stolen property. (Please note these charges had nothing to do with drugs, the practice of pharmacy, or the pharmaceutical industry.) This happened over 20 years ago; all of the convictions have long ago been closed and nothing is currently pending. In 2010 - 2011 I was charged with Driving under the influence, but the charges were reduced and I accepted a conviction of Reckless Driving. (Please note these charges had nothing to do with drugs, the practice of pharmacy, or the pharmaceutical industry.) The details of my history have been fully disclosed to several other licensing agencies when required.

I have been gainfully employed since 1997 and have held various jobs involving significant positions of trust. Specifically, prior to working in the pharmaceutical field, I served as a financial comptroller at various law firms. In this regard, I have been responsible for major accounting functions including payroll management, expense account verification, billing, financial receivables, and I oversaw a substantial trust account assuring that all financial activity occurring therein was performed with full and complete compliance of all legal and banking regulations.

Since leaving the law firm environment my former wife and I co-founded Reliance (2003). We divorced in 2013 but I remain an active participant in the lives of my two young children. Today I'm the CEO and beneficiary of the Trust which owns 100% of Reliance stock. The business currently employs over 40 full-time employees and is licensed in almost all US states. Reliance business of wholesaling pharmaceuticals is heavily regulated. Our operating policies and procedures in our two distribution facilities remain in compliance with National Association of Boards of Pharmacy criteria as well as the Drug Supply Chain Security Act.

IMPOSITION OF CIVIL FINE

I, Josue Navarro, as an agent for Reliance Wholesale, Inc. admit and agree the Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over the subject matter of Third-Party Logistics Provider License No. 181525, and over this Imposition of Civil Fine.

1. On December 27, 2010, Josue Navarro, President of Reliance Wholesale, Inc., was arrested and charged with "Driving Under the Influence"; Florida Statue 316.193 (1).
2. On October 31, 2011, Josue Navarro pled Nolo Contendre with an adjudication of guilt to the charge of "Reckless Driving", Florida Statue 316.192 (1)(a).
3. On July 22, 2021, Reliance Wholesale, Inc. submitted a Third-Party Logistics Provider initial application for License No. 181525 and selected a "YES" response to professional fitness question #1 of the application. We disclosed some past criminal history of Josue Navarro but we failed to provide the above listed Driving Under the Influence Charge and nolo contedre plea to Reckless Driving on this application; this is a violation of 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13).

We admit that as a result of these facts, grounds exist for possible denial of licensure or other disciplinary sanctions of my license pursuant to AS 08.01.75 and 12 AAC 52.920(a)(13). We are agreeing to this Imposition of a Civil Fine of five hundred dollars ($500) in cash, certified check, or money order payable to the "State of Alaska" within ninety (90) days after this Imposition of Civil Fine is accepted by the Board, without censure, reprimand, or any limitation on the ability of Reliance Wholesale, Inc. to conduct drug-related business.

We have the right to consult with an attorney, and a right to an administrative hearing on the facts in this case. We understand and agree by voluntarily signing this Imposition of Civil Fine, we are waiving our rights to counsel and to a hearing on this matter.

IF YOU WRITE, ATTACH THE STUB AT THE END OF THIS NOTICE.

WE ASSIGNED YOU AN EMPLOYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBER

Thank you for applying for an Employer Identification Number (EIN). We assigned you EIN 88-1103474. This EIN will identify you, your business accounts, tax returns, and documents, even if you have no employees. Please keep this notice in your permanent records.

Taxpayers request an EIN for their business. Some taxpayers receive CP575 notices when another person has stolen their identity and are opening a business using their information. If you did not apply for this EIN, please contact us at the phone number or address listed on the top of this notice.

When filing tax documents, making payments, or replying to any related correspondence, it is very important that you use your EIN and complete name and address exactly as shown above. Any variation may cause a delay in processing, result in incorrect information in your account, or even cause you to be assigned more than one EIN. If the information is not correct as shown above, please make the correction using the attached tear-off stub and return it to us.

Based on the information received from you or your representative, you must file the following forms by the dates shown.

If you have questions about the forms or the due dates shown, you can call us at the phone number or write to us at the address shown at the top of this notice. If you need help in determining your annual accounting period (tax year), see Publication 538, Accounting Periods and Methods.

We assigned you a tax classification (corporation, partnership, etc.) based on information obtained from you or your representative. It is not a legal determination of your tax classification, and is not binding on the IRS. If you want a legal determination of your tax classification, you may request a private letter ruling from the IRS under the guidelines in Revenue Procedure 2020-1, 2020-1 I.R.B. 1 (or superseding Revenue Procedure for the year at issue). Note: Certain tax classification elections can be requested by filing Form 8832, Entity Classification Election. See Form 8832 and its instructions for additional information.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR S CORPORATION ELECTION:
If you intend to elect to file your return as a small business corporation, an election to file a Form 1120-S, U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation, must be made within certain timeframes and the corporation must meet certain tests. All of this information is included in the instructions for Form 2553, Election by a Small Business Corporation.

(IRS USE ONLY) 575A 03-08-2022 WELL B 9999999999 SS-4

If you are required to deposit for employment taxes (Forms 941, 943, 940, 944, 945, CT-1, or 1042), excise taxes (Form 720), or income taxes (Form 1120), you will receive a Welcome Package shortly, which includes instructions for making your deposits electronically through the Electronic Federal Tax Payment System (EFTPS). A Personal Identification Number (PIN) for EFTPS will also be sent to you under separate cover. Please activate the PIN once you receive it, even if you have requested the services of a tax professional or representative. For more information about EFTPS, refer to Publication 966, Electronic Choices to Pay All Your Federal Taxes. If you need to make a deposit immediately, you will need to make arrangements with your Financial Institution to complete a wire transfer.

The IRS is committed to helping all taxpayers comply with their tax filing obligations. If you need help completing your returns or meeting your tax obligations, Authorized e-file Providers, such as Reporting Agents or other payroll service providers, are available to assist you. Visit www.irs.gov/mefbusproviders for a list of companies that offer IRS e-file for business products and services.

IMPORTANT REMINDERS:

* Keep a copy of this notice in your permanent records. This notice is issued only one time and the IRS will not be able to generate a duplicate copy for you. You may give a copy of this document to anyone asking for proof of your EIN.

* Use this EIN and your name exactly as they appear at the top of this notice on all your federal tax forms.

* Refer to this EIN on your tax-related correspondence and documents.

* Provide future officers of your organization with a copy of this notice.

Your name control associated with this EIN is WELL. You will need to provide this information along with your EIN, if you file your returns electronically.

If the legal representative is not an attorney, the CAP must contain written notice of the appointment of the non-attorney as legal representative signed by the provider, supplier, or authorized/delegated official.

A decision will be issued within 60 days of receipt of the CAP.

The time to submit a reconsideration request runs concurrently with the time to submit a CAP. For example, if a CAP is submitted 20 days after the initial determination, there are 40 days remaining to submit a reconsideration request. These 40 days continue to elapse while the CAP is under consideration. Please note that failure to timely request a reconsideration is deemed a waiver of all rights to further administrative review.

When submitting a reconsideration request, it must:

1. State the issues, or the findings of fact with which you disagree, and the reasons for disagreement.
2. Be submitted within 65 days from the date of the initial determination;
3. Be submitted in the form of a letter that is signed and dated by the individual provider/supplier, the authorized or delegated official, or a legal representative.
4. If a legal representative is an attorney, the reconsideration request must also contain a statement that the attorney has the authority to act on behalf of the provider/supplier. If the legal representative is not an attorney, the reconsideration request must contain written notice of the appointment of the non-attorney as legal representative signed by the provider, supplier, or authorized/delegated official.

A decision will be issued within 90 days of receipt of the reconsideration request.

Please mail, email, or fax this form, the CAP or reconsideration request letter (signed and dated by the valid submitter), the initial determination letter, and all supporting documentation applicable to the appeal to the following address:

Provide explanation below:

During 2009 to 2011, while working as a store pharmacist for Rite Aid in New York State, my ex-wife, JD, filed a complaint with the Office of Professional Discipline (ODP) against me for filling prescriptions for her. The prescriptions in question were Acyclovir, Valacyclovir and Fluconazole. Her complaint stated that she never self-administered the medications and that the prescribing physician never authorized the prescriptions. The prescribing physician for the prescriptions was Robert Todd, who also happens to be the brother-in-law of JD. He denied authorizing the medications when questioned by OPD. While I did contact him from the pharmacy for authorization to fill the prescriptions for JD, there was no way for me prove that I had done the appropriate actions to obtain the above verbally authorized prescriptions. During 2009 to 2011, I was still married to my ex-wife. I personally witnessed her ingesting these medications to treat the conditions associated with them. This was the only instance of questionable misconduct found from an investigation from the OPD. I could not defend my actions and was offered the suspension from the OPD which I accepted.

My ex-wife threatened me with exposing her complaint to the OPD in June 2011, which coincidentally was also 30 days after I asked her for a divorce. She used this information as a form of intimidation in order to get the desired outcomes that she wanted in the divorce proceedings. The divorce was finalized in February 2014. At this time, she filed the complaint. I believe her actions were done to malign me and with malice. My ex-wife, JD, is also a licensed pharmacist in the state of New York. If she was concerned with the violation, has the ethical obligation to report it upon discovery during 2009, yet she waited the file the complaint until the divorce was finalized and her desired outcomes were not met during the proceedings.

I deeply regret my actions and assure the Board that this will never occur again within my practice as a pharmacist. Please be assured that within my 30 years as being a pharmacist this is the first and only complaint of misconduct that has ever been filed against me. Throughout the past seven years, I have served as a Pharmacy Supervisor and District Leader at CVS Pharmacy. One of my many responsibilities entailed ensuring compliance standards from the FDA, DEA, and Boards of Pharmacy within my district of 15 stores located within in the District of Columbia and Maryland. Since this incident I have obtained my Nevada, Kansas, West Virginia, Louisiana, Texas, Tennessee, Virginia and Florida license, as well as a non-resident PIC in Idaho, with no restrictions. In hindsight, I realize that I should have documented my actions better in order to support that I had adhered to the letter of the law. Again, I am truly sorry for my actions and assure the Board I will deliver legal and ethical pharmacy services in order to take care of my patients and most importantly, adhere to the letter of the law.

If you have any further questions please contact me via email or phone for clarification. Thank you for your time and consideration.

As of 6/7/2022, we have completed potency testing on our Cyclophosphamide at summer temperatures that shows it is stable outside of the refrigerator for at least 14 days. We will no longer be shipping this drug on ice, however, we recommend you store it in the refrigerator when you receive it so that it maintains it's potency long-term. If you accidentally leave this drug out of the refrigerator, simply place it back in the refrigerator for storage within 14 days.

CYCLOPHOSPHAMIDE

Key Information

- Cyclophosphamide is a chemotherapy (anticancer) and immunosuppressive drug. Although safe when handled appropriately, this drug and its byproducts have the potential to be hazardous to animals and people who come in direct contact with it.
- On the day your pet gets the drug and for a few days afterward, it is advised to handle any of their bodily fluids (urine, feces, blood, vomit) while wearing disposable gloves. This is to lessen the chance of you being exposed to byproducts of chemotherapy, even if the risk is small.
- Give this drug with food, as cyclophosphamide can cause gastrointestinal upset(eg, loss of appetite, vomiting, diarrhea).
- Bladder damage (hemorrhagic cystitis). As many as one-third of dogs (rare in cats) receiving cyclophosphamide will have damage to the bladder that causes blood in the urine. Your veterinarian may give your dog a diuretic (water pill) to decrease the likelihood of this adverse effect. Your veterinarian may also recommend that you take your dog out more often to encourage urination to prevent this effect.

Inspector Notes: Non-resident licenses are held in the following states: CO, DC, DE, FL, ID, IN, KS, ME, MD, MO, NE, NJ, NM, NY, OR, RI, SD, TN, VA, WA, WV, and WY. This pharmacy operates on a vertically integrated or closed system. All prescribers are known to the pharmacy, as they use a platform named Curology which manages a network of prescribers across the country who have access to the system. Staff states that prescribing is consistent with individual state regulations related to telemedicine. Insulin is not stocked and there was no ReliOn insulin in this facility. There are no biologicals compounded and there is no white bagging. Non-sterile compounding performed at this facility is somewhat similar to a sterile compounding area. There is a line of demarcation upon entering the NS compounding area and full handwashing and garbing is required (gloves are not required for visitors). Safety glasses are worn by staff while compounding and compounding procedures appear to be more than required for non-sterile compounding. Bar code scanning is utilized for all steps of the compounding process where appropriate.
